Nudists and Others, Unfit. The Milwaukee Crime Party. Will Sterilization Help? Porto Rico's Gamecocks.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

KENTUCKY, which does not approve nudism, has passed a bill taxing nudist colonies $1,000 annually, a small amount compared to what some husbands are taxed to keep their wives completely dressed.

Further, the new Kentucky law would compel nudists to carry on experiments in premises completely surrounded by a wall of brick, stone or cement, twenty feet high.

EVIDENTLY legislators consider nudism strictly an offense against earthly morals, not as an offense against Heaven. The 20-foot wall would not protect Heaven from offense.

Some day, ridicule will do for nudism what decency seems unable to do now, and that silly return to the monkey idea will come to an end.

MILWAUKEE'S house of correction competes with New York's Welfare Island prison in criminal modernity.

Witnesses tell of one woman convict dancing, completely undressed, for the amusement of guests, excessive drinking, and, in the midst of the "gaiety," according to one witness, "one lady inmate took a shot in the arm," use of drugs being part of the evening's entertainment.

One matron of the institution was in the midst of it all, and half of the prisoners used narcotic drugs.

SO-CALLED respectability need not complain of lawlessness displayed even by our supposed law-enforcement machinery.

It was that same respectability that showed contempt for law and constitution throughout the prohibition period. It was necessary in this country for a depression, or something, to make the people think of their own shortcomings.

GERMANY, enthusiastically developing and working its machinery of "sterilization," to prevent mentally and physically unfit from producing children to inherit their defects, hopes to improve the human race, permanently.

General hostility to Hitler's ideas has caused criticism of the sterilization experiments on the assumption that they are aimed at alleged racial inferiority, but there is no apparently basis for that objection.

SOME APPARENTLY forget that our own Supreme Court, in an opinion written by Mr. Justice Holmes has declared sterilization laws constitutional with proper safeguards.

In the case of Carrie Buck, an eighteen-year-old patient in Virginia's state colony for epileptics and feeble-minded, the Supreme Court authorized authorities of Virginia to carry out the law, with an operation called "salingectomy," making future child-bearing impossible.

Carrie Buck, daughter of a feeble-minded mother, was born a feeble-minded child, and Justice Holmes said in his opinion:

"Three generations of imbeciles are enough."

He said also:

"It is better for all the world, if instead of waiting to execute degenerate offspring for crime or to let them starve for their imbecility, society can prevent those who are manifestly unfit from continuing their kind."

THERE HAS been far more sterilization of the unfit in America than in Germany or any other country, for eugenic reasons, not including, of course, the once commercially practiced production of eunuchs.

California alone has sterilized some eight thousand five hundred individuals, men and women.

THE CATHOLIC church formally disapproved the practice of sterilization, except for thereapeutic reasons, in the papal encyclical, Connubii, Casti of December, 1930, setting aside the conclusion reached by Dr. Joseph Mayer, a Roman Catholic theologian, that "selective sterilization for eugenic purposes, properly administered, was entirely in accord with the traditions and principles of the Roman Catholic religion."

HISTORY WILL tell to what extent if any, civilization can improve itself by practicing compulsory birth control among the criminal and feeble-minded classes.

There is no doubt that modern haphazard philanthropy and public charitable institutions have done much to preserve and perpetuate criminal and feeble-minded individuals that would have died out, left to themselves and the unmitigated struggle for existence.

Modern civilization does far more for the exceptionally unfit than it has ever done for those of exceptional fitness and probable value to the race.

THIS NATION can say truly that it is willing to try anything once. We took the unhappy Virgin Islands, enforced prohibition there, something we could not or did not do on the main land.

That plunged the Virgin Islanders into poverty, suppressing their one profitable industry, making rum.

Now the national government itself will supervise and encourage revival of the Cruzin rum industry, at St. Croix, Virgin Islands, thus helping the demon rum back on his feet.

What has happened to the ardent Anti-Saloon League that it should stand by as idle as a

ARMY HALTS ALL FLYING OF MAIL

Lindy's Role Pondered As U. S. Drafts New 'Safety Schedules' Air Mail Situation

Army orders all mail planes grounded.

New "fair weather" schedules being drafted.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—The sky was empty of planes flying the mails today, just three weeks after the Army took over the job.

The order grounding the planes made no mention of the 10 deaths that have occurred since President Roosevelt canceled the private subsidies and turned the air mail over to the Army, but it followed within a day of the President's statement that deaths in flying the mail "must stop."

Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps, directed the order to all air mail zones.

Speculation continued today about what part, if any, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh would play in the government's air mail plans. After a two-day visit here, which included several talks with Secretary of War Dern, he flew back to Newark, N. J., with Mrs. Lindbergh yesterday.

BUSINESS PROBLEM

What effect the cancellation of all air mail service, even through temporary, would have on American business which has come to rely upon the swifter means of mailing, was a moot question. Postal officials, promptly notified by air mail zone commanders of the changed situation, struggled to

Mr. Hearst Discusses Foreign Policy

The following statement by William Randolph Hearst was published in Tokio on March Fourth by the newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun. The statement was made in response to a request from the editor of the Japanese paper.

I BELIEVE the United States should mind its own business.

I think the people of the United States want the government of the United States to mind the business of the United States.

We have plenty of problems at home.

We want our government to help us solve those problems.

We do not want our government to be running around the world poking its nose into other people's affairs.

We object to this first, because our government by so doing, would have its attention diverted from the pressing problems here at home; and second, because our government, if it pursues such an offensive course, is likely to have its "Paul Pry" nose pulled for its pains.

That would mean a controversy and a possible conflict over matters in which we as a people are not, and should not be concerned.

The United States is fortunately so situated that it CAN mind its own business. So let it do so.

There is no policy so beneficial as minding one's own business.

Whenever we have not minded our own business, we have had trouble.

Whenever we have minded our own business, we have had peace and prosperity.

Washington's injunction to keep free from foreign entanglements can be colloquially expressed in the homely phrase, "Mind your own business."

If we had minded our own business, we would have kept free from the World War and from all the troubles which have followed in its wake.

We would not have had the ill will of the nations we aided.

We would not have had the unhappy experience

TAX CHARGE 'POLITICS' —MELLON

Washington Orders Action By U. S. Attorney Here

On the heels of word from Washington that tax experts were preparing suits against Andrew W. Mellon and others, United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld today revealed he had received a letter from the Attorney General's office.

The letter states that the evidence so far disclosed "justifies a complete grand jury investigation, particularaly with respect to Mellon's income tax return for the year 1931," and instructs Dumbauld to proceed.

'POLITICS'—MELLON

Mellon, stopping off at Washton en route to Aiken, S. C., branded the suit being prepared against him as "the crudest kind of politics."

While the federal grand jury convenes next week at Erie, there appeared little likelihood that a probe of Mellon's affairs would be begun by that body.

The November grand jury has not been discharged and is subject to recall any time before the regular May term of court.

Dumbauld is known to have been in Washington in January, presumably for conference with the Attorney General's office on income tax matters, but he has never confirmed the purpose of his visit.

The federal prosecutor said:

PLOTS FOR MURDER OF IGGY SCHWARTZ LAID TO OFFICERS

Astounding allegations of connections between certain policemen and the underworld contained in a statement which today was in the hands of police officials. They include:

A former officer of the department was named as the partner in a North Side house of ill repute.

A former policeman, then trying to get back on the force, accepted money to murder Iggy Schwartz, gambler, now standing trial for the killing of Andy Garavini, the hacker.

A former plainclothesman also was a partner in a house of ill repute and directed the murder plot against Schwartz.

These accusations were made in a statement last December 2 by Nell Callahan, herself allegedly the operator of a disorderly house on the North Side.

CHARGES GARAVINI PROFIT

She charged that the profits of a house at 21 Plush way were split among her and Garavini and a former plainclothesman.

She said this business was bought from a woman and a police officer, at the suggestion of her plainclothesman-partner.

These conditions existed not under the present administration but early in 1932, according to the Callahan woman's statement.

She related that as recently as late November two police officers warned her not to "talk." Her statement goes on:

"They come to me at 218 Sandusky . . . They says, 'Don't talk to nobody about it.' . . . One was a small chunky fellow and one was a tall fellow."

The woman denied that Garavini had ever talked to her about putting Schwartz "on the spot."

TELLS OF ALLEGED PLOT

Instead, she said, Schwartz' life was sought by the former plainclothesman.

Mrs. Callahan was asked:

"What was the trouble between Schwartz and—(the former plainclothesman)?"

She was quoted as answering:

"At first he (the plainclothesman) tried to make me believe it was something about the Mayor's trial."

Schwartz Hears Plea for Second Degree Verdict

Iggy Schwartz, the dapper gambler, was placed on trial in Criminal Court today charged with the slaying of Andy Garavini, the well-heeled hacker.

And outside the courtroom lingered the smartly-dressed red-haired woman who divorced the gambler to marry the hacker—Margaret Garavini, who will be called to the stand to testify against her first husband.

The state did little boasting of the strength of its case against Schwartz. In fact, Prosecutor Roy T. Clunk, in his opening argument to the jury, admitted he could not prove murder in the first degree. But he added:

"We don't think you'll have the slightest trouble convicting Schwartz in the second degree."

Enemies after Schwartz' attractive wife had divorced Schwartz had eloped to Wellsburg with the hacker-bootlegger, Schwartz and Garavini engaged in a gun duel outside the William Penn Hotel last midnight November 9.

STATE CASE OUTLINED

Clunk, anticipating Schwartz' plea of self defense, told the jury of eight men and four women:

"We will show you that Mr. and Mrs. Garavini were leaving the hotel after playing bridge there. Schwartz immediately

HOUSE TO VOTE ON CASH BONUS

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—By more than a two-thirds vote—that necessary to override a presidential veto—the House today approved immediate consideration of the Patman cash bonus bill.

The roll call was 313 to 104.

Immediate consideration of the $2,200,000,000 measure got under way after it was agreed that two hours of debate be equally divided between the proponents and opponents.

Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, controlled the opposing hour and Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, that for those who favor paying the bonus with United States notes.

It was noticeable during the debate on the motion to consider the bill that none of the Democratic leaders spoke in opposition.

Chairman Doughton (Dem.), of North Carolina, of the Ways and Means Committee, voted to discharge his own group and bring the bill before the House.

All Pittsburgh district Congressmen voted for the motion. They are Brooks, Dunn and Ellenbogen, Democrats, and Kelly and Muldowney, Republicans.

Carnegie Foundation Revealed as Backer of League Association

This is the fourth of a series of articles, gathered from a study of government records in Washington, disclosing for the first time the activities of the huge international and pacifist propaganda machine which has been operating in the United States for the past fifteen years in an effort to get America into the League of Nations and its so-called World Court, and curb the Army and Navy. The various corporations set up by the late Andrew Carnegie alone have $246,035,319, much of which is expended in behalf of this program.

By JOHN A. KENNEDY

The records of the Carnegie Foundation's vast propaganda machine show that part of the $7,000,000 spent in the past fifteen years helped finance the League of Nations Association.

That association is working SOLELY to push the United States into the League of Nations and its so-called World Court.

The activities of the league association might well be considered by the average American citizen.

Here are some facts:

On January 5, 1930, the association held a huge meeting in New York to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the founding of the League.

Thirty-two propaganda groups joined with the Carnegie propaganda machine to promote this gathering.

PARROT FEVER PROBED HERE

Following many rumors of reappearance of psittacosis, or "parrot fever," here, Dr. Ray P. Moyer, director of the City Department of Public Health, announced today that he was investigating the situation.

Although no authenticated cases of the disease have been reported here, Dr. Moyer urged physicians to look closely for evidence of the disease whenever they find that a patient, suffering apparently from pneumonia, has been in contast with birds.

Dr. Moyer made the following statement on his investigation:

Reports coming to the Department of Public Health the past week led Dr. Ray P. Moyer, director, today, to request physicians to look closely for a typical pneumonia in cases where the patient has been in contact with parrots, parrakeets and other birds of the psittacine family.

During the week, Dr. Moyer said, 85 birds that were ill or had been in contact with sick

U. S. Investigating 'Student League'

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—The Postoffice and Interior Departments are investigating the activeness of an organization described as "The National Student League," which has circularized colleges and schools offering educational grants and awards.

3 GIVEN YEAR IN VOTE FRAUD

Three more election board members were sentenced to a year and a day in a federal penitentiary and fined $1 each today in the ballot fraud cases in Federal Court.

They were Mike Wendell, judge; Carman Bosco and Charles P. Betters, inspectors, of the Ninth District, Third Ward, all found guilty of conspiracy to falsify ballots at the 1932 Congressional election.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker apparently was not swayed by a recommendation of mercy by the jury, but imposed the same sentence as on a majority of others. The list of those sentenced now stands at 17 and completes the groups of election officers convicted at the November term.

PITTSBURGH COAL HEADS GET BONUS DESPITE LOSS

STOCK VALUED AT $180,000 GRANTED

Names of Beneficiaries Secret; $2,868,241 Deficit Reported

The Pittsburgh Coal Company gave a bonus of 5,750 shares of stock to certain executive officers last year in spite of the fact that the company showed a net loss of $2,868,241 for the year, the annual report for 1933 revealed today. In 1932 the net loss was $2,882,580. Since 1925 the company has shown a profit in only one year.

The report does not give the names of the officers who shared in the distribution which consisted of 3,750 shares of preferred stock, worth about $40 a share at present prices, and 2,000 shares of common stock, worth about $15 a share. The total value was about $180,000.

REWARD FOR ABILITY

The report says that the bonus was "in recognition of exceptional accomplishment and ability, and to secure to the company the benefits of their future services, interests and efforts."

The report was signed by Alan M. Scaife, son-in-law of the late Richard B. Mellon, recently elected chairman of the board of the company. The Mellon family has held a substantial interest in Pittsburgh Coal for many years.

The report disclosed that the company spent $1,296,026 during the year on the construction of a railroad and other facilities to bring its coal from Brush Run, O., to the Ohio Rivers at Smiths Ferry, Pa., a distance of 12 miles. This railroad was the center of a bitter court fight with leading trunk line systems. The coal company won a favorable decision last December.

CODE BOOSTS COSTS

Wage rates and labor costs were increased when the NRA code was agreed to by the operators in July and again when the code became effective in October, according to the report. It also discloses that the prices realized by the company did not reach the average of the fair competitive price schedules approved by the code authority and have not yet approximated that figure because of prior contracts.

The report also points out that the Pittsburgh district was handicapped in reaching its markets by unfair freight rates on eastbound coal and by intrastate rate reductions given to Ohio mines. These discriminations were removed this year.

Once before Pittsburgh Coal gave inside interests, believed to be the Mellon group, a break in acquiring its stock. On December 23, 1926, a contract was made giving an option for the sale of 78,208 shares of its $100 par common stock at $35 a share to "interests affiliated with the management." The annual report for 1926 made no mention of the existence of this option. The option was exercised in 1927 when the market value of the stock made the transaction profitable.

PAIR ACCUSED AS TAX EVADERS

Two former Pittsburgh law enforcers today were arrested on federal warrants charging them with failure to file income tax returns for 1930 and attempting to evade payment of their tax.

They were J. S. Goldstein, a former constable, who was arrested at his home, 2523 Beechwood boulevard, by Deputy Marshal E. A. Holden, and J. Thomas Oppenheim, a former city detective and police sergeant, of 1502 Shady avenue, who appeared voluntarily.

Complaints filed by James L. Pearce, special agent for the internal revenue service, allege Oppenheim was subject to a tax of $2,624 on a gross income of $34,417 and that Goldstein was subject to a $2,567 tax on a gross income of $34,395.

Oppenheim was arrested last January charged with operating a lottery following a raid on the second floor of 4616 Henry street.

Pearce would not say how the government's claims against the pair were derived.

Both men were released on $2,500 bond each for a hearing Friday before the United States Commissioner.

birds were destroyed by their owners, upon advice of the Department of Public Health.

Although there is no definite laboratory test for psittacosis, one macaw, that showed evidence of illness, was chloroformed and shipped to the National Institute of Health at Washington for pathological examination.

Pending more exact determination, the Department of Public Health has requested all dealers to refrain from selling and to isolate parrots, parrakeets and other birds of the psittacine family.

Psittacosis, by state law, is a notifiable disease, and physicians are required to notify local health authorities of the existence of such infection.

The Pittsburgh Medical Bulletin, published by the Allegheny County Medical Society, contained the following warning:

"In the winter of 1929-30 a few cases of psittacosis were recognized in Western Pennsylvania, and in each instance an intimate relationship was established between the human cases anad the presence of a sick parrot. After the first few days of the disease in the human the symptoms may strongly suggest pneumonia, with delayed consolidation in the lungs. This characteristic condition following an illness beginning with only unusual tiredness and weakness, to be followed in a day or two by high temperature and relativeley slow pulse rate, is suggestive of psittacosis in any patient giving a history of having one or two weeks previously been in contact with a sick parrot.

"The mortality in this disease is 30 to 40 per cent in adults. The treatment is symptomatic, but the most important consideration is the recognition of the fact that a sick parrot should be promptly destroyed as the source of this very dangerous, acute, infectious disease.

"From files of the Bulletin for January, 1930, we have hastily compiled the above as a means of bringing to the attention of our members this rare condition, of which there is said to have been one fatal reasonably authentic case with other strongly suspicious fatal cases in the city within the past fortnight."

STEEL UPTURN SEEN BY TAYLOR

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, sees an "encouraging" outlook for 1934 with present indications pointing to increased business.

In his annual report to stockholders, published today, he notes that operations in January and February of this year showed improvement over the corresponding months last year.

Expressing the hope that NRA would accomplish the purposes for which it was instituted, Taylor says sufficient time has not yet elapsed to determine definitely how successful it will prove and whether the steel code should be continued in its present form after its expiration on May 31.

The report says the corporation's plants operated at 29 per cent of capacity during 1933, against 18 per cent in 1932, producing 11,624,294 tons of rolled and finished steel, against 7,676,744 tons.

Net loss for the year, before dividends, was $36,501,23, as against $71,175,704 in 1932. Payment of preferred dividends of $7,205,620 brought the net deficit for the year to $43,706,743, compared to $91,891,867 in 1932.

MORE MARKET 'POLICE' URGED

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—Enlargements of the Federal Trade Commission for regulating stock exchanges was proposed today following definite word from the White House that enactment of "strong" legislation is desired this session.

Drafters of the legislation on Capitol Hill said the revised Fletcher-Rayburn Bill would provide for two additional members of the commission as experts on exchanges.

This was in the nature of a compromise between those proposing control by the trade commissioin as it is now constituted and those urging creation of a new agency to supervise the markets.

The bill is being drafted by Ferdinand Pecora, counsel of the senate banking committee, for chairman Fletcher. He had intended to submit the revised measure today to the committee, but it was not completed in time.

BANK DEPOSIT BILL APPROVED

WASHINGTON, March. 12.—(AP.)—Two administration measures, extending the temporary bank deposit insurance law and guaranteeing the principle of home loan bonds, were approved today by the Senate Banking Committee.

The first measure would extend for a year, or until July 1, 1935, the temporary insurance of deposits plan now in effect.

The second would place a government guarantee back of the $2,000,000,000 issue of home loan bonds authorized by the last Congress to refinance small home mortgages.

The committee also approved a bill by Chairman Fletcher to limit state taxation of national bank shares.

ALUMINUM MEN RETURN TO JOBS

Striking workers at the New Kensington district plants of the Aluminum Company of America, out more than a week, were returning to their jobs today following a vote to call off the strike at a meeting in the New Kensington High School last night.

Fifty per cent of the men were expected to be back today, 80 per cent by tomorrow, and the remaining 20 per cent Thursday.

Decision to return to work pending further negotiations with the company was taken following several sessions of officials of the union yesterday. At the meeting, T. Colvin, commissioner of conciliation of the Federal Labor Department, advised the return of the men, calling attention to the agreement made a week ago with the union and the company in which the men were granted an 11 per cent increase over the August 1 rate schedule.

Since the strike was called more than 3,000 men in the New Kensington, Arnold and Logans Ferry plants have been idle.

Johnson to Ignore Budd Workers' Poll

SENATORS LAUD HEARST TALK ON NRA

Hailed 'Praiseworthy' And 'Excellent' By Leaders

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—William Randolph Hearst was praised today by congressional leaders for his radio address Saturday night on the NRA.

Senator Costigan (Dem.), of Colorado, said:

"In his discussion of business and the NRA, Mr. Hearst challenges serious attention in his warning of the danger of driving capital needed for industrial recovery into the tax-exempt securities.

"Such securities are anti-social in that they spread the impression that our self-governing country favors a certain class of private citizens who are unwilling to share in the cost of maintaining the government under which they live and do business."

Senator Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota:

"Mr. Hearst attacked the present economic program along highly praiseworthy lines when he pointed out the limitations of enforced operations under the NRA plan.

"He was entirely right in his explanation that we must have wider vision, and realize that business can put up with only so much before it meets bankruptcy."

Senator Fess (Rep.), of Ohio, said:

"I was impressed deeply with Mr. Hearst's forceful argument that there is a difference between what business may desire to do in wages and shorter hours and what it actually can do."

Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, said:

"I was very much pleased with Mr. Hearst's strong address. It deserves and should command the attention of the executives of the NRA and of Congress."

Senator McAdoo (Dem.), of California, said:

"I think Mr. Hearst's address was an excellent statement."

Senator Murphy (Dem.), of Iowa, said:

"In a general way there is a strong basis for criticism Mr. Hearst has launched."

Plots For Murder of Iggy Schwartz Laid To Policemen

The statement relates that the plainclothesman gave the ex-patrolman a gun with which to "bump off" Schwartz. The statement continues:

"There was to be a banquet in the William Penn Hotel in a couple of nights and he wanted ——— to go to the William Penn Hotel during this banquet and he was to bring a key for a room in the hotel and leave it with me to give ———.

SAYS DEATH PLAN FAILED

"——— said, 'I wouldn't kill nobody, but if I can get back on the force and put bread and butter in my wife and my family's mouths, I would promise him almost anything.' I packed a lunch a couple of nights afterwards and gave him a pint of whisky and he started for the hotel. He told me the next morning when he came to my house—he told me—that ——— wanted him to go in this room, catty-corner some place from Iggie's room and when Iggie came in to go to bed for ——— to rush in at him and kill him and throw him down a court."

But, the statement goes on, this plan fell through, the alleged killer explaining that Iggy didn't sleep in the hotel that night.

Mrs. Callahan says she later fell out with the plainclothesman, not caring to have anything to do with a murder plot, and that later attempts to murder Schwartz failed—once because the gambler was with his young son.

CITES POLICE PAYOFF

Details of the payoff for "protection" are contained in the statement. The woman charges that she paid $100 a month "always" to the police officer who was also a partner in a house.

She was quoted as saying:

"I guess I give him (Garavini) about $2,000 at least, it was to take care of things that I could run and not be raided."

But, she added, Garavini never promised her any police protection.

As to the plainclothesman, she said:

"I gave him practically every cent I took in. The place was never a paying proposition. It was to be understood that he was to get 50 a week and the other money was to go for heart money."

The murder fee was, according to the statement, $500, but she explained that the first killer, after being paid $250 in advance, walked out on the job and that a total of $115 had been given the former patrolman who also fell down on the job.

The statement was taken from the Callahan woman not as an investigation of conditions on the North Side, but as part of the investigation of the Garavini killing.

The woman explained that after she had fallen out with the plainclothesman she feared for her own life and warned him that she had given statemets to friends implicating him.

Carefree Loafer Missing on Campus

DENVER.—Gone from the American college campus is the carefree loafer. Harold B. Tharp of Indianapolis, Ind., banker and national president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, said upon his recent arrival in Denver that college enrollments had shrunk seven per cent during the past year, and that those who were left in school were taking their jobs of preparing for life more seriously than ever before.

'Protection' Law Rejected by Swiss

BERNE, March 12.—(AP.)—A proposed law for the "protection of the state," aimed against political terrorism and revolutionary violence, was voted down today in a popular referendeum of Swiss voters by 486,000 to 416,000.

Schwartz Hears Plea for Second Degree Verdict

started toward Garavini and started to draw his revolver. There was a scuffle.

With visiting Judge J. Frank Graff on the bench, Clunk then trotted out his first witness.

Deputy Coroner John Aldisert took the stand and identified two revolvers which had been turned over to him by homicide detectives.

One of these was the .32 caliber pistol with which Schwartz admitted he shot the William Penn way hacker.

The other, also a .32 caliber gun, the defense will contend was carried by Garavini on the fatal night and was actually the first pistol fired. It was found in Garavini's home some days after the shooting, according to detectives.

The courtroom was crowded for the first day's session and the sporting gentry well represented.

JURY SELECTED

The jury was selected in the morning session without difficulty.

The first juror chosen was James Conroy, mill worker, of 1300 Union avenue, Harrison Township. Others selected before a morning recess were Mrs. Marie Stromp, 215 Cheny street, Mifflin Township; John T. Corkan, clerk, of 1718 Jancey street, and Edward F. Gillen, painter, of 3131 Terrace street.

Alfred Davis, night watchman, 3405 Brighton road; Mrs. Marie Willner, 1107 Arlington avenue; John L. Strathem, railroad conductor, 806 Thompson street, and Abraham N. Hardy, laborer, 104 Rebecca street, Wilkins Township were chosen. Charles E. Knight, machinist, 2801 Chartiers avenue, and Stanley J. Pater, payroll clerk, 1226 Evans avenue, McKeesport, were selected as Jurors 9 and 10.

Two women, Mrs. Mary Webb, 1122 Greenfield avenue, and Mrs. Anna B. Marxen, 510 Dawson avenue, Carnegie, completed the panel of jurors.

Star witness for the defense will be Florence Brunner, ex-city plainclothesman now serving time in Western Penitentiary for arson. Brunner will be asked to tell of a death plot conceived by Garavini to put Schwartz out of the way.

If Brunner tells everything he put into a statement he made three years ago, his testimony will be an expose of the underworld.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance, central over the east Gulf Saturday morning, developed northward along the Atlantic Coast during Saturday, producing moderate rains along the South Atlantic Coast and moderate to heavy snows over the Middle Atlantic states and inland over Pennsylvania. High pressure now overlies the Middle Atlantic states, Elkins, W. Va., 30.50, and the plateau, Yellowstone Park, Wyo. 30.22, and relatively low pressure, central over Manitoba, Minnedosa, 29.62, extends southward over the plains. Precipitation has been light during the last 24 hours, and has been confined to the North Atlantic states and the lake region. It is somewhat colder over the Middle Atlantic states this morning, with a rising temperature condition over all the rest of the country.

ARMY SUSPENDS ALL FLYING OF MAIL

give the fastest possible train routing to stacks of air mail shunted back to them by Sunday's order.

The interruption of service is not expected to last for more than two or three days. Gen. Foulois hoped to have a modified "fair-weather" schedule ready by Wednesday.

The Air Corps chief believes a revised air mail map, with planes and men to fly it, will be in shape by mid-week, with the 18 routes which were being flown until today reduced to about a dozen.

The coast-to-coast "backbone" of the air mail will be preserved in the new setup.

REBUKE GIVEN ARMY

Grounding of the entire air mail service followed President Roosevelt's statement of Saturday that deaths among Army mail fliers "must stop."

The White House statement was considered by many Air Corps men today as the sharpest rebuke given the Army in years. These men contended that the military aviators are as good fliers as commercial pilots, but that their unfamiliarity with mail routes, coupled with exceptionally bad weather during most of the period, has been a heavy disadvantage.

Although the Army mail pilots were held to earth, the disasters that have marked their three week's experience in flying the mail remained fuel for congressional discussion today.

An emergency air mail bill, providing funds for temporary Army operation, may get a Senate vote before night, although considerable debate is in prospect. Some Republicans are accepting the entire situation as political, and want to debate it.

KELLY ATTACKS BILL

Both Senate and House Postoffice committees heard objections today to parts of the administration legislation to reorganize the air mail service permanently.

In the House, Representative Kelly (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, said the bill would continue the "proposition that caused us all our trouble." He referred to a provision to pay carriers by space available for mail.

In the Senate, Senator Logan (Dem.), of Kentucky, objected to provisions barring the transfer of a contract from one company to another, as well as the limitation of route extensions to 100 miles, as too rigid.

Kelly argued for the bill already tentatively approved by the committee under which all mail would be paid for on a basis of two mills per pound mile.

Other committee members agreed that the carriers should be paid for the actual mail carried rather than for the space available for carrying mail.

Meanwhile, a mass of data, covering all transactions in United Aircraft stock from December 1, 1933, to February 9, 1934, was submitted to the Senate Banking Committee by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange.

Rickenbacker Praises Air Mail Suspension

NEW YORK, March 12.—(INS.)—Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, famous World War ace and now a prominent figure in commercial aviation, today expressed approval of the temporary grounding of all Army air mail flights. He said:

"This order represents the capitulation by the United States Army to the commercial air lines of the nation, which, up to three weeks ago, were the best in the world.

"There is no reason why the government shouldn't be honest, first, with itself, and second, with the operators of the commercial lines, and immediately try to salvage what is left of our wonderful air transport systems—and the 6,000 highly specialized men which these air lines employed.

"When it came to trying to fly the mails, the Army boys were licked before they started—that's the regrettable part of it all. Army lines can't be forced into functioning as commercial carriers any more than the commercial lines could undertake to successfully perform the air duties of the Army Flying Corps."

$500 Blaze Blamed On Defective Flue

First Lady Eats Rice, Quits Saddle for Auto

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt began in the cushioned comfort of an automobile today a tour substituted for one she wanted to take in a saddle.

The first lady of the United States conceived the idea of making a four-day horseback ride into the mountains as part of investigation of social and economic conditions in the island.

Friends in her party—probably beginning to tire just a bit at the fast pace she's been setting—persuaded her to substitute a two-day, 300-mile automobile trip over the coastal plain.

The needlework district of Porto Rico was their objective today. They planned to spend the night at San German continuing to keep informality the keynote of their receptions.

Gov. Blanton D. Winship was Mrs. Roosevelt's host last night at the first formal dinner since the tour started. The favorite Porto Rican dish—rice and chicken—was served.

A prayer for the "forgotten man" was linked with one for President Roosevelt at the Anglican Church visited by Mrs. Roosevelt Sunday morning. The prayer was offered by the Rev. William [illegible], on an English shake[illegible], DC., a missionary.

Army Flying Debacle Blamed on Economy

By BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM MITCHELL

Former Chief of Army Air Corps. Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The trouble with the Army Air Corps is that it has been so curtailed by the general staff that the men in the air service don't know how to fly.

They have not been permitted to fly sufficiently to be properly trained for the hazardous night flying and flying in bad weather, such as they have been called on to do in carrying the air mail.

Year before last, in connection with economy legislation, the air corps had to absorb 43 per cent of the appropriation cut for the whole Army. They cut the flying time down from 300 to 400 hours a year to about 100 hours per man.

Last year the air corps fund was cut by the general staff from three million dollars to one million, leaving only a third of what the corps had left after the cut of the year before.

Futhermore, the Army's airplans are very poor. This is disgraceful. It is due to the general staff, and not to the air corps.

The corps has not the proper facilities for flying at night or in bad weather. It is organized as the infantry, not as an air outfit.

$150,000 SHORTAGE BARED IN BANK AT BROOKVILLE

U. S. OFFICIALS HERE LAUNCH PROBE

Former President Ill; Government Audit Completed

Investigation of a shortage ranging between $150,000 and $200,000 in the closed Jefferson County National Bank of Brookville, Pa., today was in the hands of the United States Attorney here, while Leonard B. Shannon, former president and conservator, was in a Philadelphia hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Federal attorneys here refused to discuss the case other than to say an investigation was under way.

Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh said he would be unable to say whether there were irregularities in the bank's affairs until investigators had made a reportt.

REPORT OF AUDIT

Shannon was Democratic candidate for State Treasurer in the 1932 elections, polling more than 1,000,000 votes against the Republican winner, Charles A. Waters. He also had extensive business connections in Jefferson County.

The report of an audit of his bank's books while he was conservator—from March until November, 1933—is now in the office of Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor.

SHORTAGE BARED

That report, it is understood, bares the shortage, indicates violations of national banking laws, shows that possibly half of $94,000 in trust deposits, accepted after the bank's operations were restricted, are almost hopelessly tied up.

Some of the shortage is in trust accounts—deposits made after the bank holiday.

When the bank moratorium suspended the nation's banking operations last March, the Jefferson County National Bank had deposits of about $1,486,000, capital and surplus of $213,000. Quick reorganization and early reopening was expected when the bank restricted operations at the end of the moratorium.

NAMED CONSERVATOR

Shannon, president and a director of the bank, was named its conservator and was bonded for $50,000.

By November, however, it had become apparent that no quick dividend was to be paid depositors and that the bank was even unable to pay the segregated trust deposits received since March.

Shannon went to the Miseracordia Hospital in Philadelphia with a nervous breakdown. E. B. Howard, of Tulsa, Okla., became receiver.

The bank closed, O'Connor sent Leon J. Gell to commence an audit on November 10. His report is now in O'Connor's office.

It soon became apparent the books of the institution were so involved it was impossible properly to audit them.

Meanwhile, however, it became possible to pay 25 per cent of the money in the 800 segregated trust deposits. Nothing has yet been paid on deposits made before the bank moratorium.

NEW DIVIDEND SOON

Another dividend of about 25 per cent is expected on the trust deposits soon. Stockholders, subject to double liability laws, were called on to pay 100 per cent of their holdings early this month.

Receiver Howard, questioned by the Sun-Telegraph on the shortage, declared:

"I can only say that there is a shortage. You'll have to go to the Comptroller of the Currency for further information."

Until the crash of the Brookville bank and the restricting of the Shannon-controlled First National Bank of Sykesville, Shannon was a leading citizen of Jefferson County.

Two weeks ago, Attorney W. N. Conrad, claiming to represent about half of Shannon's creditors, filed an involuntary bankruptcy action against the banker.

OHIO GOVERNOR GUARDED FROM DILLINGER

Kidnap Plot Feared In Effort to Force Release of Pals

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., March 12.—Gov. George White today was placed under the guard of Ohio National Guardsmen against any possible attempt on the part of John Dillinger, notorious fugitive gangster, to force the release of his gang members in Lima by kidnaping the state chief executive.

The gubernatorial mansion also was ordered placed under guard.

The orders, which were directed to "cover up" every avenue that might be taken by the fugitive desperado to gain the freedom of his gang members charged with the first degree murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber in Lima, were issued by Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson.

Dillinger Trial Day Finds Outlaw 'Absent'

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 12.—(AP.)—This was the day on which John Dillinger was scheduled to go on trial for murder, but nothing could be done about it.

The absence of the defendant left Judge William Murray with a free day, and he remained away from court. Authorities, meanwhile, were unable to fill a grand jury panel, so the Dillinger escape investigation was put over for another day.

Inability to obtain service on two members chosen for the grand jury caused the delay.

Edward Barce, assistant attorney general of Indiana, announced the grand jury of six men would be sworn in tomorrow morning and immediately afterward would witness in the County Jail a reenactment of the notorious outlaw's escape with a wooden pistol.

HUNTED IN TOLEDO

TOLEDO, O., March 12.—(AP.)—All police radio scout cars in Toledo were ordered today to search for a small sedan between here and Lima, O., in the belief that one of its occupants might possibly be John Dillinger.

Troops Guard Slayer From Dillinger Rescue

LIMA, O., March 12.—(AP.)—National Guardsmen trained machine guns on the county jail today and hurled an open challenge to John Dillinger, the "kill-crazy" jailbreaker.

Inside the jail was Harry Pierpont, henchman of the killer, who is on the way to the electric chair. He was found guilty in the early morning hours yesterday of the murder of former Sheriff Jess L. Sarber during the bandit raid last October in which Dillinger was freed from the prison.

The guardsmen were ready to answer any attempt Dillinger might make to free his former ally, Gen. Harold M. Bush, commanding the guardsmen, said he had been warned the desperado might show up in Lima to try to snatch Pierpont from the law.

MARY AND DOUG READY TO KISS AND MAKE UP

Fairbanks to Return Home for Reunion, Report Says

LONDON, March 12.—Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and his wife, Mary Pickford, have practically patched up all their differences and are near a reconciliation, it was learned from indisputable sources today.

Fairbanks and Miss Pickford have talked over trans-Atlantic telephone within the last few days with the result that their reunion on the old basis of married life is practically assured. The informant said:

"It is just a matter of time now, but reconciliation will require several months."

PLANS U. S. RETURN

Fairbanks is planning to return to the United States in two or three months—as soon as he has finished a picture-making contract in Europe.

Hollywood's most famous couple may re-unite as soon as he lands, but it seems more likely that it will be two months after that before they are rejoined.

The couple would be re-united today if the divorce action of Lord Ashley against his wife — naming Fairbanks as co-respondent—had not intervened, causing an unforeseen delay.

FURY SUBSIDES

The authority for the fact that Fairbanks and his wife will soon be reunited said:

"It may surprise you to know that the Ashley incident only caused strained relations for two days. The first fury quickly subsided, and now the situation is even better than it was then.

"Doug and Mary always kept in touch with each other, although there were long periods without communication."

While the terms of the settlement were not stated, Doug apparently has given up his plans that he and Mary should quit working. His work here is expected to satisfy her, but both will keep making movies.

CHURCH CHIMES KIDNAP CLUE

MENOMINEE, Neb., March 12.—(AP.)—The chimes of an obscure little church may prove the undoing of the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker.

Bremer knows little of the hideout where he was held captive for more than three weeks, but he remembered that every day he heard the chimes of a church in the vicinity. Officers seized on those chimes as a clue to the hideout.

They reasoned that the banker had been held within 300 miles of St. Paul, for he was able to reach his home seven hours after being released. So the investigators searched for a church with chimes within that radius.

They learned that the only church with chimes of that kind was St. Boniface Church here. The Rev. Father Ferdinand Krings, pastor of the church, has followed regularly the old world custom of sounding the Angelus, and investigators believe Bremer was held prisoner near Menominee.

There are a number of vacant houses in this vicinity and they are all coming under the close scrutiny of the officers.

FACTOR POINTS OUT BANGHART

CHICAGO, March 12.—(AP.)—John Factor from the witness stand today pointed out Basil Banghart, former Touhy gangster, as one of the men who last July 1 abducted him for $70,000 ransom.

The defendant heard the accusation without a change of expression. The look of sneering defiance was kept steadily upon the nattily-attired stock speculator in the box.

The state expected Factor's testimony to help send Banghart to the electric chair or to the Joliet Penitentiary, where Roger Touhy, Albert Kator and Gus Schaefer are already serving 99-year terms for the crime.

It was the third time that Factor had recounted from the stand the story of the kidnaping under the questioning of Prosecutor Wilbert F. Crowley. Crowley, producing the letter Factor had written to his wife telling of the kidnapers' demands, asked:

"Did you write this letter?"

"Yes."

"And to whom did you give it?"

"To Basil Banghart."

MURDERER DIES SINGING HYMN

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 12.—(AP.)—Robert H. Wiles was electrocuted just before dawn today at State Penitentiary here for kidnaping and killing Hubbard H. Harris, Columbia schoolboy.

The 49-year-old mechanic went to his death with a hymn on his lips after making a full confession and taking sole responsibility for the crime. He said:

"I am guilty. I did it and I am ready to pay for it. No one else was in it at all."

Wiles walked boldly into the electrocution room, greeting officers and witnesses with a cheery "Good morning, gentlemen."

He made his confession, said he was "ready to go" and as the headpiece was adjusted started singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—Dr. Henry McMahon Painter, 70, authority on obstetrics, died of heart trouble yesterday.

He was credited with having contributed much to the development of a technique for giving blood transfusions to new-born babies, and was a pioneer in attempts to develop a successful vaccine to prevent the common head cold.

Court Grants Stay In 'Rasputin' Suit

LONDON, March 12.—(AP.)—The Court of Appeal granted today the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Film Company's application for a stay of execution in the paying of £25,000 (normally $125,000) damages awarded Princess Irena Youssoupoff in her suit based on the film "Rasputin and the Empress," granting the princess only £5,000 at present.

The entire £25,000 will be paid into the court, £20,000 being held in custody pending disposition of the appeal.

Actor and Family Will Tour Europe

HOLLYWOOD, March 12.—(AP.)—Richard Arlen, screen actor, his wife, Jobyna Ralston, former film actress, and their 10-months-old son, Richard, Jr., left here yesterday on a three months' vacation trip to England, Ireland, Scotland and the Continent. They plan to sail from New York Friday.

SALEM, Ore., March 12.—(AP.)—Bodies of Betty Savage, 12, and Annabel Tooley, 9, missing since Thursday, were found late yesterday in Minto Slough, southwest of Salem.

Vallee's Friend Dies, Mystery Probed

CHICAGO, March 12.—(INS.)—Authorities today investigated the death in a hotel room of Boyce Molyneaux Coombs, 40, British amateur golfer, friend of Bobby Jones and Rudy Vallee.

JAIL PRISONERS RIOT IN DARK

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 12.—(AP.)—Screaming and shouting prisoners threw the county jail into an uproar last night as they ran through darkened corridors in wild disorder after a short circuit had plunged the New Haven area into darkness.

Bedlam reigned at the jail for almost an hour and a half before the 227 inmates were quited by guards and locked in their cells.

In common with city streets, homes and business houses throughout New Haven and neighboring towns, the jail was thrown into complete darkness by a short circuit in the Grand avenue power plant of the United Illuminating Company.

The power failure came just three minutes before the prisoners, roaming free about the corridors, were about to be locked in their cells for the night after the exercise period.

The sudden darkness served as a signal for general rioting. A mattress was set affire, and above the screams of the milling prisoners arose the cry of "fire."

Only with the return of the lights was quiet restored and the extreme tension relieved.

Siamese Monarchs Welcomed in Rome

ROME, March 12.—(AP.)—King Prajadhipok and the Queen of Siam came here today from the Riviera to a welcome by Crown Prince Umberto, Premier Mussolini and the members of the cabinet.

Later, the Oriental king was received by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena. King Prajadhipok placed a wreath on the tomb of Italy's unknown soldier. He and his queen are on the way to the United States.

Wooden Gun Label Sticks to Town Outlaw Fled

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 12.—(AP.)—You won't find it in the postal guide, but it all goes to show that postal employes read newspapers.

Saturday a letter was sent from California to "Harry Meyer, Wooden Gun, Ind." The postman delivered it to Harry Meyer, of Crown Point.

Postal employes, it seems, recalled that a week ago Saturday John Dillinger, notorious desperado, escaped from the Lake County jail with a wooden gun.

PLANE SAVES 9 ADRIFT AT SEA

MIAMI, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—Nine persons, missing on two fishing boats since yesterday, were rescued today by the Coast Guard seaplane Arcturus, after they had spent an uncomfortable night aboard their craft in cold, windswept waters.

From the auxiliary cruiser Dawn, which set out early yesterday for the Gulf Stream, and failed to return on schedule, the seaplane brought I. S. Copeland, his son, Billy, 5, of Coral Gables, and Mr. and Mrs. John Calhoun and their daughter, Dorothy, 17, of Miami.

Four Cubans were rescued from a concrete-bottom derelict, which lies in Biscayne Bay a mile southeast of the Miami River inlet, where they were stranded after their rowboat was stove in and sank.

ARRESTS LOOM IN M'KEES ROCKS

Arrest of McKees Rocks' borough treasurer and two former officials for contempt was threatened today in connection with Borough Controller D. J. Buckley's investigation of the charge that the $480,000 borough sinking fund actually contains only $25,000.

Buckley asserted today he would have Treasurer H. D. Supinger, former Tax Collector J. M. Hall and former Borough Solicitor E. A. Sefler arrested for contempt of the Controller's subpenas to present their books this morning for an audit.

His next move will be to attach the books of the three men, Buckley said, in conjunction with an audit Council has denied him. Council's president is Dr. C. B. Keebler, former controller and a son-in-law of Miles Bryan, political boss of McKees Rocks. Regarding an audit being made on his own initiative, Buckley said:

"We found enough to justify a complete audit of every official of the borough. I am not going to sign any vouchers, pay checks or otherwise pay bills until they submit to an audit. We have made every effort by request, demand and subpena but thus far we have been unsuccessful."

INFANT BORN WITH TAIL

CHICAGO, March 12.—(AP.)—Birth of a baby with a two-inch tail has been reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association by its London (England) correspondent. The report said:

"The rare condition of a baby born with a tail has been observed at the Metropolitan Hospital. The tail is about 2 inches long, tapers to a point and is curly and normally sensitive. Removal is proposed."

"Prof. Julian Huxley has remarked about the case that different parts of the body develop at different rates during embryonic life. Usually the tail does not develop at all, but in this case apparently it has grown at almost the same rate as the other parts of the body."

Artist and Wife Mark Anniversary

J. A. Saint, veteran artist and silhouette cutter, and Mrs. Saint, of 318 Lehigh avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary and the former's seventy-eighth birthday yesterday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. George T. Bartley, 124 Carnegie Place.

Among the guests was a son, Lawrence Saint, of Philadelphia, designer of the stained glass windows in the Washington Cathedral.

QUAKES SHAKE SALT LAKE CITY

SALT LAKE CITY, March 12.—(AP.)—An earth shock that moved office buildings, stopped clocks and cracked windows and plaster in this city was felt this morning over Northern Utah, Southwestern Wyoming and Southern Idaho.

Office-bound residents stopped in Salt Lake City streets to watch the buildings sway. Householders reported swinging chandeliers, rattling furniture and clattering dishes.

A cloud of dust arose as the Ezra Thompson building and the Tribunte building adjoining it, rubbed walls.

A statue atop the spire of the City and County building was knocked out of plumb.

At Logan, in Northern Utah, the shock was declared to have been the heaviest ever felt there. The shock also was felt at Pocatello, Blackfoot, Idaho Falls and Boise, Idaho, and Rock Springs, Wyo., to the east, and Provo, Utah to the south.

PRISONER SLAIN IN ESCAPE PLOT

International News Service.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., March 17.—One prisoner was slain here today during an attempt by three other prisoners to escape.

The dead man was John Hubert Arbuckle, 29, a San Barnardino bigamist.

The three ringleaders in the attempted break, which was quelled after desperate hand-to-hand fighting with guns and clubs, after they tried to scale the walls, were Ethan A. McNabb, 36; Lewis H. Downs, 20, Oakland murderer, and William Bagley, 42, San Francisco bandit.

The desperate trio had manufactured guns in their cells. It was one of these weapons that discharged and took Arbuckle's life. McNabb and his pals then knocked down a guard and took his uniform.

With McNabb dressed as a guard and the other two accompanying him as trusties, the attempt was made to scale the walls.

Veteran School Teacher Mourned in Versailles

A hand that for 30 years guided hundreds of childish scrawls, and a voice that prompted many baby minds struggling with the primer were stilled today.

Versailles Borough mourned the death of Mary Olive Logan.

Every man, woman and child who attended school in Versailles between 1903 and June of last year knew Miss Logan as the mentor of their first lessons. In that time she had not missed a day's teaching.

The borough school was closed as funeral services were held for her today. She died Saturday at her home, 410 Chestnut street, Versailles.

Graduating from Slippery Rock Normal School in 1898, Miss Logan taught two years in McKeesport, and later began her long service at Versailles as second grade teacher. For the last 10 years she taught the first grade, but illness forced her to quit the classroom at the end of the 1933 term.

The veteran teacher was a member of a pioneer family in the McKeesport district. Her grandfather, Isaac Logan, built the homestead at Boston in 1820. Miss Logan was born in Boston.

South Park Deer Slain, 'Mounties' Track Dogs

Sergt. U. S. (Steve) Madden and his mounted park troopers are on the "roundup" in South Park today in search of the pack of dogs that killed six county deer early this morning.

Madden shot two of the dogs after they had broken into the deer preserve and detailed his troopers to find the others.

The pack is not composed of wild dogs, Madden explained, because the two he shot had collars and licenses.

GUARD RIGHTS OF MINORITY, JEWS URGED

Organization of Jews to protect the rights of all minority groups in America if anti-Semitism is to be combated here was urged by Richard E. Gutstadt, director of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League, at a meeting in the Y. M. & W. H. A. last night. He said:

"We cannot fight as Jews merely for Jews. We must aid every dispossessed element protecting the rightis of freedom and assembly, and of a voice in the affairs of the nation to every minority. This is not merely a plea to aid Jews, but for Jews to preserve the ideals of America."

Other speakers were Judge Leopold C. Glass of Philadelphia, and Judges Frank P. Patterson and Benjamin Lencher, of the Common Pleas Courts of Allegheny County.

Gutstadt, speaking of the development of anti-Semitism in the United States as a reaction to the Fascist movement in Europe, charged that four organizations are openly or under the guise of "attacking Communism" spreading anti-Semitic propagranda in America. He continued:

"Sympathy with Nazi methods is hostile to democracy. The aim of the B'nai B'rith educational campaign is to preserve democracy and to accentuate American principles."

Attorney N. M. Katz, chairman of the B'nai B'rith ninetieth anniversary celebration, was to be the main speaker at a luncheon in Kaufmann's dining room at noon today.

He was to talk on Professor Max Kohler's brochure: "The United States and German Jewish Persecutions—Precedents for Popular and Governmental Action." Samuel Krimsley will be chairman.

Speakers on the "Students' Night" program to be presented in the Y. M. and W. H. A. tomorrow night include Dr. Asher Isaacs, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. J. E. Rosenberg, Duquesne University; Dr. Keith Sward, Pennsylvania College for Women, and Dr. Nathan Miller, Carnegie Tech.

I. A. Melnick is chairman of the affair, which will be held under the auspices of Aleph Zadeck Aleph.

150 Texans Dine On Snake Meat

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 12.—(AP.)—One pound of "choice cooked rattlesnake" was fed in small portions to more than 150 persons attending the spring opening of a reptile garden here today.

Led by Harvey Dunbar, veteran snake eater, and Jack Davenport and John Dowdle, whose business it is to feed snakes, the audience allowed curiosity to overrule prejudice and ate snake, which it declared "delicious."

Pastor Falls Dead Reading Scripture

CLEVELAND, March 12.—(AP.)—The Rev. Paul G. Moritz, minister of the Immanuel Evangelical Church, fell dead yesterday during the reading of the scripture lesson in the Sunday school session of his church in Shaker Heights. Death was pronounced due to heart disease.

Mr. Moritz had been pastor of the church 10 years, coming to Cleveland from Independence, Mo. Surviving are his wife, two sons and a daughter.

Former Empress Attends Ill Brother

PARIS, March 12.—(AP.)—A bulletin issued by three doctors from the bedside of Prince Sixte de Bourbon-Parme, brother of the former Empress Zita of Hungary, described his condition as "desperate" today.

The bulletin stated the Prince was suffering from a severe heart affliction. The former Empress, who came last night from Brussels, was in constant attendance upon her brother. The Prince is 67.

Body of Farmer Sought in River

KITTANNING, Pa., March 12.—(AP.)—A fleet of rowboats covered the Allegheny river below the Ford City bridge today as men with grappling irons searched for the body of Walter J. Green.

Green, a North Buffalo township farmer, disappeared Saturday. His automobile with a door open was found on the bridge and police expressed the belief he jumped into the river.

FURTHER exploration convinces Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President, that the slums of San Juan, in Porto Rico, are a little worse than any in New York.

She walked through narrow, muddy streets among "naked children, squealing pigs, and prancing gamecocks," the last with steel needle-like spurs fastened over the stumps of their real spurs, furnishing the popular amusement.

OUR CONDEMNATION of people interested in the best fighting rooster is uncalled for, since our own interest is largely in the horse that can run faster, or the prizefighter that can hit harder.

The simple fact is that the human race, so close to the atomic age, has no excuse outside of scientific discovery, for calling itself civilized. In itself it still represents barbarism.

What must the angels think of a race that shudders, formally, at a cock fight, and cannot make up its mind to abandon wholesale murder in war?

LODGES FEAR NAZI SEIZURE

BERLIN, March 12.—(AP.)—The arrest of Dr. Benno Walter, vice president of the Jewish Grand Lodge B'Nai Brith, brought apprehension today in Jewish circles that the government my dissolve all Jewish lodges in Germany, as it did the Free Masons.

Rumors of such a government act were circulating among Jewish lodges. They are reputed to possess considerable wealth and much real estate, thus enabling them to administer large funds for charity.

In event of dissolution, it was considered likely that both money and property would be confiscated by the Nazis.

Dr. Walter was arrested February 28 and was reported held at the Columbia House, which is a transfer station from headquarters to concentration camps and is exclusively run by storm troopers.

Jews pointed with irony to the fact that Walter was originally elected vice president of the lodge because he had no political affiliations. Walter has not been permitted to communicate with his friends. They do not know the nature of the charge against him.

Cousin of Pershing Stricken Fatally

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 12.—Lieut. Col. Edgar Jamison Pershing, Philadelphia attorney, and cousin of Gen. John J. Pershing, died at the City Hospital here yesterday following upon a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 59. Mrs. Leonora Farley Pershing, his wife, accompanied the body to Washington for burial. He also is survived by a brother, Dr. Paul Pershing, of Altoona, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. Elmer Taylor, of Blairsville, Pa.

THEFT ATTEMPT SNARES 2D BOY

The second of two youths police reported they surprised as the two were forcing their way into the Schlegel restaurant, 19 East South Diamond street, North Side, was arrested early today.

He said he was Francis Feeney, 19, of 1613 Magnolia street. He was implicated by Thomas Stelmak, 20, of 1303 Fontella street, who had been arrested at the scene when police threatened to shoot, according to the report.

The youths admitted entering 15 places in the North Side, the police said.

The officers were summoned to the restaurant by Mrs. Fred Good, of 15 East South Diamond street, who reported she heard a noise at her door. She operates the restaurant. Stelmak admitted he had attempted to enter her establishment, according to police.

THE HOUSE OF Schenley

WITH THE CONSEQUENT
10% INCREASED WAGES
to its thousands of workers in all its plants

With Schenley, the obligation of leadership is not concluded with the production of the finest quality products at fair prices.

We feel that our responsibility goes much deeper. The far-reaching effect of this great new industry is such that it influences the actual welfare and prosperity of our country.

When we have the opportunity of serving the public—such as was offered by the National Recovery Administration last week, we are most eager to grasp it. For we believe that the Administration's suggestion wholeheartedly carried out will speed general recovery.

We believe that the quality of any product is directly influenced by the degree of happiness and well-being of those entrusted with the production of it.

In rewarding our thousands of employees in all our plants with 10% shorter hours and a consequent 10% increase in wages effective Monday, March 12th, we are giving to every Schenley Product an added guarantee of conscientious workmanship and painstaking care. And so we have a double reason for being delighted at the opportunity to cooperate with the splendid suggestion of the National Recovery Administration.

One is a patriotic reason—increasing employment and purchasing power.

The second reason is a good business reason—to assure the production of the highest quality products that happy workers are capable of turning out.

CARNEGIE FUND BACKS LEAGUE ASSOCIATION

The Carnegie Endowment, headed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of New York, contributed $2,500 for Gen. Smuts' expenses.

That was only a short time after the endowment had paid $5,000 for the Elihu Root mission to Geneva. There the League Court formula, NOW before the United States Senate for ratification, was developed.

RATIFICATION GOAL

That ratification is the IMMEDIATE goal.

And League of Nations Association brings countless internationalists from other lands to lecture to women's clubs, civic and professional groups to make America MORE "INTERNATIONALLY MINDED."

In their propaganda the League Court proponents, both in and out of Dr. Butler's organization, stress that American Bar Association, composed of the nation's leading lawyers, has approved American membership.

How was this accomplished?

At the Atlantic City meeting of the bar association in 1931, a REFERENDUM on the Eighteenth Amendment was proposed. Three-fourths of the membership voted: 14,000 for repeal, 6,340 against.

Immediately this vote was announced, busy internationalists slipped through a League Court resolution.

THERE WAS NO REFERENDUM.

SIGNED BY FIVE

Dr. James Brown Scott, of Washington, chairman of the bar association committee on international law, presented the report which included approval of the League Court protocols.

Prof. Hudson had been revealed as a League of Nations paid employe.

John W. Davis, a leader of the American Foundation, under the direction of Miss Esther Lape and financed by a $2,000,000 grant from the late Edward Bok, works ably with the Carnegie Endowment's propaganda machine in behalf of the League Court.

This trio DOMINATES the committee's policy.

WAR VET HEADS OPPOSE LEAGUE

Enthusiasm today greeted circulation of petitions by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers protesting against the participation of the United States in the League of Nations and its World Court.

Many signed petitions, clipped from the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, were received today by the League Court Editor. The petition is published in an adjoining column and readers who oppose this country's entrance into the League of Nations and its World Court are asked to sign.

Co-operating in the movement by which Hearst newspapers hope to obtain 1,000,000 signatures are Otto F. Messner, Pennsylvania State Commander of the American Legion, Henry Grab, Pennsylvania Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Thomas McCaw, Commander of the Legion in Ohio; Guy M. Norton, Ohio head of the V. F. W. and Stanley C. Hamrie, West Virginia State Adjutant of the American Legion, and Creed Conley, state commander of the V. F. W. in West Virginia.

The time for protest is short. A hearing on the participation of the United States in the League of Nations and its World Court is scheduled in the Senate March 23. If you want to keep your country out of foreign wars sign the petition today.

Sculptor Receives Rank of Chevalier

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—Rudulph Evans, the sculptor, was notified yesterday he had been tendered the rank of chevalier of the French Legion of Honor. He is the third generation of his family to receive the honor.

Evans' statue of Robert E. Lee is in the Capitol at Richmond, Va. For the Pan-American Building in Washington he has made statues of Gen. Bolivar and Gen. Miranda.

Infant Acrobat Turns Somersault

MANCHESTER, N. H.—(INS.)—Although Alcide Therrien, Jr., is only 11 months old, he is quite an acrobat. The infant, who weighs 27 pounds, can balance himself on his father's outstretched hand, turn somersaults on the floor, somersault before landing if dropped from mid-air and do other stunts.

Mr. Hearst Discusses Foreign Policy

with those welching nations which repudiated their honest debts.

We would not have had the backs of our own people broken with the weight of war taxation.

We would not have had depression and disturbance and popular discontent in our own country.

We would not have had the threat of Communism and Socialism and Fascism and every other visionary "ism" which menaces the sound and practical democracy we have enjoyed in safety and satisfaction ever since our nation was born.

I CANNOT help a slight sardonic smile when I think that under the inspired leadership of President Wilson, apostle of the doctrine of international interference, we went into the World War to make the world safe for democracy.

And the one most notable thing that the war accomplished was to destroy democracy throughout the world and to enthrone high handed despotism everywhere.

You may call autocracy Communism, or Fascism or State Socialism or whatever you please, it is still despotism, founded on class control or personal ambition, and built with the stones which have crumbled from the ruined temples of liberty and democracy.

Democracy is dead in Europe, and can only be reborn in the turmoil and travail of revolution.

Let the United States mind its own business and preserve its historic policies, lest the disaster which has fallen to so much of the world fall upon us also.

IT IS difficult to discuss Mr. Stimson diplomatically. He was the opposite, the antithesis of Washington in size and in statesmanship.

Washington believed in the United States keeping free from foreign entanglements.

Stimson believed in projecting the nation into every foreign entanglement which offered an opportunity for publicity.

Washington believed in our minding our own business.

Stimson was essentially a busybody. His was the maiden aunt order of statesmanship.

He knew exactly how to raise everybody's else political progeny, although he was politically sterile himself.

The Stimson doctrine was the doctrine of impudent and unjustifiable interference in other people's affairs.

That doctrine, prior to the advent of Wilson, always had been rejected by our people and our government, and should continue to be repudiated.

I AM further in favor of the United States minding its own business as regards the League of Nations.

The League and the League Court are purely European political bodies, constructed to compel other nations to conform to the advantages and dictates of the dominant European nations.

The United States has no more business in either or both of these selfish European political organizations than Japan has.

Our nation and your nation do not want to regulate the affairs of Europe: And we do not want Europe to regulate our affairs.

We are both independent nations, benefiting by our independence.

Let us mind our own business with regard to Europe, and let us mind our own business with regard to each other.

Let us BE independent nations, with self respect and mutual respect, while AS independent nations we labor for peace, progress and prosperity for ourselves and for the world.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Europe Fears Another 'Sarajevo' May Upset Peace—Knickerbocker

Editor's Note—"Will another Sarajevo Come?" Europe asks, says H. R. Knickerbocker in the twenty-fifth article of his series "Will War Come." It is the one thing statesmen fear most, he writes, as it is the one thing that cannot be predicted or provided against.

SARAJEVO, March 12.—(INS.)—How do wars start? They start almost never by design.

"A Sarajevo is what I fear," said one of the greatest statesmen in Europe to the question:

"Will War Come?"

What did the statesman mean by "a Sarajevo?"

Today on the corner of King Peter street, once called Francis Ferdinand street, and the Quay Voevode Stepe Obala, that runs past the Miljacka river, a brone tablet is riveted to the wall above the show-window of a dusty little general store.

The bronze tablet in Serbian characters read:

"At this place Gavril Princip proclaimed liberty June 28, 1914,"

Twenty years ago a boy who lacked one month of being twenty, sat in the little wine shop "Cemiz Vinara," just 80 paces from this corner and drank sliwowitz. Today the wineshop is full of customers in fezes, drinking sliwowitz. That day 20 years ago the boy was the only customer. Everybody else was crowding the sidewalks. Gavril Princip wainted.

At 10 o'clock he joined the crowd, walked down to the corner where the bronze tablet now stands, and got a place at the curb. From up the quay came the sound of an explosion. An automobile bearing a man and a woman dashed down the quay at top speed. The boy shivered, made a convulsive movement of his right hand in his coat pocket.

Archduke, Consort Slain by Youth

Too late! The automobile had passed. It bore the Arch-Duke Francis Ferdinand and his consort to the City Hall. There the heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne paused just long enough to fling in the face of the cowering Mayor: "You've received me cordially! With bombs! Wounded my adjutant!" then, to the chauffeur: "Get on! Back to my adjutant!"

The chauffeur misunderstood. Instead of speeding straight on down the quay, he jammed on the brakes at the corner of King Peter street, and swinging close to the curb in order to make the turn into the narrow thoroughfare, brought the car around at a walking pace within arm's length of the boy who had been drinking sliwowitz in the Cemiz Vinara.

Perhaps one can say the chauffeur, whose name has not been recorded in history, started the World War. Gavril Princip was no expert pistol shot. He never could have hit a speeding car. With his pistol almost touching the archduke he fired twice and afterward said he never intended to hit the archduchess. They both died before Princip's revolver stopped smoking.

Today in Sarajevo can be found a little known pamphlet that contains the last words of Princip. It consists of the notes made by the Austrian physician, Dr. Pappenheim, in talks with Princip in prison. For never was youthful political fanaticism more dramatically revealed in its purity, futility and tragedy. Europe today is bursting with the same emotions.

Assassin Spared From Gallows

Princip was mortally sick when he talked with Dr. Pappenheim, in June, 1916. The curious red-tape of Austrian justice had saved him from the gallows, for the death penalty could only be applied to persons above twenty years old, and he lacked a month of twenty. The red-tape did not, however, save his life . . . He had been beaten so badly by the police and kept in such foul quarters that he eventually died.

His conversation was in broken German. "Father 54, mother 45. Two brothers. Father didn't drink. I was head of my class. Austrian professors treated me badly. Read many books, Anarchist, Socialist, Nationalist. Never talked much, fell in love. Ideal love. Never kissed her. Always thought of her. Never wrote her.

"Our ideal, all students' ideal: Union of Jugoslav people: Serbians, Croats, Slovenes, but not under Austria. Thought if we brought Austria in difficult position, revolution would come.

"Never thought war would come. Could not think such a World War would break out on account of such a thing. Thought World War might break out some time, but not then.

"Thought would be just revolution.

"Have heard tragic thing. That Serbia exists no more."

The time was 1916. Serbia had just been wiped out by the German armies. The entire nation, fighting every step of the way, had been driven out, literally out of the country. Princip was denied all books, and never saw a newspaper, but when this happened his jailors told him of it.

Youth Sees Sacrifice Made in Vain

"All, all is destroyed," he cried to the physician.

"Everything I lived for. Everything I made my ideal. My Serbian people!"

"Can't feel guilty. Could not know. World War would have come anyway.

"Motive: Revenge, love, liberty! Liberty! My Serbian people!"

Princip was not demented. He was an exceptionally intelligent boy. Up on one of the hills that surround Sarajevo a mass grave, decked with slabs of stone, is buried the body of Princip, brought back from the Austrian prison where he died, with the bodies of nine other members of his revolutionary organization.

The dates on the stone are memorable. He died April 28, 1918. He died believing his Serbian people had been crushed forever. Just eight months later, on December 1, 1918, the Jugoslavian state was formed. Between the shots he fired on June 28, 1914, and the last that fell on November 11, 1918, 10 million men had died. Liberty did come to his people, but at what price. Today the fanaticisms of Europe are at least as strong as in 1914.

Will another Sarajevo come?

It is the one thing that statesmen in Europe fear most today. It is the one thing that cannot be predicted, cannot be provided against. There are at least three heads of states in Europe today whose sudden death might bring catastrophe to all the western world. All three of them are surrounded by police to an extent hardly known in the past.

Police Protection Fails Royalty

But the history of assassinations has shown that no police protection can avail against a man willing to give up his own life for the life of the man he is after. In Imperial Russia the social revolutionaries got every man they wanted. When in secret council they condemned a czar, a grand-duke, or a governor to death the sentence was as good as the czar's own.

Against political fanaticism the only plans of men are helpless. Until the raging nationalism that today divides Europe subsides or settles into disciplined forms, Europe cannot be safe from disaster and no prediction on the prospects of war or peace can be made without "barring a Sarajevo."

Today in Sarajevo three Jugoslav soldiers, tall, brown, lean-faced, stop and read the inscription on the corner where "the war started." "Proclaimed liberty!" They are the only persons in sight. It is a Mohammedan holiday and Sarajevo, half-Moslem, is quiet. The only sound is the rippling of the water in the river, and the clang of the soldiers' boots as they turn and walk away.

MET STARS SOB WHILE CARUSO SINGS AGAIN

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—The voice of Caruso soared once again last night from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera.

It was a tribute to the great Neapolitan tenor in the fiftieth anniversary surprise party at the "Met," the one serious note in a night of satire and hilarity.

The house was darkened. The gold curtains slowly parted. A faint spot shone on the stage, grew brighter, disclosed a bass drum, the clown's cap and robe—the ones used by Caruso many a time on the same stage in "Pagliacci."

Then the great voice, in the diabolic laugh, the softness, the rise to the heights—in "Vesti la Giubba."

SOBS END APPLAUSE

The song was ended. The spot dimmed. The curtains closed. For a moment there was a scattering of applause. But it quickly melted into silence. Then there were a few sobs, many were the eyes that glistened.

Down in the front row, an honor guest dabbed at her face with her handkerchief. She was Geraldine Farrar. Many were the times in the old days she and Caruso brought the house down.

For the tribute, the Metropolitan had made a special recording from the master record of the song, played it on a phonograph behind a darkened curtain.

All else during the night was laughter.

And the hit scene was "She Knew What She Wanted," a satire on that jade from Judea—Salome.

HEROD PHONES FOR SALOME

Herod sits in his court and telephones John the Baptist to send Salome up from the cistern. Salome appears, dances. Huge Lauritz Melchior, the Wagnerian tenor, danced the role. He cavorted, rolled and plunged about in the "Dance of the Seven Veils."

"What will you have, Saly, old girl?"

Another snappy scene was one of the gay nineties, a day in Central Park. Rosa Ponselle, Gladys Swarthout, Frederick Jagel and Virgilio Lazzarri ride their bicycles round and round as they sing the quartet from "Martha."

There were Romeo and Juliet interpreted in the best modern style by Charles Hacket and Lillian Clark, the young American soprano, who made her debut this year. Juliet is a bit incensed over Romeo's way of making love. It seems he's the big-shot racketeer from out West. Juliet calls for her hangers-on. They "mop him up" with a machine gun.

ACTRESS, WIFE OF BOWES, DIES

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—Margaret Illington, one of the leading dramatic actresses of the country 25 years ago, died yesterday in Miami Beach, Fla. She was 52 years old.

She was the wife of Maj. Edward J. Bowes, managing director of the Capitol Theater, New York, who was at her bedside when she died. She had been seriously ill for six weeks.

Miss Illington, who was born in Bloomington, Ill., made her stage debut in New York in 1900 in "The Pride of Jennico," supporting James K. Hackett. Later she appeared with E. H. Sothern in "If I Were King." Her greatest successes, however, were "Kindling," "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," "The Thief" and "A Good Bad Woman," with which she closed her career in 1919.

She also appeared in London in "The Lion and the Mouse."

She married Daniel Frohman, her first manager, in 1903, and was divorced seven years later. Several days after the divorce was granted she married Maj. Bowes, who directed her stage career until she retired.

STEAMER SINKS IN OHIO RIVER

The steamer Reliance sank in the Ohio River below Beaver yesterday after her side timbers were cracked by a submerged boat.

The boat, piloted by Capt. George Smith, was towing empty barges when the bar was struck. The skipper piloted the craft to shallow waters before it sank. It settled in four feet of water.

To her assistance came the steamer J. D. Ayres. She was pumped out and was able to return to the Dravo drydock under her own steam.

...uxiliary to Hold 10th Anniversary

CHARITY NUN CANONIZED

VATICAN CITY, March 12.—(AP.)—Blessed Luisa de Marillac, co-founder of the Daughters of Charity, yesterday was raised to the sainthood already attributed to her earthly associate, Father Vincent de Paoli, in Vatican ceremonies.

Pilgrims from many nations thronged to St. Peter's for the ceremonies, over which Pope Pius XI presided.

The Daughters of Charity, founded by Saint Vincent and Saint Luisa in Paris in 1633, has 4,000 chapters, run by 40,000 nuns, in virtually every corner of the earth.

North American chapter houses are in St. Louis and Normandy, Mo., Emmitsburg and Baltimore, Md., Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Niagara Falls, N. Y., Santa Barbara, Cal., Chicago, and New Orleans.

Cheers from the pilgrims of many of the American cities echoed in St Peter's as the Pope began the ceremonies by entering on his portable throne.

Prison World Held Similar to Outside

Dr. G. I. Giardini, psychologist at Western Penitentiary, yesterday told the Social Problems Forum that psychologists have found that populations in most American prisons are just about a fair sample of the population outside. He spoke in the Y. M. & W. H. A.

He explained prison routine and methods used in an effort to rehabilitate prisoners before their return to the outside world.

Pastor Beginning 8th Year, Honored

Pastor's day was observed yesterday in the Bellevue Christian Church as a tribute to the Rev. Frank G. Helme, who began his eighth year as minister there. In another month he will have served the longest period of any minister in the 38 years of the congregation's history.

CRIME MENACE TO BE TAUGHT PUPILS HERE

With a 19-year-old South Hills High School senior in jail on a charge of slaying a state highway patrolman, high school pupils of Pittsburgh are to be given a course in "The Menace of Crime."

Crime doesn't pay they are told in a pamphlet, on facts, cost and means of preventing law-breaking, prepared by R. O. Hughes, assistant director of curriculm study.

He points out:

"If it can be driven home to weak-minded or easily tempted people that crime does not pay, there will be much less of it.

"Though temporarily, criminals may succeed in holdups, burglaries and even murder, one who attempts to make his living by crime is almost invariably brought to account sooner or later.

STRESSES DANGER

"Those who are engaged in criminal practices are in danger not only of being caught by the regular public officials, but from their own fellow-criminals who do not hesitate to kill in order to conceal evidence or to put out of business some competitor who might interfere with their own dishonest game.

"A large part of the unsolved murders are those of persons who were known to be engaged in unlawful business and who in all probability were killed by fellow criminals.

"A young man who has tried criminal life and seen the folly of it has described it in a book which he entitles 'You Can't Win.'"

The course of crime is suggested to be taught in one class a week for four weeks.

MURDER RATE HIGH

Murders in the United States, the pamphlet asserts, are committed at the rate of 8.4 for each 100,000 persons compared with Italy, 3.6; England, .8; Japan, .8; Ontario, .5, and Switzerland .2.

Delay in punishment of criminals' corrupt politics, movies that picture criminals as heroes and newspapers that give extensive and startling descriptions of crimes and criminals" are mentioned as among the conditions responsible fo rexistence of crime.

Meanwhile Thomas A. Davis, Jr., accused of shooting to death State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger, last September, is in jail awaiting trial on a murder charge. Fond of the languages, he has sent for his Spanish and Latin books.

CHURCH HOLDS ANNIVERSARY

Members of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Boggs avenue, Mt. Washington, are holding a series of festive services this week in celebration of the church's fiftieth anniversary. A birthday pageant, stressing the importance of the Sunday school in the church's organization opened the week's services last night.

Wednesday evening the Rev. David F. Schultz, pastor, will address the congregation during the mid-week Lenten meditation.

On Friday, in conjunction with the Pittsburgh Lutheran Ministerial Conference of the American Lutheran Church, honor will be paid the first pastor, the Rev. Adolph Ebert. This day will mark the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination and installation as pastor of Zion.

Two of Rev. Ebert's sons will take part in the services. The Rev. Otto Ebert, of Christ Lutheran Church, Columbus, O., will speak at the service in honor of his father. A second son, the Rev. Prof. Edgar Ebert, of Capital University, Columbus, O., will conduct the concluding service of the festivities Sunday morning.

SCOUT RESCUES FUME VICTIM

The Boy Scout knowledge of a 17-year-old Mt. Lebanon boy was reported by firemen as responsible for saving the life of P. W. Barnes, 45, of 34 Altadena drive, Mt. Lebanon.

The boy, Jay Linn, of 36 Altadena drive, answered the cries of Mrs. Barnes when she discovered her husband had been overcome by carbon monoxide fumes in the garage after the doors had blown shut while he was repairing his automobile.

Jay and Mrs. Barnes dragged the man to the yard, where Jay started to use artificial respiration on Barnes, also instructing Mrs. Barnes to call firemen, who answered the call, bringing an inhalator. After working half an hour, firemen, directed by Dr. J. M. Johnston, of 721 Washington road, and Fire Chief James Wood, removed Barnes to bed, where he was ordered to rest a few days.

COURT ORDER CONVENES MEET

Three hundred and twenty-four delegates from 37 states gathered in Pittsburgh today to attend the third special convention of the National Slovak Society, held as a result of a court order made by Judge Thomas Marshall, of the Common Pleas Court, last fall. At the sessions, to be held all week at the national headquarters, 516-518-520 Court place, the chief matter for discussion will be the proposal to extend a vote of confidence to the present officers.

Judge Marshall ordered the special convention after protests were made before him stating that the present officers had infringed the by-laws of the organization by purchasing the Hobart Street Apartments in September of 1931. According to the society's regulations, the group is allowed only to purchase such property as is necessary for its own use.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Girls Need Explanations From Mothers

REGINA wants to KNOW ALL ABOUT LIFE,
Nobody tells her anything she wants to know,
And EVERYTHING is so difficult for her.

She is afraid to go around and see the world for herself, For her mother has put fear into Regina's heart, by telling the story of the MOTH and the FLAME. And, like all human beings, Regina is all burnt up just to get a glimpse of that FLAME.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a girl of 18. And not allowed to have girl friends. I am not allowed to go to parties or dances or to shows. I have to sit at home and look at the FOUR WALLS all the time. Sometimes I get disgusted with myself and with everybody else, and feel desperate. Could you please help me! For you seem so wide awake and so unafraid.

Mother says I can't have boy friends. For I am too dumb to know how to take care of myself. She always says she doesn't want me LOAFING OUT because I will get into trouble. And yet she doesn't plan anything at home for me. When I try to get confidential with her, she shuts up like a clam.

Please tell me how to become more grown up. And how to talk to people I hope to meet. It's awfully touch to know as little as I do. I think mothers should give good advice to their girls. Don't you agree, Miss Brunot! Please answer soon.

REGINA.

I am all for you, Regina. Even to the desire in you for LOAFING OUT. And I agree entirely that your mother should crack that clam shell about her, and come right into the open with you. It is natural for you to crave companionship, just as it is natural for water to flow down hill. Self sufficiency only comes with experience. We are all timid souls when we are not used to contact with the world. And FOUR WALLS surely can make a prison for anyone if you have to stay within them when you don't want to.

TIMES DIFFERENT

Now I am going to JUMP RIGHT ON YOUR MOTHER.

Don't you think it is time for you to move from your Victorian position? That nice fat queen of England died at the dawn of this century, and her son, Edward, took her place and the warmth of his personality and the fire of his ways are still causing young Britishers to spring into action.

Everyone reads something or other these days. We can't help it. It is thrust upon us, even if by headlines in the news. And if you aren't careful, Hemmingway and Anderson and such modernists may get in their work with your little Regina.

Heavens, your daughter has even been reading MISS BRUNOT. Didn't you realize that might be an outlet for her. All is lost, now, but the possible chance of young Lochinvar riding past on the asphalt and seeing Regina peeping from behind the curtains. At least that is what you always have expected. For you haven't considered that waving white plumes and black chargers have been replaced by derby hats and automobiles.

The young man of today parks his car not any too near to the arc lights, and says: "Come on Regina, let's kiss and make up." And that kiss is as liable to lead your daughter to the altar as was your husband's asking for your hand over the garden wall.

But what is a sure thing, is that no modern young man is looking for a girl who is DUMB. This generation is a wise one. No old time pitfalls for them. Common sense, the great open space alloted to them. These two things have cleared away many hindrances for them.

PASTIME OF YOUTH

You also are a staunch believer in "like mother, like daughter." And yet it may not be so in the case of Regina. She had another side of the house to inherit from, you know.

Going out and enjoying one's self is not LOAFING. And you know better. But you also knew it would frighten Regina. The word sounded coarse, and your daughter did not want to be that. LOAFING OUT is part of the pastime of youth. And if it isn't, then why did you do it yourself, some 20 years back?

Having companions of her own age, dances, parties, the movies, these are the open sesames of life for the young.

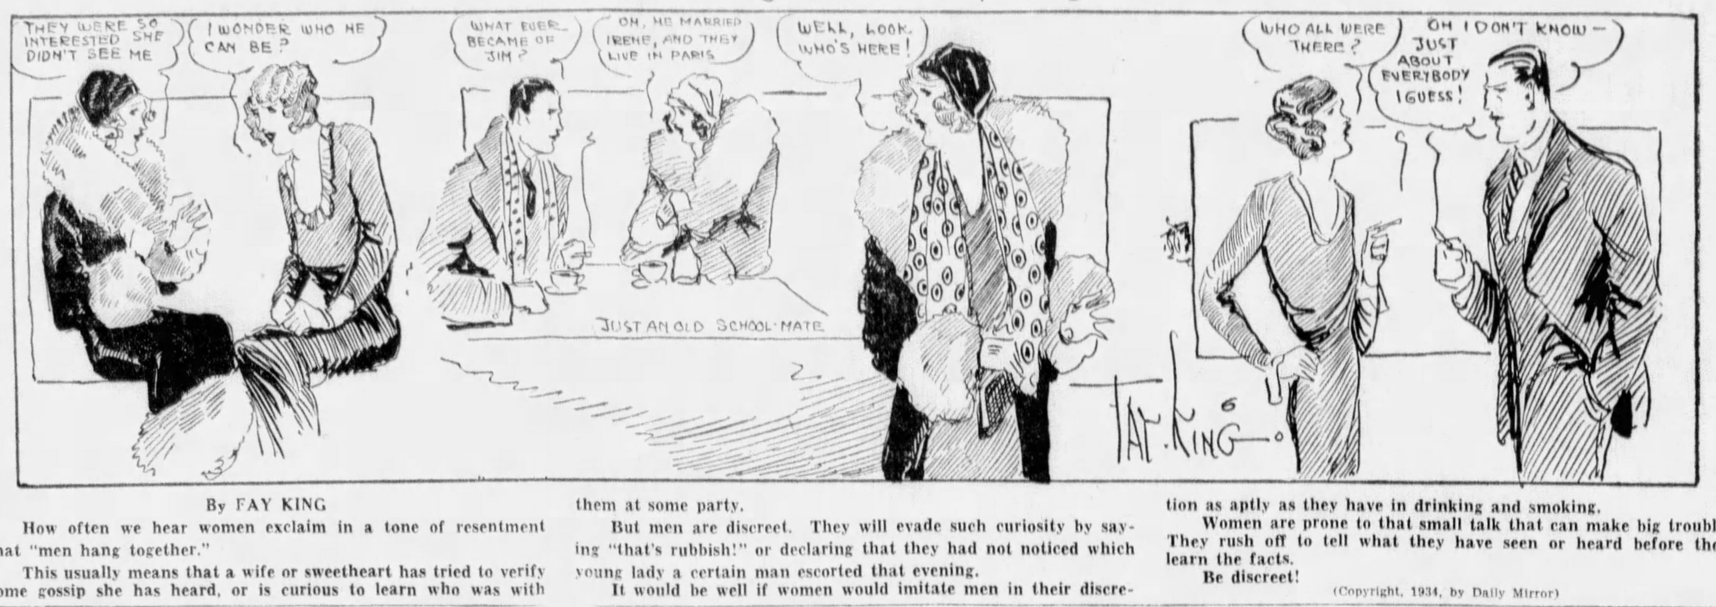
You are a tyrant, sister, whenever you stand between the world and any other human being, even though she be your own child.

You save and stint for Regina. You intend leaving her anything material you have when you die. Why don't you, then, while you are still living, give her the benefit of what you know about life?

Experience, no matter if it comes with tears, is better than staying within FOUR WALLS.

And sister, take my warning, Regina is going to LOAF OUT. Some time or other she'll break over the traces. So why aren't you one step ahead of her in letting her go?

Be Discreet and Avoid Big Trouble, Fay King Advises Women



By FAY KING

How often we hear women exclaim in a tone of resentment that "men hang together."

This usually means that a wife or sweetheart has tried to verify some gossip she has heard, or is curious to learn who was with them at some party.

But men are discreet. They will evade such curiosity by saying "that's rubbish!" or declaring that they had not noticed which young lady a certain man escorted that evening.

It would be well if women would imitate men in their discretion as aptly as they have in drinking and smoking.

Women are prone to that small talk that can make big trouble. They rush off to tell what they have seen or heard before they learn the facts.

Be discreet!

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Lee Chow Bolts Library Door

For a petrified instant after Lee Chow's suave query, I stood motionless and speechless. How had he found out that I had been talking to my father in the library, next to the little study where I had left him? Or was he simply making a shrewd guess?

Of one thing I was certain, and the knowledge gave me courage. He could not possibly have overheard a word we were saying, or even an intonation which would permit him a conjecture as to the subject of our conversation. The method of talking from the side of the mouth, which criminals and their detectors use, and which I learned from my father and Lillian during my apprenticeship to them in the war-time secret service, makes speech inaudible an incredibly short distance away, or can it be interpreted by lip reading.

There was but one answer to be made and I made it promptly, and with as plausible an air of carelessness as I could muster.

"I always consider myself fortunate in finding my father," I said easily. "Indeed, I am always sure of finding him waiting for me if I am out of the house. He likes to feel that I am safely indoors before he goes to sleep. I suppose some daughters would be terribly bored by having what they might call a fussy father, but I like it. More than that, I love the thought, and him for cherishing it."

FINDS DOOR LOCKED

I had spoken with the sincerity I always feel when discussing my father's care for me, and I wondered if I were mistaken that the inscrutable face of the Chinese had relaxed ever so little. When he spoke, I began to hope that he had taken my explanation at its face value.

"He is a good father," he said, then added, "Is he still waiting up for you?"

"Oh, no," I replied quickly, feeling that the occasion justified the falsehood. "He went down the hall just as I came in here."

That part of my statement was true, at least, I told myself, and Lee Chow nodded.

"No one else is likely to disturb us?" he asked. "The servants—"

"Will not come in this part of the house again tonight," I told him truthfully. "They have enough to do to get the kitchen cleared up, and they will go to bed directly afterward. No, we are perfectly safe from intrusion."

He rose and bowed to me, then walked toward the door communicating with the library.

"I should like to look into the next room, if you do not mind," he said. "Someone might have decided to read a bit before going to bed."

He put his hand upon the latch, then turned to me with a creditable assumption of casual surprise.

"It is locked," he said, and I wondered how many seconds after my departure from the room he had waited to try that door the first time.

"Yes, I generally keep it locked," I returned lightly. "This is my sanctum sanctorum, you know, and I try to keep it free from intrusion. But I always carry a key in every bag I possess, even my evening one, so I can unlock it for you in a trice."

PURPOSELY LOSES KEY

I took the key from my bag and, going up to him, bent and unlocked the door and threw it open. Lee Chow, with a bow and a muttered apology, went past me and walked through the room, scrutinizing every corner of it. Pausing only to take the key from the lock. I followed him, dangling the key conspicuously. As he, apparently satisfied, turned back toward the little room, I pretended to catch my foot against an old-fashioned floor grating through which the furnace heat comes up and, stumbling, dropped the key, which fell far below, with a little tinkle of metal.

"Oh, how stupid of me!" I said, "But it really doesn't matter tonight, and I have other keys to this door."

"No, it really does not matter," Lee Chow repeated, "except that I want to make sure there are no eavesdroppers, intended or by chance, to our conversation, so I know you will not mind my doing this."

He walked across the room as he spoke, to the door leading from the library into the hall, and shot its old-fashioned bolt into place.

"There!" he said. "Now we are safe from intrusion, as far as this room is concerned. But let us go back to the other and cozier room. It lends itself better to confidential communications, and I shall sit far enough from the hall door so that no one outside can possibly hear me. It is this room of which I am afraid."

Hints for the Household

When cold potatoes are left over, mash them well, add any dry cheese (grated), mix with a well-beaten egg, season to the taste and mold into rissoles. Fried a golden brown, these are an ideal light supper dish.

Mildew on linen can often be removed if covered with lemon and salt and left all night. Wash out the stained part in a little milk and leave in the sun to dry. Then wash in the usual way.

The juice of a ripe tomato is excellent for removing ink and other stains from white clothes. Cover the stain with the juice and leave on for some hours before washing in the ordinary way.

Contract Bridge

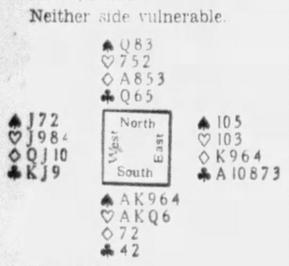
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Partnership Bidding—and a Safety Play

Hand No. 1 of the World Bridge Olympic, held on February 1 of this year, brought out lessons in both bidding and play. The bidding lesson is that the responding hand, with few high cards and indifferent distribution, should respect his partner's strong bidding and carry him to game on the basis of the slightest additional values. The play of the hand then involves a very simple safety play.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1 N T	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠ (1)	Pass
4 ♠ (2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Despite the fact that North has previously shown no particular strength South's hand is so big that he is still interested in reaching game. However, he is not strong enough to bid four himself.

2—Despite the fact that his hand is a pretty indifferent looking sight, North must realize that he has previously indicated no specific strength to his partner. His notrump response merely showed the possession of little over one honor-trick, and the two-spade bid merely showed a preference. Since South is still interested in reaching game North must contract for it on the basis of holding adequate trump support and an Ace rather than a King-Knave or a King and a Queen in the side suits.

In the play of the hand South should employ a very common safety play, using the trump suit and a side suit. There are three minor suit losers in the hand and South must therefore avoid the loss of a heart trick. After drawing two rounds of trump South should realize that if the hearts do not break, a heart trick will be lost as there is no possible discard. South accordingly plays out his hearts before drawing the last trump, hoping that if the hearts break 4-2 the player who holds the long heart holds the remaining trump also. Since this happens to be the case, South fulfills his contract by ruffing the fourth heart in Dummy, and East cannot over-ruff. If South draws all the trumps first, the hand cannot be made.

TOMORROW'S HAND

If North is playing the contract of five clubs, what play should East make after winning the first trick with the spade King?

West, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Guests First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When we entertain another couple in our home, my husband always helps the other lady first to anything he may be passing around, such as drinks, cigarets and so forth, which I think is correct in his capacity as host. But, if we are out having dinner at a restaurant, is it then proper for my husband to offer the other lady a cigaret first and then offer one to me? I think that in public he should help his wife first.

CONSTANT READER.

In public places too, the same rule of hospitality holds . . . that your husband would serve first the woman guest. You are, under these circumstances, hostess in the restaurant as you are in your own home, and therefore you would wish your guest to be served first.

Wedding Guest List

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A marriage took place recently, to which only the immediate families of the bride and groom were invited. Now A claims that the aunts of the bride should have been invited, whereas B claims that they should not have been present as the aunts and uncles of the groom were not invited. Will you please advise me what you think of this situation?

ANXIOUS.

Since the limiting of the guests was the same for both families, it was the fair thing not to invite the aunts of the bride. If the circle of guests had been increased to include the aunts of the bride, the aunts of the groom should have been invited also.

Where does your money go?

For food and clothing, general living expenses and entertainment—and taxes. Much in the same manner the revenue of a Utility Company such as ours goes for operating expenses, general maintenance and new construction, wages—yes and taxes. Many have the mistaken idea that Utilities, particularly in Pennsylvania, do not pay taxes . . . to the contrary our companies paid a total of $2,235,536.88 in 1933. While it is true that Pennsylvania Utilities do not pay taxes on real estate used in public service, even that exemption does not fully apply to our companies . . . we do pay taxes on the Philadelphia Building, our central office . . . $92,337.95 in real estate tax, $66,682.82 school tax paid to the City of Pittsburgh is included in $326,438.57 paid by the Philadelphia Company to local municipalities in 1933. In this year also we paid $1,170,669.10 to the State of Pennsylvania, $295,381.99 to the State of West Virginia, and $50,000 towards taxes assessed against our security holders in various states. In addition $393,047.22 was paid by our companies to the Federal Government, in taxes of various descriptions. More and more of your utility dollar is being consumed by taxes . . . as customers of a public utility company, it is your money which goes to pay these taxes. Furthermore additional tax increases are continually being enacted and proposed . . . the Federal 3% tax on commercial and domestic revenues will cost the Duquesne Light Company alone $500,000 a year. A further increase of 2½% tax is being levied on the net income of every group of affiliated companies such as ours, filing an income tax under one head. Other State and Federal taxes are being contemplated which will subject our companies to further tax expenditures of approximately $675,000 per year. Consider the taxes paid by these companies for the past five years . . . $13,226,157.73 . . . certainly an impressive amount . . . figures which plainly indicate that taxes are a vital factor and must be considered in establishing rates to be charged for public utility service.

TWO SOCIETIES JOIN IN TEXT CONTEST

By KENNETH M. ELLIS

Half a million persons a day!

That's the stride being taken today in America's effort to secure adequate expression of its national ideals in a 600-word epic to be carved forever in stone!

Yesterday it was announced that four million women were being urged to take up their pens and strive to write their country's story in the nation-wide competition sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers.

Today 300,000 Camp Fire Girls must be added to that roster—and 200,000 members of the Catholic Daughters of America!

PLAN INNER CONTESTS

These new groups are planning "interior competitions" to clear their winning texts through the local committees of their particular competition territory.

And to the strength of the local committees during the last 48 hours more than a dozen more noted university heads have lent their active co-operation.

In Texas, the Very Rev. Alfred H. Rabe, president of St. Mary's University of San Antonio; the Rev. H. A. Constantineau, president of Our Lady of the Lake College, and Dr. W. W. Jackson, presidnet of Westmoorland College, took similar steps.

BOARD TAKES ACTION

In Detroit the Board of Education passed resolutions urging pupils and teachers to push the competition vigorously.

And other national organizations, public school systems and universities are getting ready to launch their best thought at the target of Mount Rushmore—high in the Black Hills of South Dakota, where Gutzon Borglum is waiting — impatiently, too! — to carve in 13-foot letters of living granite — America's 600-word opinion of itself!

Remember, this is not a competition to secure the fanciest piece of imagery possible! That would defeat the very purpose of any message to posterity! It wouldn't be clear to them at all! They might even do with it what a German translator of an American novel did, when he soberly made "That's the bunk!" read, in perfectly good German "That's the bed!" Be simple! Be direct! Be accurate!

SUBJECTS GIVEN

Stick to the nine subjects outlined by the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission as the basis of the text! They are the writing and making of the Declaration of Independence, the making and writing of the Constitution, the Louisiana purchase, the entry of Texas into the Union, the cession of the Floridas, the acquisition of California, the settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute, the purchase of Alaska and the cutting of the Panama Canal.

Within a very few days the Sun-Telegraph will begin the publication of a series of special articles on each of these nine subjects—each written by a great national authority, in order that you may have an adequate picture of America's development. Read the Sun-Telegraph every day. You cannot afford to miss one of these articles!

CALL WRESTLER IN SHOOTING

CINCINNATI, March 12.—(AP.)—A pistol fight that killed one man and wounded another critically prompted authorities to call Jack Reynolds, champion wrestler, and his wife to testify before a coroner's jury today.

After an affray in a restaurant, Philip Citron, malt store owner, was found dead and James Meyers, owner of the restaurant, wounded.

Detectives said Meyers told them:

"I shot Citron after he shot me."

A bartender said, however, that David Polinsky, friend of the wrestler, fired two shots at Meyers. Another bartender said that after Citron fell, Mrs. Reynolds seized a pistol and shouted, "I'll let him have it," apparently meaning Meyers.

Polinsky was held and the Reynolds are at liberty on charges of disorderly conduct. Reynolds is N. W. A. welterweight wrestling champion.

Minneapolis Jails 109 in Crime Drive

MINNEAPOLIS, March 12.—(AP.)—Police Chief Michael Johannes said 109 persons had been arrested in the beginning of a campaign to clean up crime conditions here.

Fifty-four raids were made by the police morals squad over the week-end. Most of those taken into custody were accused of gambling or illegal selling of liquor.

Ex-House Speaker Stricken in W. Va.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 12.—(AP.)—Stricken with a heart ailment, James Henry Strickling, 69, former Speaker of the West Virginia House of Representatives, died yesterday at his home in Huntington.

Strickling had suffered heart disease for several years. A Republican, he was Speaker of the House in the 1909 session.

SCHOOL LEADERS LAUD RUSHMORE CONTEST

Realization of the educational value of the Mount Rushmore National memorial inscription competition, sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers, was arousing school leaders today in urging students to participate throughout the tri-state district.

Separate units through which the students of each school would submit thetir entries were being set up. School superintendents and principals in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia schools were designating specific members to receive the entries. Instructions for appointment of committees in each school to judge the entries in their unit today were being prepared to guide the school heads.

Historical, patriotic and civic groups continued to laud the project. They urged the participation of adults and children alike. That too little thought and study is given to the historic progress of the nation was cited by Mrs. Eugene S. Gaskill, president of the Keystone Association for Historical Research. She said:

"This is a wonderful movement to stimulate the patriotic spirit of our people. We do lag behind in the study and interest of our country's history. This competition should arouse not alone the student but also the adult to the important steps in our growth."

Arthur's New Book To Be Introduced

A new book, "The Country Rambler," by Edmund W. Arthur, Pittsburgh author, will be brought out at the annual dinner of the Audubon Society in McCreery's dining room on March 24. Arthur formerly wrote articles on nature subjects for the Pittsburgh Sun.

South Hills Cast To Present Play

The South Hills Community Players will present "Berkley Square" in the Washington School auditorium, Mt. Lebanon, on four consecutive evenings, beginning Wednesday. Originally scheduled for presentation last week, the play was delayed by the illness of the director.

Hotel Guest's Body Sent to W. Va. Home

The body of C. E. Hunter, 60, who died in the Hotel Henry Saturday, was sent to his home in Charleston, W. Va., yesterday. Hunter, a former West Virginia highway commissioner, was discovered ill in his room by an hotel employe, who called a doctor. The house physician pronounced him dead of apoplexy.

PRAISES HUGE SCULPTURE

By WILLIAM WILLIAMSON
Member Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission.

The Mount Rushmore National Memorial is the greatest sculptural conception of any time or age. Its colossal size is emblematical of the great historical events that it typifies and idealizes as an inspirational piece of mountain portraiture.

It takes first rank and its beauty, dignity and strength is that of the gods. Mr. Hearst is performing a fine public service in making it better known.

LEHMAN LAUDS TEXT PLAN

By GOV. HERBERT H. LEHMAN
Of New York State.

Permit me to offer congratulations on the movement to have the inscription epitomizing the principal events of the history of America, that is to be carved on the face of Mount Rushmore, selected by means of a competition to be conducted through the Hearst newspapers.

It seems to be particularly fitting that such an inscription should come from the people themselves.

If an epic of America is to be created, I have always thought it would arise spontaneously from just such a source.

The idea is inherently fine, and with such a wide field from which to draw, I am convinced, cannot but further the ideals of good government and patriotism, which are and should always remain the heart of our great country.

Economist Will Be Thrift Week Speaker

A. Lawren Brown, economics analyst, of Chicago, and personnel director of Investors Syndicate, will speak on "The Blind Spot of Science" in Carnegie Lecture Hall next Monday night, the address being one of the features of Pittsburgh's participation in National Thrift Week.

He will speak before the student body of Pittsburgh Academy in the morning, and at Monessen High School in the afternoon, under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

Walter Winchell + ON BROADWAY +

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down A Few Notes.

Dear W.: Irene Beasley is doing a book called "Blues Singer." . . . Her version on the air the other night—"Smoke Gets, etc." was the best I've heard yet . . . One of the cutest tricks, by the way, is the new dancer at the Palais—named Edna Sedgwick—from Chicago—plenty sweet . . . E. Cantor opens at the Deauville Casino in Miami Beach for five days—turning over every penny of his wage to charity . . . And by all means get a platter of "Ill Wind," the new Cotton Club hit . . . A milk wagon driver in Yalesville (wherever that is!) is named Walter Winchell — so there! . . . Mady Christians of the Guild's show "Races" is not married to an American—but to a man in Europe . . . Gordon and Revel, who wrote "Did You Ever See a Dream, etc.?" almost drowned in the Pacific the other day off Catalina. Gallico did a grand piece on Gordon in Conde Nast's best mag . . . He said that when Gordon sings—his tonnage seems to melt down to a Crosby A dandy compliment.

Rubinoff isn't the Rubinoff who talks on the Cantor program, did you know that? . . . Imagine with his dialect—they have to hire someone with a funnier one, yet! . . . I understand that the greatest of the bird fanciers in the land is the President—good for "Things I Never Knew, etc" . . . Lou Holtz is such a scream at the Casino de Paree they are keeping him indefinitely—only for Sunday nights—sorry I missed the last two—they tell me the laughs were abundant and deafening . . . So crowded last Sunday, C. Vanderbilt, Jr., had to accept a table in the balcony! . . . Say, will you campaign for this? More serious, I think, than passing a red light for which you can get a ticket—is having license plates that nobody can read . . . So covered are they with dirt and mud.

There's a new gag being used around the Grand Central Terminal. A man with a small camera takes an "action" photo of you walking along the street, then hands you a card telling you how to buy it . . . And by the way—at "Men In White" right next to the doorman—a man keeps calling: "Buy your program here—no programs inside" . . . They cost 25 cents . . . Why? . . . An easy way to make a theatergoer mad, if you asked me . . . The speakeasies, or what there are of them—are practically in a coma—the big play going to the big four—Hollywood, Paradise, et al. . . . The gendarmes have already started to close up most of them . . . A rumor that has come in at least a dozen times probably isn't true, at all . . . About Harlow booking a room at a Philadelphia hospital . . . Why should she come to Philadelphia, you say? . . . Because, as they point out, that's where Libby Holman had hers.

I hear that W. C. Durant has retrieved his personal fortune and that market prices will tilt—and even if they do—I'm not interested . . . I meet too many people who once had money, who haven't any now . . . Jane Overtone is back in circulation—she's the Capitol Theatre dancer . . . One of the items I wish you had inserted in the Roosevelt of Radio pillar would be something like this: "Burning in oil of women announcers who say: 'Sahndwiches—vahce-versa—hahnd' and sō on." . . . How can people talk like that? . . . At Medical Arts, but I'm not certain—they have 62 nurses—all Canadians—what's the matter with the Yankee Doodlers? . . . One of the in-laws of the Goelets is telling this around the town—that one of the sons is an eccentric about money. . . . So after he has used up all his money for gas, etc., he stops his car wherever he is—puts his hat upside down next to him on the ground—and plays a mandolin. . . . Until the hat attracts enough money to get him home. . . . I liked Hershfeld's crack—"What's the use of worrying about what worries you—so long as it worries you?"

Is this your ninth or tenth year in metropolitan journalism? Martin Starr wants to know. . . . And Eli Hoffman says be it ever so humbug there's no place like Broadway. . . . What is that—news? . . . A local football team at a Kiwanis luncheon the other day gave these contributions to American idiom. . . . The remarks contained these: "It was entirely the team's credit and nobody else" . . . "And the next day when the papers come out, they reported" . . . "I will introduce a player which is" . . . And they criticise you, eh?

Saw "The House of Rothschild"—it is grand. The family should thank Darryl Zanuck plenty. Helen Westley is delightful in it, too . . . Virginia Moran, a Detroit society gel, will be a show girl at the Richman . . . What price glory or even a Pulitzer Prize? A newspaperman I know, who once won it (he was also an editor for an Indianapolis paper), is out of work—and can't even promote a CWA job! . . . The President of the Univ. of Utah recently stopped the orchestra when it played "Temptation" from the movie "Going Hollywood" . . . He said it was obscene, etc. . . . Oh, phoooofph! . . . D. Murray called: Said it is easy to tell when a movie is a success. It's a success when, a few weeks later, you can see eight or ten others exactly like it! . . . Besides the quip column in the overset rack you still have "The Gentle Art of Columning" and loads of trivia—from other pillars . . . Better use before it stales. And your coming in like this days makes me nervous . . . Will you tell Walda thanks so much for sending the posies when Buddy was sick—she's a darling . . . Nothing else that can't wait—Mit luff—Your Girl Friday.

Plan to Film Career of Dillinger

By CINEMA

HOLLYWOOD, March 12.—Hello! America's Public Enemy No. 0, John Dillinger, escaped desperado, is about to have his life story (thus far and perhaps farther) put on the screen by Paramount, under the caption of "Goes Marching On."

Bartlett Cormack, scenarist and playwright, who startled Broadway some seasons ago with his "The Racket," the first of the gangland plays, brought the Dillinger idea to Associate Producer Benjamin Glazer (you can call him Barney) and the script is now being rushed into shooting shape.

Perhaps even before The Dillinger is captured, his dastardly career of crime will reach the actual filming stage. The cast and director will be selected within a few days, Glazer announced.

Wanderings Around Hollywood . . . Angela Joyce, "Miss England of 1930," now in the movie village, is about to sue one of England's richest and titled chappies . . . Armed with no less than 59 of the MUSHIEST love notes and two photos bearing the tell-tale inscriptions of: "To my adorable Angela—with all my love and everlasting affection," the beauty queen and actress is now consulting local and British attorneys for a RED HOT breach of promise suit. Everything would have been just DUCKY—if the lad in question hadn't got married a week ago . . . Well, well—here IS news. Mrs. Jimmy Durante will play her real life role, that of Jimmy's wifey, for M-G-M's "Hollywood Party," Harry Rapf's super-tune-film . . . Eddie Nugent is all hoorahs. He just landed the juvenile lead with Mae West in "It Ain't No Sin" . . . Clara Bow did a rumba dance at the Dunes in Palm Springs with cowboy (from those parts) that STILL has the town a-buzzin'.

Patricia Wing has forsaken her cinema career for the more important role of housewife. . . . Rochelle Hudson had most of the guests at the Desert Inn (Palm Springs) shading their eyes from the sparkle of that diamond bracelet. It's from the mysterious suitor in New York. She just won't say who . . . Stu Erwin has gone in for amateur photography in such a large way that his bank account is taking an awful beating . . . Leon Gordon, M-G-M scenarist and playwright, is reviving his own play, "White Cargo," at the Hollywood Playhouse. Leon's also playing the lead.

George O'Brien thinks Walt Disney ought to give the villain in the "Mickey Mouse" cartoons more prominence—call him "Micky Finn," for instance and Andy Devine wants somebody to make a human "Three Little Pigs and Big Bad Wolf" fun film, using Ted Healy and his stooges!

Comedy on Screen

Edna May Oliver will have a principal role in "The Poor Rich," comedy coming to Stanley Friday, when Eddie Cantor and Rubinoff will be stage feature.

Fairbanks Dog Pet Dies

Transatlantic cables have flashed a death message to Douglas Fairbanks in London.

"Rooney," the brown mongrel which was Doug's pet for 10 years, and which went to the South Seas with the star to play a part in "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," is dead.

The faithful animal has been buried on a hillside at Pickfair, where he had lived since Mary Pickford and Fairbanks disagreed and went their separate ways. He was laid to rest with honor next to the grave of Mary's wire-haired terrier, "Zorro." There to mourn him were servants—Albert, the majordomo; Charlie, the roustabout, and Pete, the gardener.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS -:- By William J. Lewis

"The Silver Wedding," by Carroll Fitzhugh, Pittsburgh playwright, has temporarily replaced "Naked," by Luigi Pirandello, on the production schedule of the Civic Playhouse. It will be given in the Hotel Schenley Theater Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, March 27 and 28, and "Naked" has been set back until April. Herman Liveright will direct "The Silver Wedding," the author of which has written a number of other plays, including "The Lioness," "The Man Who Married a Rich Wife," "Smart Aleck and Amaryllis," "The Lady and the Carpenter."

Long years ago the "wonder boy" of the New York stage was George M. Cohan, turning out song hits, comedy hits and musical comedy ditto with facile neatness and completeness. And just a few years ago it was Jed Harris who was the youthful marvel—though solely in the production line—and he quickly garnered a million or so, according to Broadway gossip. Now the production wiz is Max Gordon, who has never found a failure in ony of his nine temptings of Lady Luck on the stage. At present he has four hit plays in the big town, a record never before equaled by an individual showman. They are "Her Master's Voice," comedy; "Roberta," musical comedy; "The Shining Hour," drama, and "Dodsworth," a play about a retired business man. His previous successes were "Three's a Crowd," "The Band Wagon," "The Cat and the Fiddle," "Flying Colors" and "Design for Living," in which the author and one of the chief actors, Noel Coward, had an interest along with Mr. Gordon. Cohan's record, however, is the more interesting, as he was a song writer, playwright, actor and producer. Just recently, while the chief actor of a New York hit play, "Ah Wilderness!" he gave the United States and its air waves a new song hit, "Indians and Trees."

The National Council of Freedom from Censorship, a unit of the American Civil Liberties Union, is making an effort to have the New York State Assembly abolish censorship of motion pictures in that state. It is contended that censorship has not accomplished its purpose of protecting the public from indecent, obscene or salacious films, and that the matter is one that should properly be left to the courts, anyway. Only six states, Kansas, Maryland, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia, have state-wide censorship, but there is a local censorship in some cities.

Officers of the National Council on Freedom from Censorship are Hatcher Hughes, chairman; Barrett H. Clark, Fannie Hurst, and Elmer Rice, vice chairmen; Harry Elmer Barnes, treasurer; Mrs. Morrie Ryskind and Clifton Read, secretaries; Gordon V. Moss, field secretary. Members of the Council include Sherwood Anderson, Helen Arthur, Wilton Barrett, Ernest Sutherland Bates, Bruce Bliven, Anita Block, James Branch Cabell, Henry Seidel Canby, Marc Connelly, Mary Ware Dennett, Morris L. Ernst, Paul Green, Arthur Garfield Hays, Theresa Helburn, Sidney Howard, Rupert Hughes, H. L. Mencken, Lewis Mumford, George Jean Nathan, Eugene O'Neill, Llewelyn Powys, Robert E. Sherwood, Claire and Paul Sifton, Harry Weinberger.

Patsy Ruth's Stories To Be Printed

A national magazine just wired Patsy Ruth Miller that the first two stories she ever submitted will be published by it. Pat, who has been working on fiction a long time, with the aid and encouragement of Tay Garnett, could hardly believe her good fortune. Both the accepted stories were written during her stay in Budapest.

Hangman Role Spurned So He's Masked

One of the comedy situations in "The Firebrand" Twentieth Century's forthcoming presentation picturing the love affairs of Benvenuto Cellini and starring Fredric March, calls for a hangman. The only way they could get a player to accept this assignment, even though for a humorous episode, was to permit him to wear a mask and to remain anonymous.

Concert by Horowitz In Mosque Tomorrow

Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, will give the sixth May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque tomorrow night. His program will include "Four Chorales," by Bach, arranged by Busoni; Beethoven's Sonata in E flat Major; Schumann's "Arabesque," and Liszt Sonata quasi Fantasi, a Chopin group, Two Etudes by Debussy and "Danse Russe," from Petrouchka, by Stravinsky.

Play for Youngsters Next Saturday

The New York Children's Theater Company will present "An Old Fashioned Girl," by Louisa May Alcott, in the Nixon next Saturday morning, March 17. The all-professional company will include Viola Roache, Robert Josselyn, Elaine Skidmore and Helen Hoy, who plays Maudie.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

YOU REALLY can't say much about a beggar. You can be high hat, and call him a mendicant, or low brow, and call him a panhandler. But no matter what you call him, he's still a beggar, and when you've met one you have a fair idea of the others.

For the most part, they depend upon three types of persons for their living: The religious, the superstitious, and the egotistic. The first two give because they believe it will bring them good luck; the latter gives because it makes him feel like a philanthropist.

All of which leads us to the case of The Philosopher. Some of you probably knew him. If you did, you already know that he was a bit different from the average of his kind. He worked along unique lines, and he was the only beggar I ever knew who didn't whine about his tough luck.

His post was Wall street. Down a ways from the Sub-Treasury, you could usually find The Philosopher. How many years he had been there, or where he came from, few people had any idea. But he did create interest, and when a poor person can interest the average broker—he's some guy.

I can't define his charm accurately. All I can say is that he had a courteous manner, a winning smile, and a homely way of making people feel that they were better off than they really were.

His dark-rimmed glasses and his cane were the only stock in trade he used outside of the cardboard box of shoe laces. He never bemoaned his blindness, and never solicited money outright. He always stood close to the granite wall of a building with his head held high and a faint smile on his face.

His trousers were patched on patches, his hat was dirty and battered, his shoes were ripped at the seams, but still that smile persisted. After awhile, someone would approach.

"Good morning, Mr. Jones. Thank you, sir."

"Forget it. How's your cold?"

"Fine, sir. Just fine. Thank you for asking, sir."

"Good, by the way, did I tell you about that amalgamated deal? It finally came through."

"I'm so happy, sir. But I knew it would, sir. I told you that two weeks ago when you were so worried. I don't know anything about such business as that, sir, but I knew by your voice that you felt badly about it.

"Now your voice has changed again. You sound happy, sir. It makes me happy to hear a voice like that. Now, if you don't mind my saying so, you can see how much time you lost through needless worry."

"You're right, again. But what can I do? It's my nature to worry about things like that. If I didn't, I never would have reached my present position."

"I beg your pardon, sir. I disagree. It's your intelligence that placed you where you are, not your capacity for worry. It's your worrisome ways that may later reduce your ability, sir."

The man laughed and patted the blind beggar on the shoulder.

"I'm going to leave you before you convince me that I'm somebody else. So long."

"Good day, sir. And good luck" . . .

He was always like that. Whether a stock clerk lost his job, or a bank president feared the ravages of pyorrhea, The Philosopher was always ready to spread a little cheer around. And his brand of cheer paid good dividends.

Then, one day, he didn't show. It occurred during one of the recent blizzards. Everybody figured that he was snowbound somewhere, and couldn't find transportation into town, and let it go at that. But when he didn't show the second day, nor the third, his patrons began to worry.

Now, despite the fact that a large number of people knew him, only a handful of them knew each other. And each one found that there was no one he could ask about the whereabouts of The Philosopher. The matter rested right there until the fourth day, when a broker found out, through a clerk, that the blind beggar lived in a squalid section of the East Side.

So that evening, a luxurious limousine made its way through the maze of crooked lanes and alleys and children until it came to a row of tenements. There it stopped.

The broker got out. He motioned to a child and asked if anyone knew where a blind beggar lived in the neighborhood.

"You mean the gink with the black cheaters and the cane? The one who works in Wall street?"

"Yes," said the broker. That's he. Does he live around here?"

"Sure," said the urchin. "In that house across the street. Second floor in the rear."

The broker took a heavy basket of fruit out of the limousine and walked to the other side of the street. He strode inside, and up the dim, smelly stairs. He knocked on the door, and an old Irish woman opened it.

"Excuse me," said the broker, "There's a friend—a friend of mine who lives here, I believe. A man who works in Wall street. I want to leave this for him, and ask if there is anything I can do to help."

The woman looked at him suspiciously for a moment and then grinned.

"Is he very ill?" asked the broker.

The woman laughed heartily. "Glory be, no," she said. "He's afther drinkin' some bum booze on the Bowery, and it hurt his eyes. But the doctor says he'll be seein' as well as ivver in a few days." . . .

Slot Machine War Shown

New York City's war on slot machines is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News with details described by the Globe Trotter. Prof. Free, of New York University, makes some mathematical deductions on the operation of slot machines, showing that the public has one chance in 1,000 to win.

Spring thaws continue to imperil many communities. Ice gorges jam the Mohawk River in New York, threatening destruction to the town of Rexford.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is seen and heard as she starts on her aerial flight to Haiti, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Fire boats in New York City pour tons of water into the hold of the steamship City of Montgomery, which caught fire off Chesapeake Bay and raced to New York.

From the Missouri State Hatchery, at Butler, 50,000 chicks are being shipped throughout the country every week.

From Villanueva, Spain, come scenes of a head-on collision of passenger trains that cost 10 lives.

At Hot Springs, Ark., boys from 15 states receive instructions in the fine points of baseball from such old masters as Rogers Hornsby, Burleigh Grimes and Rollie Hemsley.

NOTE — Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedule, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Defies Jinx Then Shies

She went without a qualm to spend her honeymoon in the John McCormick house where the marriage of Janet Gaynor and Lydell Peck came to grief, but she emphatically refused to occupy a dressing-room at the Fox studio, which gossips whisper is a jinx to romance.

Among the previous occupants of the dressing-room were Marian Nixon, who divorced Eddie Hillman; Boots Mallory, who had love-troubles with the musician husband; Sally Eilers, who gained freedom from Hoot Gibson, and Miriam Jordan, who has just completed a trip through the divorce courts.

Horse-Lovin' Banker

Will Rogers is a country banker who likes to sit behind a fast-steppin' hoss in "David Harum," film based on the novel, booked for Fulton Thursday.

Danish Star Ex-Boxer

Max Baer, currently trying to mix grease paint with fighting gloves, has succeeded to a degree already. But Carl Brisson, newly arrived in Hollywood from Europe to appear in pictures, left behind there a record in both fields.

Brisson was just a Danish youth when he began annexing European boxing titles, and he had won the welterweight championship of Middle Europe and Scandinavia, and some heavyweight honors before he started to dabble in miming.

But his major successes were to come in England, where he went to find out how things theatrical were done in London. He took a small role in an inconspicuous theater, caught the attention of a big producer and that brought him a five-year contract.

That was how Carl Brisson, the established star in Scandinavia, became overnight a star in London. For the past 10 years he has starred in musical comedies, none of which ran less than a year. The first and the last of these were revivals of "The Merry Widow."

"As a fighter," he says, "I wasn't good enough for the trip to America, so I had to turn actor to be invited."

'Baby Marie' Mother

Not many years ago Baby Marie Osborne was popular as a child star. Today, at 22, she is deeply grateful for a chance to serve as Ginger Rogers' stand-in.

This particular story of the screen prodigy, who lost both fame and dollars, might never have come to such a happy ending if it hadn't been for Ginger's mother, Lela.

For Marie Osborne, now married to a young draftsman and the mother of a baby, had been fighting in vain to get back on the screen. For a while she clerked in a five and ten cent store. Several months ago she managed to get extra work under Director Henry King at Fox. That job ended and, just for luck, she applied to do a part at the Little Theater run by Ginger's mother.

Mrs. Rogers came upon the name. She remembered the youngster for whom she used to write scenarios years ago, and she sent for Marie.

As a result of the meeting, the former starlet began work as Ginger's stand-in. She steps aside now before the cameras start to run, but she is happy to be back in a studio and hopes that her luck has changed.

PAIN OVER KIDNEYS

WHEN pain over kidneys or bladder irregularities keep you getting up at night; if you feel nervous, despondent, heed the warning. The kidneys may not be working as they should to filter the blood and keep you free from too much uric acid. Drink plenty of pure water and get Dr. Pierce's Anuric at any drug store. Read what Henry O. Thomas of 258 Union St., Allentown, Pa., said: "Whenever I would get a 'catch' in the small of my back and across my kidneys it was mighty hard for me to straighten up sometimes. Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets always fixed me up in a couple of days' time and drove away that backache, also regulated my kidneys so they acted normally."

"Two things I wanted—

"I found out my trouble—

"... more strength and a clear skin."

It is well to remember that a probable reason why you do not have red lips, rosy cheeks, a clear skin, good health, energy and cheerfulness is that your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red-coloring of the blood, may also cause a weakened condition of the body... loss of strength... poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of these precious blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite... your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. Its value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

You will find S.S.S. at all drug stores in two sizes... the larger is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

"... and it was all so simple ... my physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood. It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal ... and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

MILITARY BALL AT PITT STIRS REDS HERE

The National Student League, which has been playing possum in the city for several months, is planning another of its sporadic appearances in public, it was learned today.

The organization, which is used as a tool by the Communists in spreading their work among the young people of the United States, numbers nearly 300 members in the city.

Part of this membership is in a so-called High School Division, but the majority of members are students at Pitt, Carnegie Tech or Duquesne.

The group, which meets every two or three weeks, sometimes even weekly at the homes of various members, has been comparatively quiet—as far as the outside world was concerned—since last fall.

The last bit of their work which was brought to public attention was the distribution, last September, of handbills urging incoming students at Pitt and Carnegie Tech not to join the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

These handbills read:

"War is certain as long as war preparations go on. The responsibility for causing war rests with those who prepare for war. The R. O. T. C. prepares you for war. That is its only excuse for existence. Freshmen, why be cannon fodder? Don't join the R. O. T. C."

The organization is planning a new offensive on this same score, and will again distribute handbills or have a demonstration on March 23, as a protest against the military ball which will be held at the William Penn Hotel that evening. Plans have not been decided upon fully by the group, but will be settled in the next 10 days, it was learned on good authority.

Statistics from the University of Pittsburgh disclose that approximately the same percentage of students registered in the R. O. T. C. this year as did last year. In 1932, with a total male registration of 2,800 eligible for military science, there were 554 registered in the R. O. T. C.

Last fall 2,498 were eligible for military training and 519 joined the R. O. T. C. This average of 21 per cent is practically the same as the 1932 average.

Niesen Begins New Year 'BIG SHOW' :-: Mady Christians Senator Dill :-: BROADCAST

Great Tribute To McIntyre On Air

By AIRCASTER

Over an NBC-KDKA network stretching from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic will come a musical tribute to O. O. McIntyre, famous columnist, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock when Meredith Willson and his orchestra go on the air for their weekly transcontinental broadcast from San Francisco.

A suite which Wilson has written and which he calls "O. O. McIntyre" in honor of his favorite newspaper column will be played for the first time on this broadcast.

The NBC orchestra supervisor, who studied and played under the world's greatest conductors, including Toscanini, is known for the brilliance and modernism of his own compositions and his symphonic arrangements of popular music.

"O. O. McIntyre," which Willson considers one of the most interesting things he has written, is in three movements.

GALLIPOLIS MAN

The first big movement is called "Thingumabobs" and expresses the spirit of McIntyre's own jottings under that title;

The third, called "Local Boy Makes Good" contains more than a little drama, including the gradual rise of clattering train wheels.

Then the train stops and the cheers of Gallipolis (Ohio), for its favorite son are visualized musically, with the tootle of a small town band in the background as the train pulls away and carries McIntyre back to his "New York Day by Day."

Willson conceived the idea for the suite, wrote it and completed the orchestration in three days.

He has telegraphed McIntyre, who said he will be listening to Tuesday's broadcast.

K-7 ON WJZ

K-7 fans who regret to find the spy dramas discontinued locally, can tune them in on WJZ, New York, 760 kilocycles, Sunday nights at 10 o'clock.

"Operator 13," a recent Sun-Telegraph serial story, is to be made into a movie, with Marion Davies in the lead. The Mills Brothers will appear in the picture.

Bing found himself in a tight spot the other night, when he wanted to call his home, but couldn't remember his own number.

"Yeah?" she answered, skeptically.

"All right, then. Listen!" said Bing.

About a thousand dollars worth of "Please" was crooned into "information's" ear.

And Bing got the number.

MARX TWAIN

On the theory that something must be done about studio audiences—something that must be general—the Marx brothers twain who thus far have banned visitors at their performance, have issued a call to all radio comedians in New York for a conference next week to settle the issue for once and all.

Those who will take part in the conference are: Jack Pearl, Joe Penner, Al Jolson, Ray Perkins, Arthur Boran, Fred Allen, Jack Benny and Eddie Cantor.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Three acts fill local spots on the early schedule. The first is Moyer's Hawaiians at 6:15; then Paul Gannon at 6:45 and Barnyard Frolics at 8.

Children's Program On Air Today

The Sun-Telegraph Family Children's Program, under Jane A. White's supervision, is heard over WCAE this afternoon at 4:45.

The Globe Trotter broadcasts over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 P. M.

"Aircaster" tells a tall tale of Mermaids over WCAE-WJAS at 6:30 P. M.

Continental Favorites On Radio

The Library of Congress is sponsoring a series of nine musicales over a CBS-WJAS network Monday afternoon from 4:15 to 5, beginning today.

The concerts will be played by leading virtuosi and chamber music ensembles of the country. The London String Quartet plays today.

Mady Christmas, German dramatic star, and Emil Boreo, Russian comedian, appear in "The Big Show," broadcast over WJAS tonight at 9:30.

Miss Christian takes the part of Josephine in a sophisticated satire on Napoleon.

END OF THE MONK

"I went to the animal fair. The birds and the beasts were there. The big baboon by the light of the moon, was combing his auburn hair, etc."

Thus the Contented Quartet revives what was considered hot stuff back in the days of bicycles-built-for-two, during their appearance with Morgan Eastman's orchestra on WCAE at 9 tonight.

Tonight must be the anniversary of something or other.

Mark Warnow's orchestra, too, goes back to the gay 90's for their musical selections, played over WJAS at 10:30—"Yip Ay Addy Ay Yay" and "Daisy, Daisy, Give Me Your Answer, Do."

The President's proposed new Communications Commission is the subject of an address by Senator Clarence C. Dill, over WCAE at 10:30.

ELGAR TRIBUTE

In memory of Sir Edward Elgar, Josef Pasternack's Melody Moments musicians play the late English composer's "Pomp and Circumstance" over KDKA at 9:30 p. m.

Boettner to Speak At East Liberty 'Y'

Lieut. Thomas Boettner, of the Pennsylvania State Police, will be the speaker at the weekly dinner of dormitory residents in the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night. Justin E. Foldessy will preside as chairman.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

To the men with the most perspicacity the Globe Trotter gives the prize to Ambrose C. Angel, Bloomfield.

The snowy weather did not surprise him. He has been expecting it right along. In fact so sure was he, that he decided to keep his Christmas tree intact throughout all the Christmas weather.

The tree still decorates the front room of his home. Not one needle of the spruce branches has become loosened.

Our friend and contributor Van Eshelman, the poet, was amused at the verse submitted by the distracted "Hop" Gilmore, distracted as his verse indicated by the fickleness of the weather.

Van reveals that he played baseball with "Hop" some 20 years ago. "Hop" was a good second baseman, but his chief claim to fame was that he appeared at each game with his uniform freshly laundered and pressed.

After reading the submitted poem, Van still maintains that as a poet "Hop" was a good second baseman and goes so far as to say,

"This might be worse
Though 'Hop's' distracted
So glad his verse
Is not protracted,"

* * *

Mrs. W. Garee, Indiana—After listening to the broadcast about needles penetrating the body writes of a child who had cried for many days. One day the mother felt something sharp against her hand. She passed her hand over the child's abdomen and located a needle point barely protruding.

She was fortunate enough to pull out the needle and found attached to it the long black thread.

I won't be able to sleep at nights over some of these chain and charm letters that come in.

The writer tells you that you must copy off a list of names add your own and then send the letter to 20 persons instructing each and every one of them to do likewise so that the charm won't be broken.

Have You the Room I Want?

I am a stranger in Pittsburgh. I just arrived. Many are coming "in" NOW. I want to be near my work, but in a pleasant location, I want a homelike room with nice people. I am only one of hundreds of young men that want the same.

I do not know your street names so I shop up and down the Sun-Telegraph "To Rent—Rooms" advertisements — not up and down the street for signs. You probably have just the room I am looking for. Won't you help me to find your room by advertising it in the "To Rent—Room" want ads of the Sun-Telegraph? Phone GRant 5400.

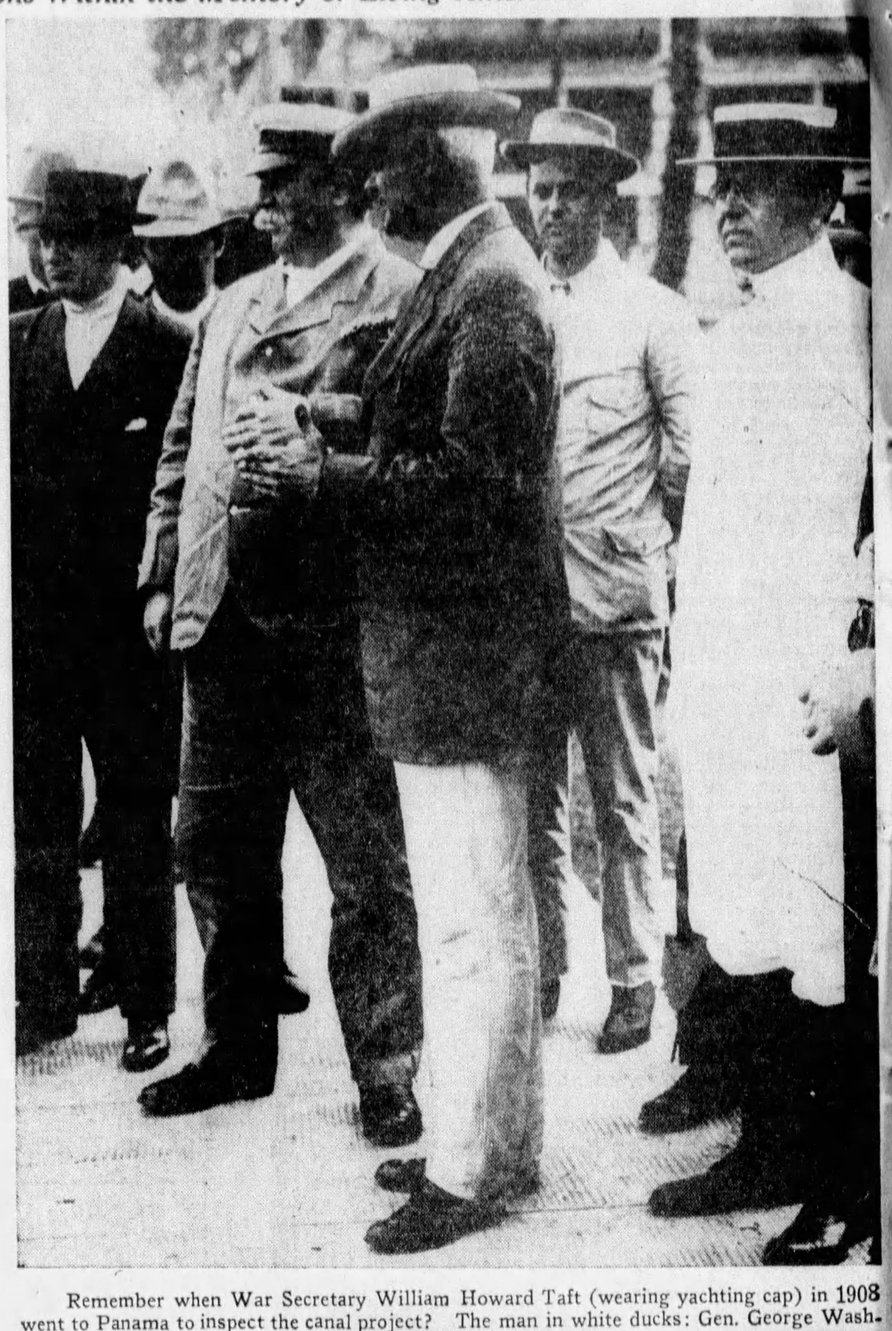
REMEMBER WHEN BARNEY OLDFIELD WAS A DAREDEVIL?

This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

Remember when Barney Oldfield was keeping the nation gasping with his daring speed in the early autos? And constantly smoked a cigar? He left the bicycle business in 1903 to tinker with cars. Now he's 56, has driven some 2,000,000 miles. Policemen still say: "Who d'ya think y'are? Barney Oldfield?"



Remember when War Secretary William Howard Taft (wearing yachting cap) in 1908 went to Panama to inspect the canal project? The man in white ducks: Gen. George Washington Goethals, who said: 'There is no genius about it, it is just a big dirty job."

Remember when Theda Bara was the nation's vamp in the silent movies? Here she is in a typical scene before her contract in the films expired in 1913. She later tried to play good girl parts, found the public cold to her then. She's retired.

Remember when Andrew Carnegie, a serious young man, was Union Army's railroad-telegraph superintendent?

Remember when they fell in the bloody three-day fight at Gettysburg, decisive Union victory in the Civil War? Here is a view of the battlefield after the fighting. The fate of the Union hung in the balance until the end of the long battle.

Remember when you did this? With the kid brother and the boy from next door? When was this picture made? What's the difference? It's still being done on every day of the summer as the circus moves from town to town these days.

MELLON BLAMES TAX SUIT ON POLITICS

so far disclosed justifies a complete grand jury investigation, particularly with respect to Mellon's income tax return for the year 1931.

"The letter also authorizes and directs me, as the United States Attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania, to proceed with such investigation in this district."

Papers in the tax probe of the former secretary are understood to have been forwarded here from Washington.

Mellon Blames Tax Suit On 'Crude Politics'

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—The 78-year-old Andrew W. Mellon, member of three Republican cabinets, barked back yesterday at the Justice Department with a charge that the department was playing "crude" politics in its income tax suit against him.

He called newspapermen to his apartment here last night during a break in his journey from Pittsburgh to Aiken, S. C.

As he handed them a lengthy statement, he said merely:

"Please don't add any frills."

Declaring in the first sentence that he felt the effort to secure an indictment against him was "politics of the crudest sort," he reviewed his entire side of the case.

HITS 'INNUENDOS'

He charged the use of "innuendos" by the Justice Department and the employment by some one, unnamed, of a "character-wrecking" campaign against him. Instead of evading income tax payments, he asserted, he had always given the government the benefit of every doubt.

He said:

"I am as much in the dark as anyone as to the possible grounds he (Attorney General Cummings) could have for such an action, but I am glad, under any circumstances, to get my tax affairs out of the Attorney General's office and into the court, where I am satisfied I shall get justice and a prompt disposition of the case which has so far been denied me."

Cumming's first response, when reporters told him of the statement, was:

OTHER SUITS PUSHED

Meanwhile, the Justice Department, cracking the income tax whip over the heads of Mellon, former Mayor James J. Walker, of New York; Thomas S. Lamont, of Morgan & Co., and Thomas Sidlo, of Cleveland, pushed preparation of a score more suits today.

More than 40 tax experts are engaged in the special task of preparing the suits, similar to those naming Mellon and the others. Among the material at hand for their study are reams of testimony taken in the Senate Banking Committee's investigation of stock market and financial practices.

Mellon's charge of "unfair and arbitrary" was applied to the manner in which the Justice Department had handled his case. He said he felt that he, "like any other citizen, should be given proper notice in the manner provided by law." He said no charges of tax evasion had ever been made against him by the Treasury.

Mellon also struck back at what he called "irrelevant references" by Cummings to the Aluminum Company of America as a "Mellon controlled corporation" which is a "100 per cent monopoly in the producing field." Mellon said:

"What this has to do with my income tax is not apparent."

SUIT CITED

He asserted Cummings' "own law firm in Hartford, Conn., has recently been defeated in a suit" in which the verdict was that the corporation had not violated the anti-trust laws.

Justice Department officials said the Attorney General was no longer connected with the firm which took part in the suit.

Mr. Mellon's statement in full follows:

"The action which the Attorney General has taken in seeking to secure an indictment against me on the charge of income tax evasion is politics of the crudest sort.

"I'm as much in the dark as anyone as to any possible grounds he could have for such action, but I am glad, under any circumstances, to get my tax affairs out of the Attorney General's office and into the court, where I am satisfied I shall get justice and a prompt disposition of the case which has so far been denied me.

"No charges have ever been made by the Treasury of any tax evasion by me, nor have I been advised by either the Treasury or the Department of Justice of any intention to try to collect additional taxes from me. All income taxes which have ever been asserted against me have been paid and in no single year have I failed to pay a very substantial income tax. The total has amounted in the last 20 years to over 20 million dollars.

'PROPER NOTICE'

"I feel very strongly that before the Attorney General of the United States should bring a charge of this kind against me, I, like any other citizen, should be given proper notice in the manner provided by law, of the government's intention to assert additional taxes and should have been afforded an opportunity to meet such charges in the customary way.

"In all my years of experience in the administration of the tax laws I have never known of a single instance in which such unfair and arbitrary action has been taken.

"In May of last year charges were made by Congressman McFadden from the floor of the House of Representatives, based on information furnished by a man named Olson, regarding what was termed 'a specific tax evasion' in connection with my 1931 income tax return.

"The Attorney General announced to the press at the time that he would investigate these charges and I requested that he do so at once, offering the fullest co-operation.

"Nothing was done until October and November, when three agents of the Department of Justice visited my office in Pittsburgh and spent several weeks going over my books and records. At the conclusion of their investigation, they expressed themselves satisfied with the co-operation they had received, and stated that they had found no irregularities of any kind.

WROTE LETTER

"Their report lay before the Department of Justice for weeks and, as no action was taken, I wrote the Attorney General on December 7, asking for a prompt and final disposition of the matter, in view of the publicity given the charges last summer and their continued reiteration in the press.

"The Attorney General not doing me the courtesy of acknowledging my letter, I again wrote him on January 15, demanding a disposition of the matter and cessation of stories appearing in the press and emanating from him or his department, to the effect that I had evaded payment of taxes.

"In my letter I said:

"'The proper amount of tax to be paid by a citizen necessarily may be subject to dispute. If the authorized officer of the government should decide that additional taxes are claimed, I am quite willing to meet the government's representatives either in a friendly conference or in open court and settle any questions that may arise. The law provides such protection for any citizen, and I am quite willing and able to avail myself of it. I am not able, however, to protect myself against the inuendoes of wrongdoing appearing in some newspapers, based apparently on information furnished by someone in either the Treasury or the Department of Justice.'

'EVASIVE RESPONSE'

"On February 6, I received an evasive response, saying that the Department of Justice had completed its examination of my 1931 taxes and neither making any criticism nor dismissing the charges, but suggesting a fishing expedition into years as to which no charges had been made by anyone.

"In publiic statements issued from time to time the Attorney General has attempted to justify this unusual procedure in conducting an investigation of my tax affairs by the Department of Justice instead of leaving it to the Treasury Department, whose duty it is to investigate such matters, and has not hesitated to cite as reasons quite irrelevant matters such as the suit brought against me by McFadden's friend, Olson, for alleged failure on my part to collect sufficient income taxes from certain foreign steamship companies.

"This suit had nothing whatever to do with my income taxes as not even Olson had charged that I had profited personally in any way. The suit was brought as an informer action by Olson, who hoped to collect $220,000,000, of which half should be for himself and half for the government.

"That case has been tried in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia and on December 8, 1933, was thrown out and judgment entered for me and the other Treasury officials who were joined with me as defendants. Yet as late as January 18, the Attorney General was referring to this suit as a reason for his investigation of my tax affairs, although he must have known that the suit had been dismissed by his own federal court and, in any event, had never had the remotest connection with my personal income taxes.

"The other reason the Attorney General has given publicly for his investigation of me is that requests have come 'from one or more members of Congress to investigate certain claims with reference to the personal income tax returns of Mr. Mellon.'

"There have always been members of Congress wanting to investigate me for their own reasons; and I may say they have indulged themselves on every occasion in the last 12 years.

"During the entire time I was in public office I was subjected to most searching congressional investigation into every phase of my official conduct and my personal affairs, and in each instance an investigation of the facts exonerated me from the charges which had been made.

"In a statement asking for an indictment against me in connection with my tax affairs, the Attorney General has made irrelevant references to the Aluminum Company of America as a 'Mellon - controlled corporation,' which is a 'one hundred per cent monopoly in the producing field.'

"What this has to do with my income tax is not apparent, but in any event I and all the members of my family own less than a majority of the stock of this company and certainly the Aluminum Company, whether or not it is a '100 per cent monopoly' is not violating the federal laws in this respect.

"No one knows this better than Mr. Cummings, whose own law firm in Hartford, Conn., has just recently been defeated in a suit, which they brought in the Federal Court there on behalf of a client, the Baush Machine Company of America, in which this very point was involved. In returning a verdict for the Aluminum Company in the Baush case, the court and jury held that the Aluminum Company of America had not violated the anti-trust laws.

"For many months now a campaign of character-wrecking and abuse has been conducted against me in the press and over the radio.

"I know there has been no evasion of taxes on my part. I have, on the contrary, always been scrupulous to give the government the benefit of every doubt in making up my tax returns.

"I am glad the issue is joined at last and am quite content to leave the outcome to the courts and to the good sense and fairness of the American people when all the facts are known."

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25c at drug stores.

Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. © 1933, C. M. Co.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralising gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.

Fails to Get Job, Kills Welfare Boss

ALBANY, N. Y., March 12.—(INS.)—Angered because he was refused work as a CWA worker, Alphonso Lynch, 50, today shot and killed Joseph Richardson, 55, welfare officer in the town of Clifton Park, and then fired a bullet into his head.

WALKER DENIES TAX EVASION

LONDON, March 12.—(AP.)—Former Mayor James J. Walker, denying that he ever ducked income taxes, announces that he plans to go home and practice law.

A bit of the old Walkerian nonchalance cropped out in a statement with which the New Yorker greeted news that the United States is moving to sue him, Andrew W. Mellon and others for income taxes. He said yesterday:

"Even in this doubtful position, I am glad to be in the same list with Mr. Andrew Mellon."

Walker, who is stopping at a Surrey Hills Hotel with his wife, the former Betty Compton, said he was "not altogether surprised." He said:

"It is now almost two years since the American authorities decided that my income tax return was incorrect.

"They spent three months investigating my financial position, both privately and in my capacity as a public man. They found nothing in either case that would enable them to bring a charge of tax evasion against me.

"Not one cent of $6,000,000,000 spent under my direction as Mayor was found improperly expended."

Sipe to Address Masonic School

Dr. C. Hale Sipe, of Butler, author of "Fort Ligonier and Its Times" and other historical works, will deliver an address before the School of Instruction at the Masonic Temple tonight on "The Glories and Neglect of Early Pennsylvania History." He will deliver an address on the same subject at the dinner of Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, on Friday night. He is to deliver 10 addresses on Pennsylvania history during the remainder of March.

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to a less scientific way of tooth cleansing. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Insufficient Rest Cause of Ills

Perhaps you know somebody who manages to get along on a few hours of sleep and brags of his ability to do so. He is making a grave mistake. Very likely he will not listen to reason, however, until his health has been impaired.

Dr. Copeland

Insufficient sleep and rest are the chief and common causes of a run-down condition. When it reaches this state, the body is extremely susceptible to infections, contagious diseases and other serious ailments. Many suffer from chronic maladies which could have been prevented. These would have been avoided if proper measures of prevention had been taken.

It is indeed tragic that when it is too late there comes the desire to rest. By that time the damage has been done. The old saying, "Lock the barn door after the horse has been stolen," can well be applied to this class of citizens.

The human body is often compared to a machine. With one exception this is a good comparison. When the old parts of a machine wear out, new parts can be obtained and substituted. Unfortunately, this is not the case with the human mechanism. But wear and tear of the human body can be guarded against by taking adequate rest and by keeping in mind the body's limitations.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of the "early to bed" habit. Accustom the child to a regular bed time. By beginning in early infancy you will foster a healthful habit. This practice will greatly benefit as he grows older. Bear in mind, too, that sufficient sleep is essential to proper mental and physical development.

Many children suffer from lack of sleep and rest. In consequence they have weak muscles, frail bodies, poor posture, poor complexion and deep "circles" under their eyes. They are irritable, easily vexed and have no appetite. Usually these complaints can be corrected by getting the needed sleep and rest.

In a similar way, the adult who suffers from lack of sleep and rest becomes cross and impatient with everything and everybody. He complains of many unpleasant symptoms, such as faulty digestion, liver and intestinal upsets, constipation, lack of appetite and loss of weight. As a rule, he soon becomes the victim of some chronic disorder.

Nothing is more distressing than to be unable to sleep. I am confident that many who suffer that way can trace their present difficulties to a lack of sleep in youth. Going to bed at irregular hours and neglect of the body mechanism soon takes its effects and leads to insomnia.

Answers to Health Queries

H.B.O. Q—I am a young man of 19 and my whole body is covered with pimples which itch, being much worse at night. They resemble a bite and are inflamed. What would you advise?

A.—It would be difficult to prescribe treatment without making an examination. Make sure that your diet is not at fault. Keep the system clear. The personal hygiene is also important. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mayor Asks CCC To Beautify Hills

In a letter to C. L. Wirth, of the national parks service of the federal Department of the Interior, Mayor McNair has asked for a CCC camp here to landscape the city's hillsides.

The rehabilitation of the city's parks and the repairing of playgrounds was also asked in the letter. According to the Mayor's plan, material for the improvements would be supplied by the city.

TWO BOYS KILLED, FIVE INJURED IN COASTING ACCIDENTS

SCHNADER SET TO ANNOUNCE CANDIDACY

Attorney General to Reveal Plans This Week

By MARK SHIELDS

Attorney General William A. Schnader has told friends in Pittsburgh that he will announce as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination either tomorrow or Wednesday. The announcement probably will be made in Philadelphia.

Schnader desires to be in the field prior to any announcement which may come from Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, who is to be guest of honor at a dinner in Philadelphia tomorrow night. While there have been reports that Shannon would clarify his position tomorrow night, he may delay until State Chairman Edward Martin, a fellow-soldier, declares definitely whether he will be a candidate.

MARTIN'S STATUS

Martin in a recent utterance has intimated not only a willingness but an enthusiasm to be drafted unless the Shannon boom shows more life than it has recently evidenced. There has been an implied working agreement between the two National Guard officers that one would not interfere with the other.

State Treasurer Charles A. Waters, while he has said his petitions will be filed, is not expected to declare himself finally as a candidate for at least the next few days. Some of the support which Waters would expect also is friendly to Schnader, and an opportunity may be offered the Attorney General to determine whether he can reach a formidable position.

MEYERS CHOSEN

Meredith Meyers, Lewistown, has been selected as general chairman of a state campaign committee backing Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, for Governor, and Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia, for the United States Senate. They are heading a ticket opposing George H. Earle, of Philadelphia, and Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, candidtaes of the regular Democratic organization.

L. W. Seamon, of Williamsport, is vice chairman; Gilbert Spruance, Philadelphia businessman, treasurer, and Robert A. Snyder, Harrisburg, secretary. Among members of an executive committee are E. Lowry Humes and Charles Alvin Jones, Allegheny County; Charles W. Llewellyn, Uniontown; George H. Whitmer, Clarion; Dr. Louis A. Leibling, Greensburg, and Judge Henry C. Niles, York.

COLLEGE BRIDE ASKS DIVORCE

A divorce to end a marriage entered into when she and her husband were in college was asked in Common Pleas Court today by W. Shirley Palmer, 22, of South Mathilda street.

Mrs. Palmer told Judge Elder W. Marshall she married Walter Palmer October 25, 1930, when he was a student at Williams College and she was attending Western Maryland College. He later refused to make a home for her, she said, and told her:

"It was a great mistake. It was nothing but a school boy and girl romance."

Distillery Leads Way On "10-10" Job Plan

NEW YORK, March 12.—(Universal.)—The Schenley Products Company today puts into effect the "10-10" suggestion of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson for 10 per cent shorter hours and a consequent 10 per cent increase in wages. The schedule affects thousands of employes in all the company's plants.

The Schenley company is the first company in the country to adopt this schedule.

Stockholders On Track Given Blame for Wreck

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Wall Street streamlined another railroad last week.

The directors' jury fixed the cause of the wreck. Stockholders on the tracks.

There is some ticker gossip about abolishing the curb. In the old days the boys worked in back of cigar stores.

Traffic rules are holding up the boom a bit. You can't trim a fish within 15 feet of a fire plug.

Her Suit Delayed

MISS PEGGY GARCIA . . . SHE'S SUING DAVE RUBINOFF

Miss Garcia, ordered by a New York court to explain—at the request of the defendant—just where and how and when Dave Rubinoff, the Pittsburgh violinist and orchestra conductor, asked her to become his wife. You see, she's suing him for $100,000 heart balm. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

RUM PRICE CUT DUE IN WEEK

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—The state liquor stores' new price list which was to have gone into effect today will probably be released next Monday with additional price reductions, W. Worrell Wagner, appointed as the third member of the Liquor Control Board last week, announced here today. He said:

"The price list revising many prices downward and listing additional items will probably become effective on March 19. Some of the board members feared the new prices would have to be postponed indefinitely, but I don't think postponement will be longer than next Monday.

"Government labeling requirements and traffic congestion on freight lines caused by snow are to blame for the delay."

LONG SEA TRIP MAY AID INSULL

ATHENS, March 12.—(AP.)—A chance for the fugitive, Samuel Insull, Sr., to land in America a new man in health, restored by a long sea journey homeward, was seen today in the official fixing of Thursday as a new deadline for his departure.

That is the day the steamship Statendam will sail from Athens.

If authorities are contemplating putting the 74-year-old former utilities magnate aboard the Statendam, they are aware it is making an extended cruise before touching the shores of the United States.

Feverish efforts by Insull agents to obtain travel visas in other countries ceased over Sunday, but are expected to be resumed. Thus far they have been discouraging.

The fact that such efforts are being made, it was believed, may give him new grounds for delay with a plea that he is showing a desire to leave Greece.

QUEEN OF SHEBA PICTURED AS SALESWOMAN

LONDON, March 12.—(AP.)—A picture of the Queen of Sheba as a traveling saleswoman de luxe was delineated today by Commander C. Crauford.

The commander, learned in the lore of Arabia's desert wastes, gave the London Daily Mail an interview in which he also expressed the conviction that two French explorers are correct in believing they have found the Queen's ancient capital on the northern boundary of the Ruba-El-Khali Desert.

SCANS OLD HISTORIES

He discussed the flight of the Frenchmen, Andre Malraux and Capt. Corniglion Molinier, and recalled his own experiences in South Arabia a few years ago.

Commander Crauford, who claimed to have discovered the "lost" land of Ophir, told the Mail that while he was there he studied secret Arabic histories about 800 years old which contained stories of Queen Balkis and her capital. Balkis is the Mohammedan name for the Queen of Sheba.

The histories suggested, he said, that the famous goods she carried to the great King Solomon were not gifts—but merely trade samples.

CRIPPLED BY LION

Ophir was famed for its rich gold mines. They are said to have been the source of most of Solomon's fabulous wealth.

The queen was described in the histories, the commander said, as tall, slender and beautiful and possessed of extremes of character. Her loveliness veiled a fury. Although normally she displayed charm and wisdom, she could rage like a tigress.

Sometimes she was called the cloven-footed devil, Crauford recounted. This, he indicated, was possibly due to the fact that she was named in childhood when pygmies of Abyssinia kidnaped her and tied her to a tree as a sacrifice to the lion god. The lion, it was said, tore her foot.

DR. JAMES L. KELSO . . . . INSPECTING TREASURED "FINDS" FROM A PALESTINIAN "DIG"

AMBRIDGE RIOT HEARING ENDS

AMBRIDGE, Pa., March 12.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot's commission investigating the activities of industrial police has gone back to Harrisburg after hearing firsthand reports of last fall's rioting which claimed the life of one man and brought wounds to a score.

Reports that the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation had furnished arms and money for the 240 deputy sheriffs who routed picket lines at several steel plants were denied by Sheriff C. J. O'Laughlin and Constable Charles C. Galton.

The county paid the deputies $6 a day and spent $5,806 for ammunition, the sheriff testified before the commission Saturday.

Bullets fired from the picket line killed Adam Pietrocziesk, an onlooker, said Joseph Knox Stone, Beaver attorney and deputy.

Questioned by Shippen Lewis, chairman of the commission, Burgess P. J. Caul said deputies raided strikers' headquarters and seized "Communistic literature." No warrants were issued for the raid, he testified.

Testimony that the order to fire was given by the sheriff was offered by George F. Polk. O'Laughlin denied the charge and his statement was greeted by boos from the crowd.

Famous Collection Owned by Xenia Seminary

A report from Eastern Arabia that the long lost capital of the Queen of Sheba has been sighted in the desert sands from an airplane renewed interest today in a famous collection of archaeological finds exhibited at the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary.

The Xenia relics were excavated at Kirjath-Sepher, an ancient town in South Judeah, Palestine, which reached the height of its glory during Solomon's reign.

If definite proof of the Queen's kingdom is obtained, Dr. James L. Kelso, noted archaeologist of the seminary staff, said today, it will be another proof, added to their own discoveries, of Biblical stories of ancient civilization and culture.

The seminary's newest finds, made last summer, are a recent gift from Dr. William F. Albright, professor of Semitics at Johns Hopkins University. They have been added to a collection the seminary already holds of hundreds of similar objects, donated by the late Dr. Melvin G. Kyle, formerly a professor at Xenia.

Until his death, Dr. Kyle was president of the expedition making the finds, sponsored jointly by the seminary and by the Jerusalem School of Oriental Research.

Showing the existence of successive layers of civilization, dating from 2,500 B. C. to 586 B. C., the date of the fall of Jerusalem to Nebuchadnezzar, the relics passed through fires which leveled the city to the dust seven times.

There are terra cotta figurines of Phoenician goddesses, dozens of pottery jars and jugs, bronze tools, including a plowshare and chisels, flint sickle edges, and bone furniture inlays.

One of the most interesting pieces is a small mortar used by the women to grind their eyebrow paint. A few small vases, carved out of alabaster, are among the most valuable exhibits.

Although fire has destroyed most of the beautiful glaze which decorated much of the pottery, enough remains, especially some of the carvings in bone and ivory, to prove that the ancient craftsmen were masters of their trade. Curiously enough, Dr. Kelso points out, the Canaanite workmen sometimes used both Egyptian heiroglyphics and Babylonian cuneiform symbols as decoration without knowing what the letters meant.

As assistant director of the expedition, Dr. Kelso plans now to spend the coming summer in Palestine continuing the "dig." Their chief interest, he explains, is in the historical significance of the ancient cities.

Two Youths Held In Cafe Robberies

Two youths blamed by police for more than a dozen store and restaurant robberies, were held over in Morals Court today by Magistrate J. W. McGowan. They are Thomas Stelnak, 18, of 1303 Fontella street, and Francis Feeney, 19, of 1613 Magnolia street.

Morin to Enter Race for Congress

John M. Morin, of 219 Boquet street, today took out petitions for Congressman from the Thirty-second District on both the Democratic and Republican ticket. Morin formerly was a Congressman from that district.

LABOR MAPPING FIGHT AT POLLS

A committee to plan support for candidates friendly to labor and social service legislation has been named by labor and social welfare groups.

The committee of 29 was created at a meeting in Elk's Temple, Saturday, attended by about 200 men and women. Stephen Raushenbush, former labor investigator for Gov. Gifford Pinchot, presided. The meeting was called by the Conference for Co-operative Political action.

The conference is composed of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, the state transportation brotherhoods and the Pennsylvania Security League.

The committee, of which 25 members are already named, will meet tonight in the Kilkeary Hotel. They include P. T Fagan, Charles L. Miller, Howard Woodmansee, Charles A. Swift, Samuel Wehofer, Jerry McMunn, John Dorsey, D. A. Harshbarger, John Pessemato, Thomas Gillis, Miss Cecelia Dixon, John J. Kane, F. F. Myers and John Hoehn, all of the Central Labor Union, and Mrs. Harvey Fouse, Ralph Turner, Kurt Anderson, Frank Skallak, Miss Helen Crowley, Charles Carlson, James O'Brien, Henry Lee, T. J. McDonald, F. W. Giffen and G. L. McNelly.

M'FADDEN NOT CANDIDATE

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, today said he had not authorized the circulation in Pennsylvania of petitions nominating him as a Republican candidate for the United States Senate.

The petitions were placed in circulation at Harrisburg last Saturday, but McFadden professed ignorance of their source. He said:

"I am not a candidate for the United States Senate. I am not circulating petitions nor have I authorized them."

Persistent reports have said he would oppose Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, but McFadden has maintained strict silence as to his political future.

AUTOIST FACES CORONER IN DEATH

Fatal Mishaps Occur In Mt. Oliver and New Kensington

Two youths were killed and five others were injured in coasting accidents reported in the Pittsburgh district over the week-end.

A hearing was to be held in the Coroner's office today for Edward Cornelius, 19, of 632 Margaret street, Mt. Oliver, in connection with the death of Thomas Klinger, 13, of 710 Schuler street, who was fatally injured when his sled and Cornelius' car, police reported, collided at Ormsby avenue and Anthony street, Mt. Oliver.

Cornelius testified in Mt. Oliver Police Station that the sled ran into the side of his car and that the accident was unavoidable. The boy was pronounced dead at the South Side Hospital when taken there by police.

Robert Cole, 6, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, from injuries received while coasting near his home in Kinloch last night. The boy's sled collided with an automobile driven by A. E. Lucas, 1623 Woodmont avenue, New Kensington, according to police.

James Rodgers, 11, of 1118 East Warrington avenue, was seriously injured while sled riding in St. Martin street as he coasted into an automobile at Monastery avenue.

W. D. Corbett, of 208 Alice street, Knoxville, driver of the car, took the boy to the St. Joseph's Hospital, where it was reported he suffered internal injuries. Corbett was charged with reckless driving, police said.

Merrill Rupple, 11, injured when his sled collided with an automobile while coasting near his home, 840 Anderson street, New Kensington, was taken to the Citizens General Hospital, where his condition was reported as fair.

William Downes, of R. D. No. 2, Jeannette, was the driver of the machine, police said.

Two boys were injured when their sled crashed into an automobile driven by Harold Sandhagen, 4818 Sciota street, at Virginia avenue and Merrimac street last night, according to police. Martin Noonan, 18, of 216 Merrimac street, was taken to South Side Hospital with internal injuries and his companion, Charles Dietrich, 13, of 524 Grandview avenue, was treated for cuts and bruises.

Bert Priam, 12, of 122 East Fourth avenue, Homestead, is in the Homestead Hospital today suffering injuries received when his sled struck an automobile on West street near Eighth avenue, Homestead, last night.

Paul Weitchell, of 231 East Seventeenth avenue, Homestead, was the driver of the automobile, according to police.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Everybody cheers the President's air mail move. It was a big thing to do. His next popular move would be to say to his legal department:

"We said there was fraud. There was fraud. Well, get busy and try somebody, and if guilty, convict 'em. That's all today, gentlemen."

Most criticism of the Army flier is going to be very unjust. He is taught to fight in the air. When he fails at that, then criticize him. He didn't hire out as a postman. In fact in modern warfare they don't correspond with each other.

Our air mail pilots are the best in the world. That's why we have two departments in Washington, one for war, and one for mail, both very efficient, but not at each other's jobs. Yours,

WILL.

P. S.—Eddie Rickenbacker did mighty well for us in the last war, and he had never delivered a letter in his life.

Passion Play Cross Falls, Two Actors Injured

Two members of a Passion Play cast today bore injuries suffered during the staging of the scene of the Crucifixion. The play, "Veronica's Veil," was produced in St. Michael's auditorium, South Side.

Alfred Yochum, 22, of 173 Monastery avenue, the Christus, was lashed to a cross when a stage brace gave way. The cross fell on a group of Roman soldiers, hurling them to the stage.

Yochum suffered two broken ribs and Elmer Hartlep, 32, of Gregory, a Roman soldier in the group, was also injured.

Father Conrad, supervising the staging of the play, stepped on the stage. He quieted the audience of 1,200 persons and also directed the rescue of Yochum.

The play went on with little delay, after Yochum and Hartlep were sent to their homes.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

One of the first weddings of spring—for spring begins with Easter, most of us think—will be that of popular young Ruth Willock, daughter of the late Frank Scott Willocks, of Sewickley.

Ruth has named the first Saturday after Easter—April 7 — as the date for her marriage, to take place at 5 o'clock that afternoon in the Willock home. The Rev. Dr. Owen Davies Odell and the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten will both officiate.

And a reception will follow the ceremony. Virginia Willock will be her sister's maid of honor, and Virginia Drake and Mrs. William A. Gordon III (Madelaine Alexander) will be the bridesmaids.

J. Merrill Wright, Jr., will be his brother's best man, and Wilson M. Book and William M. Scalfe, Jr., will be ushers. Roger Willock will give his sister in marriage.

More Sewickleyites Join Miami Colony

There's hardly a smart resort at this time of the year where a Pittsburgh representation may not be found, but the largest colony of Pittsburghers may still be discovered in Miami Beach.

New members of the Pittsburgh and Sewickley colony at the Nautilus Hotel there during the past week were Mrs. Oliver K. Eaton, the George McClellan Kountzes, Mrs. George H. Flinn and George H. Flinn, Jr., Mrs. W. Harry Brown and Mrs. William C. Robinson, of Sewickley.

Mrs. O. C. Hurst Honored At Miami Beach Dance

Guests from here included the John H. Nicholsons, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Leslie, the William M. Fureys, Mrs. John M Hansen, and the William R. Gellatlys.

At a luncheon at the Bath Club a day or so ago the William R. Gellatlys, the Henry Olivers and Mrs. Raymond E. Earp were seen.

Mrs. Edward Lee Sails On Visit to Mother

Mrs. Edward B. Lee, of the "Cedar Chest," William Penn way, left Saturday for New England. She will visit her mother, Mrs. George H. Wilson, who will celebrate her seventy-eighth birthday on Tuesday. And she will attend the Boston Symphony concert on March 18 to hear both the symphony and her son, Edward B. Lee, Jr., president of the Harvard Glee Club, sing the Bach B minor mass.

Pompeian to Be Used At Flower Exhibit

Mrs. Donald C. Bakewell will be chairman for the three-day flower arrangement exhibition to open at the Garden Club exhibit in Carnegie Institute Thursday.

Mrs. Bakewell tells me that her group will arrange cut flowers in Pompeian bronze vases, which belong to the Carnegie Institute. Her committee is meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the institute.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day ...call GRANT 6500... and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds"...and you will be answered promptly!

That dull rumbling you've been hearing lately is the muttering caused by the appearance of old-fashioned challis in the fashion world! Challis is back . . . or "in" . . . or whatever you want to term it!

And along with this news comes the information that one of the stores has lost no time grabbing up an assortment of challis scarfs for Spring wear . . . gaily printed affairs . . . shaped into that eternal triangle which is always in our midst (in some form or other!) Many colors . . . many patterns . . . and wearable for snugging into the throat of suits . . . or flinging 'round you later when you go coatless! $1.00.

Considering that all good Erin Go Bragh-ers are planning to break out into jigs of some kind this weekend (St. Patrick's Day, you know) we thought that it behoved us to step around and find something in the way of refreshment. Hence this ditty about the green and white cream mints . . . made into the form of shamrocks and selling at 40c the pound.

You can also keep the pig in the parlor this time . . . NOT one of the three little pigs however. For this is a chocolate piggie wearing a beautiful green ribbon on his porcine neck, tasting very good when you nibble him . . . and costing an un-piggish sum, 5c. (Made of dark sweet chocolate . . . nice for children's parties.)

There is a rubber cocktail apron with recipes printed all over it, saving the day and your clothes! Handy . . . cheap (50c) . . . good looking (in many shades!)

Plus . . . news for those to whom dress shields are a dire necessity. New ones to be had now . . . washable, boilable, ironable . . . in flesh and white, crescent or regular shape . . . with nainsook covering, and 35c the pair.

Who says you can't combine business and pleasure! We know of someone who has just returned from a winter vacation (lucky creature, we hate you!) into Mexico. And did she return empty-handed? She did not!

Like the Greeks . . . she came bearing gifts (and you needn't beware of them) . . . hand-woven luncheon sets . . . a whole family of them to sell at $2.95. The sets include a runner, 8 doilies, 8 napkins—17 pieces as you see—and absolutely unfindable for such a sum even if they WERE findable 'round here at all (which they aren't).

Strange reds and blacks woven together with what we suppose are Mexican ducks quacking their way throughout the pattern! Oranges and greens . . . color combinations which are distinctly in the mode at present . . . and fringed edges. With these, glorifying the American lunch table should be easy.

County Loses Fight To End Garbage Suit

Refusing to quash a writ of mandamus, Judge Ambrose B. Reid today ordered the County Commissioners to defend the action brought by Spiniello Concession Company, Inc., in their fight for a permit to collect garbage on the North Side.

The Spiniello concern was lowest bidder for the job, but has been unable to collect any garbage because it was refused a permit, according to argument on the case.

A RECIPE FOR RUSSIAN DRESSING

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WHATEVER IT WAS that you once found when you "scratched a Russian," it's all changed now. You'd be taking liberties with those bright women who catch on to a Hollywood fashion as soon as they see one, if you worked that conundrum on the Russian-appearing females that are emerging from smart shops every day lately.

For the latest international complication in good-looking American clothes was brought on by "Catherine of Russia" in the films, contrary girls being ready at the drop of a samovar to stop being Little Women, if that's their whim. Long, belted lines that end in a flare, roughish fabrics that look vaguely hand-loomed, frogs instead of buttons—that's the new Russian dressing.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Very much more worldly, this suit of similar fabrics, with its upturned Czarina collar. The hound is a Borzoi, a breed that has always been a flattering feminine accessory. Like the beau sketched below, he is Russian, although we can thank Hollywood for this entente cordiale.

If you are the slender type of girl who looks too pinched in the conventional coat and skirt of British persuasion, this very dark blue pebbly crepe wool suit will flatter you. The white touches are pique, excellent to express the schoolgirl wickedness which has been grafted to a design of Russian inspiration.

The artist has sketched a hat which can be successfully worn with a coronet coiffure.

And most sophisticated of the three suits, sketched, this frog-fastened model, though it sticks to the pebbly crepe and crisp pique alliance. It is a grand outfit for the shopper who knows she is ending her day with a tea dancing date, and the most fitting accessory would be a silver fox scarf which is just as becoming as a Borzoi and more amenable to city ways.

American Men Lack Vanity

The American man is about the least conceited man in the world, concerning his personal appearance. Yet, in some ways he is one of the best looking men in the world.

But he never seems to think of himself as ornamental, except when he marches in a parade. When he wants to decorate anything, he decorates his wife—or his house or his car.

You never suspect how really good looking the average American man is until you see him in military regalia or dressed for a costume ball or performing in a rodeo. Because, while his clothes are always the best tailored and fitted, NOTHING can persuade him to "trick himself out!"

When we get a Berry Wall or a Grover Whalen or a Jimmy Walker, who makes an ART of "wearing clothes," that's "news!" He gets as much publicity as a new prima donna or an imported screen star.

Not so, in other countries. The Frenchman spends hours adorning himself before he will venture on the boulevards. He has a picture of himself in mind and he must be "all there"—spats, gloves, cane, boutonniere—before he will give the feminine public a treat!

The Italian is always a colorful picture, whether he's a gondolier in sash and kerchief, a gorgeous policeman or just a fisherman. The moment you strike the Italian border, you know that you are in a land where men think of themselves as something worth looking at.

Even the Englishman puts a good deal of thought on self-adornment. A flower in his button-hole is almost as necessary to his life as marmalade with his tea.

An Englishman treats himself to pink hunting coats and bright "blazers"—and when you go punting along the Thames, those vivid spots of color, everywhere, are more often the red and orange blazers of the men than the flowers on the hats of the women.

It's all in the way a man THINKS of himself! The Boulevardier probably thinks of himself as God's-gift-to-women. The Englishman thinks of himself as a part of the scenery. But the American thinks of himself as a money-making machine.

* * *

And when men begin to think of themselves as money-making machines—as useful, rather than ornamental—they seem to lose all their vanity about their personal appearance.

* * *

That is probably why the American man has relegated all his sartorial beautifying to his wife—just as he has kept his religion and his social interests in her name.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

What's the smartest way to get results?

I know two salesmen—both intelligent, hard working, ambitious—as evenly matched as a couple of go-getters could be. Yet, during the year, Ed White makes twice as much as Drexel Gray. Here's the story—what do you make of it?

When Gray tackles a new prospect he does what every smart salesman is supposed to do. Sizes things up. Makes a careful survey of every possible difficulty and potential danger. It's interesting to watch him. He mentally goes over the field with a microscope, looking for pitfalls. Tabulates every conceivable handicap. Amazing the amount of trouble he can foresee.

Then he prepares an elaborate program for meeting all these theoretical problems.

"Nobody's going to catch me napping," says Gray grimly—and nobody does. It's impossible to spring a trick on Gray that he hasn't already anticipated. He's certainly smart. Yet, somehow, in spite of this smartness, he doesn't get remarkable results.

Gray would answer this by saying: "Well, what would I have gotten if I hadn't doped out all the difficulties beforehand? They'd have wiped me out entirely."

Ed White, on the other hand, uses an entirely different method. Instead of making preliminary surveys and grave preparations, Ed just breezes into a situation. He must realize the possible difficulties, for he's plenty shrewd, but he doesn't spend time or energy getting ready for grief.

Old Mr. Bitters may have a reputation in three States for cussedness—Mrs. Tattle may be a notorious shrew and tight-wad—but you'd never guess it by watching Ed White. He greets everyone with the same merry June smile, the same air of confidential, long established friendship.

Confidence — that's Ed's long suit. He expects people to be nice to him. He expects people to work with him. And his expectations succeed.

Gray suspects. White expects.

They both work hard. They both find what they're looking for. So does everyone else for we're either Grays or Whites. Which is your method?

Hundreds Representing Many Trades Join 'Spell Down'

It has not taken the adults in Allegheny County long to get out their dictionaries and check up on the spelling of the king's English in preparation for Allegheny County's old-fashioned spelling bee, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

From Pittsburgh to the smallest country hamlet, hundreds of persons have entered their names in the contest hoping to win the county championship and the trip to Harrisburg to compete in the state finals.

Stenographers, housewives, waitresses, telephone operators, workingmen, attorneys, doctors, farmers and a host of others will compete in preliminary contests being held throughout the county this week and next.

CASH PRIZES OFFERED

Many of the unemployed have also entered their names in the hope of winning one of the three money prizes. These are:

Third prize, $25.
Fourth prize, $15.
Fifth prize, $10.

Preliminary matches are to be held in 12 city high schools and 118 county school districts. Times for many of the spelling bees can be found elsewhere on this page.

Adults not now in school or college are eligible to take part in the "spell-downs." There is still time to enter the contest. Submit your name to the school principal in your district.

The county finals will be held in Schenley High School at 8 p. m. Tuesday, March 20. There the preliminary winners will vie for honors and prizes.

TWO WILL BE CHOSEN

A winner and an alternate will be selected to compete in the state championship bee Wednesday, April 4, at Harrisburg. The Sun-Telegraph will pay all the expenses of the trip.

Dr. C. E. Dickey, superintendent of county schools, who is directing the spelling bees in the city and county schools, said that there is much enthusiasm.

The contests are being held throughout Pennsylvania as part of the public school centennial by the Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg.

Rules for Prize Spelling Bee Outlined

1—Participants will be anyone not now in school or college as a student or teacher.

2—Spelling will be oral.

3—Proper names will not be used.

4—The speller will be expected to pronounce the word before he attempts to spell it.

5—Words will be repeated or defined at the request of contestants.

6—Correction of spelling will not be permitted after a word has been completed.

7—The misspelled word will not be given to the next in order.

8—The pronouncer will be the judge of the correct spelling, subject to an appeal to the judges.

9—Two captains will be chosen, who will select teams from names of entrants.

10—Webster's New International Dictionary will be considered authority.

Russian Words Seen for U. S. By Pitt Man

Russia likely will be the source of our next "steal" of English words, in the opinion of Jenning Hammer, instructor in English at the University of Pittsburgh and a word authority.

Commentitng on word derivations and their spelling in connection with the county "spell-downs," Hammer said:

"There has been definite periods in English and American history that brought new words into our language, the last being the gangster era.

"I speculate that the new influx of words into our language will come from Russia because of our new trade relations with that country."

Some of the periods which gave new words, he pointed out, were the Crusades, the Renaissance, the Restoration, the Age of Discovery and the Industrial Revolution.

Dinner to Honor Demoted Detective

Common Pleas Court judges, business and civic leaders, and newspapermen will attend the testimonial dinner to be given next Thursday evening at No. 11 Elks' Club for Frank R. Boyd, recently-demoted inspector of detectives.

The dinner is being arranged by members of the city detective bureau. Plans for the testimonial were announced shortly after the police shakeup in which Boyd was demoted.

Rum Violators Win Supreme Court Rule

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today ruled that Chief of Police Frank Massey, of Muncie, Ind., and all other persons convicted of violating the prohibition act, who had petitioned the high court for review at the time of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, are entitled to their freedom.

THREE FORMER CHAMPS SURVIVE W. P. I. A. L. PLAY

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Under the conditions of the last few seasons, Pittsburgh's playing representation in the major baseball leagues would have been reduced to one man this year when the Browns traded Shortstop Jimmy Levey to Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League and the Tigers permitted Beaumont to send Catcher George Susce to Hollywood instead of recalling him for another trial in the big show. As things were, that would have left Pitcher Steve Swetonic, of the North Side, as the only Pittsburgh resident among the active pastimers in the main loops, though the district is represented in other roles by Bill McKechnie, of Wilkinsburg, Brave manager; Honus Wagner, of Carnegie, Pirate coach, and Jack Onslow, of Tarentum, Red Sox coach.

Steve Swetonic

However, for the spring practice period, at least, the local delegation in the majors has been increased rather than reduced. A glance around the training camps reveals that four players from Pittsburgh or immediate vicinity are now in the big league ranks, though three of them are listed as recruits on trial. Swetonic, shifted from the Pirates to the Braves, is the only fixture holding over, but Outfielder Julius Solters, a city resident, is with the Red Sox; Infielder Elmer Trapp, of Wilkinsburg, is with the Buccaneers, and Catcher Bob Garback, of Edgewood, is with the Indians. The three recruits from this neighborhood are ranked among the best prospects in a year that finds the standard of new material unusually high.

MANAGERS STRESS IMPORTANCE OF LEGS

The importance of sound legs is being stressed even more strongly than usual by the major league managers in the baseball training camps this year. To that end, running is playing a bigger part than ever in the conditioning routine. George Gibson always has been an ardent advocate of running and hiking as features of the spring exercises of his players, and he has three new supporters at present in Frankie Frisch, Casey Stengel and Mickey Cochrane, all of whom are supervising big league preparatory camps for the first time.

Running is getting a strong play at the various practice fields, and the fact is being impressed on the players that not only their form for the season just ahead but the length of their careers depends on the development of staying qualities in their legs. Many players pay too little attention to their underpinning in the off season. They'd rather ride, even for short distances, than give their props needed exercise. Yet legs are as important in baseball as pitching or throwing arms. A pitcher is done when his pins go back on him, regardless of how good his arm may be. Players in general can stay in the fast set only as long as their legs will carry them. Once the legs go, nothing else will keep them in the big tent. Even though he went on until he was 43, Honus Wagner could still hit and throw as well as ever when he retired in 1917. It was failing legs that forced him to quit.

RICHARDS LEARNS BY WATCHING LOPEZ

Al Lopez may not be aware of it, but in addition to doing a swell catching job for the Dodgers from year to year he also has been serving as a model for young backstops around the National League circuit. One of them is Paul Richards, who will be first-string receiver for the Giants during the early part of the season, inasmuch as Gus Mancuso is not yet in camp and will be slow in getting into playing shape after a siege of typhoid fever. Richards says that nobody ever took him in hand and taught him how to catch, and that whatever he knows about backstopping he learned by watching other maskmen. Lopez was his special model, and Paul says that most of the knowledge he has gained about catching—he doesn't claim to know much about it even now — was acquired from close observation of the Brooklyn star in action.

Al Lopez

While admitting that Mancuso was a big factor in the success of the New York club last year, Manager Bill Terry is confident that Richards will fill the breach satisfactorily until Gus is ready to don the mask and wind-pad.

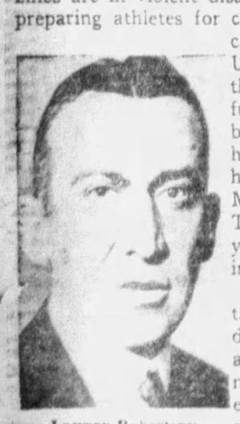
HOLD PRIMO EXCELS WILLARD AT LEAST

Defenders of Primo Carnera, though conceding that he is not the best heavyweight champion the fight game has seen by a long way—at least two or three other ring followers will confess to having suspected something of the kind—insist that he is also not the worst. In support of their argument they resort to comparisons with the only previous title-holder of the dreadnaught type, Jess Willard, contending that Carnera is a better boxer than Willard was, a better defensive fighter, faster and more aggressive.

But they surely are at a loss for any evidence that Primo can hit any harder than a flyweight. Since the giant's failure to stop Paulino Uzcudun or Tommy Loughran, that so-called knockout of Jack Sharkey is about as hard to figure as the Dillinger escape. Sharkey was younger and heavier than Loughran when he met Carnera, and not nearly so ring-worn. He was faster than Loughran, just about as good a boxer, and a harder hitter. And Jack was four years younger than Paulino and an immeasurably better fighter in every respect. So when Carnera knocks out Sharkey in six rounds, and can't knock, push or wrestle Paulino or Loughran to the canvas in 15, you can write your own answer.

TRACK COACHES DISAGREE ON TRAINING

Two of the famous track coaches who write for the magazines are in violent disagreement as to the proper method of preparing athletes for competition. Lawson Robertson, track chief at Penn and head coach of several United States Olympic teams, opines that most coaches overwork their youthful charges. As an example of what can be accomplished by the opposite course, he relates that for a whole week before he broke two I. C. 4-A records Ted Meredith never pulled on a spiked shoe. The tenor of Robertson's article is that you're more likely to succeed by working too little than by doing too much.



Lawson Robertson

Out on the coast, Dink Templeton takes exception. He declares athletes don't work hard enough, are pampered, are afraid of hurting themselves, and never reach their maximum. One of his exhibits is Bud Spencer, who was pampered in college and ran only now and then, but who afterward started running two or three races a week and attained the greatest speed of his career. Templeton doubts that his star distance prospect, Chuck Nimmo, will be in shape. Nimmo has been studying, which is the average outsider's idea of at least a minor object in going to college, but Dink says "None of the great distance champions developed themselves by anything but just running."

WIDLOCHER COACH REED ALESKUS BALENT VOREK BACHE

Scott High School, of North Braddock, former State champion, Section VIII representative in the current W. P. I. A. L. basketball elimination series, will be in a fighting mood tomorrow night when it meets New Kensington, Section I champion, in the first semi-final game at the Pitt Stadium. Scott almost saw its hopes for a place in the semi-finals ruined by an aggressive Mapletown quintet, champion of Section XIII, in a quarter-final game. The Reedmen rallied in the closing seconds to eke out a 25-23 decision. Coach Johnny Reed deemed it necessary to give his regulars a lesson in shooting after that narrow escape, as shown in this Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture. New Kensington eliminated Uniontown last Saturday by a 42-28 score.

PIRATES BEAT PORTLAND IN EXHIBITION

PASO ROBLES, Cal., May 12.—Pittsburgh's Pirates, of the National League, returned to the grind of Spring training at their camp here today well satisfied with themselves. Yesterday they broke the monotony of early conditioning work by engaging in an exhibition tilt with the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League. What is more, they won the game, 5 to 2.

Manager George Gibson used 19 players against the Coast Leaguers. The Buccos collected eight safe hits, and scored twice in the second inning, once in the sixth and twice more in the seventh.

Larry French, star southpaw, started on the slab for the Pirates and hurled three innings. He was reached for five hits by the Portlanders, but won the game, inasmuch as his mates held the lead when he went out in favor of Bill Harris, who in turn was replaced by Johnson.

The Pirates scored in the second inning on Suhr's double, an infield out, a single by Roettger and a triple by Jim Crandall. The run in the sixth resulted from an error by Earl Sheely, which put Trapp on base, Brubaker's forcing of the Wilkinsburg rookie and Etten's double.

In the seventh, Grace singled, Finney beat out a bunt, Johnson sacrificed and Jensen and Young singled.

Frank Packard, a Pittsburgher, recently obtained by Portland, singled in the second inning and came home on Hoag's triple. He handled five chances in the field without a slip.

The Waner boys arrived in camp yesterday and were spectators at the contest. Pitcher Bill Swift is due today, and his arrival will complete the Buccaneer squad.

Trapp was injured when he was spiked by McLeod in a play at second base. It required two stitches to close the wound in his knee.

Thomas, Letourner Lead Bike Grind

CHICAGO, March 12.—(INS.)—Bobby Thomas and Alfred Letourner raced the field of 13 teams dizzy to go into the lead today in the thirty-first international six-day bicycle race here at the Stadium.

FLORIDA RACES POSTPONED

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—Chill, gusty winds swept Lake Worth yesterday, forcing postponement for a day of the final two heats of the international Class X outboard motorboat second series and delaying the first meeting of American gold cup and Italian litre craft.

Caustic French comment evoked by the committee's decision to call off the program resulted in tentative plans to hold races today regardless of weather conditions.

HEIDELBERG KEEPS VICTORY RUN INTACT

By TOM BIRKS

With the postponement of the West Penn semi-final cup game at Greenlee Field between Curry and Gallatin owing to the heavy snowfall, soccer fans yesterday turned to the two Keystone League games for their afternoon's sport. The close race in the circuit did not undergo any change as a result of the games. Heidelberg kept its winning streak intact by defeating Cecil, 2 to 1, at Cecil, while Morgan and the Shannon Rhiels played a 3-3 tie at Morgan.

The heavy fields naturally slowed down the games. Hillen was introduced into the Heidelberg front line as center forward, with Kuten away in Cleveland, and he scored the only goal in the first half.

Early in the second period, Steve Urbanic put the Green and Gold further ahead, but just before the finish J. Preaux tallied for Cecil.

Morgan introduced a junior named Seronti, and the newcomer scored two goals, while Pete Dresmich accounted for the third.

Johnny Jaap displayed some of the form that made him the outstanding forward in the district as he scored all three of the goals for the Shannon aggregation. Dante Villani and Cyle found themselves tangled up time after time by Jaap's clever footwork.

The only game of the Panhandle League found Manown defeating the Diamond A. C., 4 to 1. The lineups:

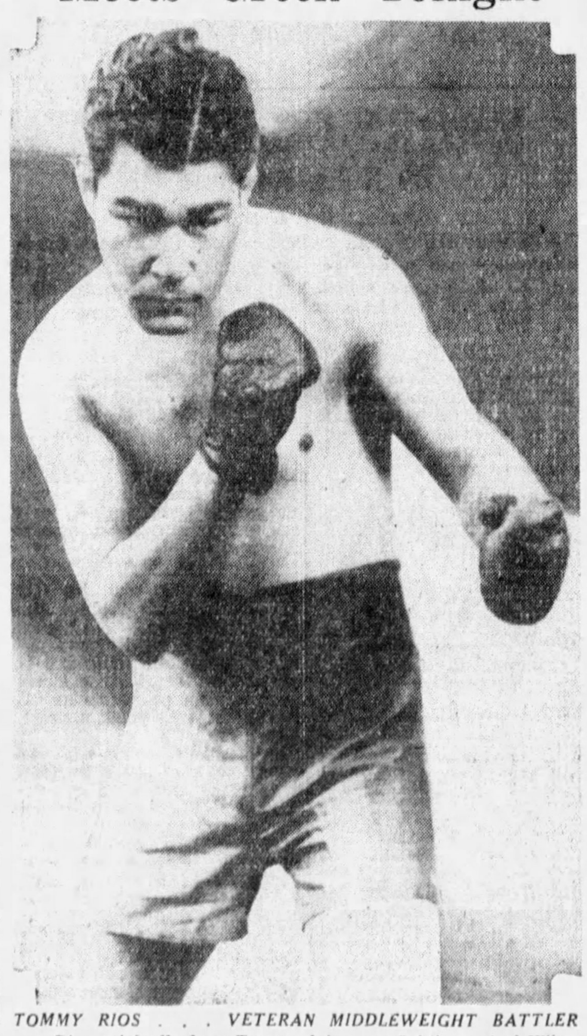
Meets Green Tonight



TOMMY RIOS . . . VETERAN MIDDLEWEIGHT BATTLER

Rios, originally from Tucson, Ariz., now fighting out of Wilmington, Del., will try to halt the winning streak of Anson Green, Negro puncher, of Homestead, in one of the two 10-round bouts at Motor Square Garden tonight. Reds Barry and Charley Massera are in the windup engagement, a promising heavyweight battle.

Oilers Play First Tourney Fray Today

KANSAS CITY, March 12.—(AP.)—Kansas City's counterpart of the six-day bicycle race—the eight-day national basketball marathon of the Amateur Athletic Union, routed fans out of bed early today for a program of 15 games running until midnight.

The games completed the first round of play for 55 teams from coast to coast seeking to divest the Tulsa Oilers of their national championship. The Oilers themselves are spotted against Sioux Falls (S. D.) College tonight.

TEXAS RIDERS WIN

LOS ANGELES, March 12.—(AP.)—With their 10 goal star, Cecil Smith, again in the saddle the Texas polo squad rode down the Riviera Country Club, 15 to 8, in the second match of a three-game series yesterday.

McKeesport to Act Tonight on Sullivan

The McKeesport School Board of nine members will meet tonight in McKeesport to act on the recommendation of its athletic committee to reappoint Bill Sullivan as football coach for next fall.

Sullivan resigned after the close of the 1932 season when he was given a reduction in salary after bringing the Tubers through two undefeated schedules. Bill Clees was given the post.

The athletic committee has succeeded in adjusting differences with Sullivan, who also is a member of the school faculty, and his appointment as coach likely will be ratified tonight.

AMBRIDGE HIGH AIMS TO WIN FIRST TITLE

By JULIUS LEVIN

The process of elimination having reduced the field of contenders for the W. P. I. A. L. basketball championship and the right to represent District VII in the fight for the state crown to four schools, scholastic sports enthusiasts are anticipating some grueling struggles this week as the survivors strive to reach the championship round next Saturday night in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

Of the 19 sectional champions enrolled in the tournament, only four, New Kensington, Section I; Ambridge, Section IV; Duquesne, Section VII, and Scott High, of North Braddock, Section VIII, have managed to weather the storm in the preliminary rounds and will clash in the semi-final engagements, carded tomorrow and Wednesday in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

The two survivors in the lower bracket of the draw, New Kensington and Scott, tangle tomorrow evening, while the remaining two contenders in the upper bracket, Scott and Duquesne, lock horns on Wednesday.

THREE FORMER CHAMPS

Three of the four teams already have graced the W. P. I. A. L. basketball throne, Ambridge being the lone exception. Duquesne, winner of the championship in 1928 and 1933, has an opportunity to carry off the laurels for the third time, a feat that will establish a new record; Scott High won the title in 1931 and followed this achievement by sweeping through the P. I. A. A. eliminations to take the state championship, while New Kensington was crowned standard-bearer of the W. P. I. A. L. in 1930.

The last two quarter-final engagements provided what many close followers of scholastic basketball hereabout consider the major upsets of the current tournament. While New Kensington's 42-28 victory over Uniontown, champion of Section XI and winner of the W. P. I. A. L. championship in 1925 and 1926, was not entirely unexpected, the manner in which the Glockmen accomplished this triumph was the real surprise. New Kensington was unimpressive in advancing to the quarter-finals by defeating an important Ford City quintet, champion of Section VI, while Uniontown, one of the four W. P. I. A. L. schools ever to win the state crown, turning the trick in 1925, added prestige to its basketball record by disposing of a powerful East Pittsburgh quintet, champion of Section XVII, 42-35, in the second round. East Pittsburgh had

ALL-STARS MEET HERSHEY SKATERS, EYE LEAGUE BERTH

EASTERN LOOP FRANCHISE IS LOCALS' AIM

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Hockey as it is played in the Eastern Amateur League will be on display at Duquesne Garden tonight when the City League's All-Stars oppose Hershey, one of the stronger teams of the Eastern circuit.

The game is more than an exhibition affair, for upon its outcome may hinge the decision as to whether Pittsburgh will enter a team in the Eastern League next season. A good showing by the Stars will mean that local talent will represent this city in the league in the 1934-35 campaign. A lop-sided victory for Hershey will mean that amateur stars will have to be brought in from other cities, or the project abandoned.

The All-Stars' lineup is to be the same as that which vanquished Nichols Alumni two weeks ago, and Coach Terry McGovern is confident that the workouts of the past week will serve to make the Stars a smoother, more effective combination than they were against the Buffalo sextet. The chances are very good that this improvement will be necessary if the locals are to rub elbows with victory, for the Hershey squad is made up of big, fast, experienced performers.

VISITORS' DEFENSE STRONG

Frazier, the visitors' goalie, and Beisler and Gilmore, their six-foot defense men, appear to be headed for the professional ranks, as does Lloyd Blinco, their coach, captain and center, whose brother, Russell, is with the Montreal Maroons. Blinco is flanked on the starting front line by Trimarco, an Italian boy from Detroit, and Russell, who learned his hockey in Boston.

Of the Stars' starting lineup of Curl, McCutcheon, McSorley, Scully, Tyson and Roy Schooley, Jr., only Tyson is not in top form. He sustained a deep cut in his chin in a recent game, and has been giving an injured leg heat treatment for the last week. Davies, Bob Schooley, Rodenbaugh, Briggs, Dan Battle and Conley complete the squad.

RETURN GAME CARDED

The Stars are to meet Hershey in a return engagement there on March 21, and will participate in the National Amateur championship at Madison Square Garden, New York, on March 23, 24 and 25. Tonight's probable lineup:

Pittsburgh—		Hershey—
Curl	G.	Frazier
McCutcheon	D.	Beisler
McSorley	D.	Gilmore
Scully	C.	Blinco
Tyson	W.	Trimarco
R. Schooley, Jr.	W.	Russell

Pittsburgh spares—Davies, B. Schooley, Powell, Conley, Rodenbaugh, Briggs and D. Battle.

Referee—Herb Drury.

Baseball Briefs

LAKELAND, Fla. — (AP.) — Lacking only the presence of Marvin Owen and Harry Davis to round out their roster, the Detroit Tigers plugged away at baseball fundamentals in their training camp here yesterday. Owen, who has been taking treatments at Hot Springs, is expected to arrive in camp tomorrow.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—After a week devoted to conditioning the batterymen, the New York Yankees had a breathing spell yesterday before settling down to serious work with the full squad on hand. Only Bill Dickey and Lyn Lary, both holdouts, are expected to be absent from today's drill as such eminent athletes as Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig start practice.

ORLANDO, Fla. — (AP.) — Despite chilly weather, the Brooklyn Dodgers got in a short, snappy practice session yesterday as the second squad of players arrived. Among those still missing were Hack Wilson, Al Lopez and Ray Benge, but worries over Wilson's holding out were somewhat dissipated when Manager Casey Stengel received a telegram from Wilson saying he would not be able report on time because of the illness of his son, Bobby.

GIANTS TAKE SERIES LEAD

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—Trailing two to one in their five-game series, the Philadelphia Athletics play host to the New York Giants today and tomorrow.

The presence of Jimmy Foxx in the lineup failed to save them from a 10 to 2 drubbing at Miami Beach yesterday, but the A's are not discouraged. Among the bright notes was a report from Dallas, Tex., that Pinky Higgins, third baseman, is motoring to Fort Myers to talk over a compromise salary offer made by Manager Connie Mack. Higgins is the only holdout since Foxx signed up. Yesterday's score by innings:

New York (N).	4 2 0 0 2 2 0 0 0—10	16	3

BASEBALL BRIEFS

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP.)—Batting and infield practice are on in earnest at the Phillies' training camp while the pitchers enjoy comparative ease. Describing yesterday's drill as the best they have had in a week, Manager Jimmy Wilson said his pitchers have rounded into shape perfectly.

LOS ANGELES.—(AP.)—Heavy stick work by the Chicago White Sox brought them a 13 to 8 victory over the Los Angeles Angels in the first game of the training season here yesterday. The score by innings:

BILOXI, Miss.—(AP.)—The Senators went through their first batting practice of the season with Gov. Mike Conner, of Mississippi, one of their spectators. The Nats took turns against the pitching of Jack Russell, Walter Stewart and a flock of rookies with rookie Catcher Elmer Klumpp sharing hitting honors with Moe Berg.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—There are only two vacant beds in the Boston Braves' spring training camp as a result of Rabbit Maranville's arrival. Bob Berger and Hal Lee are the only absentees, and Manager Bill McKechnie has been advised that both will check in not later than tomorrow.

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP.)—The batterymen rubbed sore muscles as mementoes of their week's grind at the Cleveland Indians' training camp, while the infielders and outfielders checked in for work in earnest beginning today under the tutelage of Manager Walter Johnson. Good news blew in with the late arrivals at the camp when the report was received that Glenn Myatt, receiver, had signed his contract, leaving only two holdouts on the Indian list—John Burnett and Harley Boss.

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP.)—The Cincinnati Reds went through nearly two hours of practice in bunting, a department in which they were noticeably weak last season. Dazzy Vance was spiked on the right foot, but the injury was not serious and he will be in action again today.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—Manager Rogers Hornsby divided his team up so well for a practice game here yesterday that the Regulars defeated the Yannigans, 5 to 4, in the final inning. Sam Gray started on the mound for the Regulars, opposed by Dick Coffman.

AVALON, Cal.—(AP.)—Billy Herman, holdout second baseman, appeared unexpectedly in the Chicago Cub camp yesterday, signed a contract and made three hits in a practice game. Herman, who refused to sign because of a salary cut, was reported to have accepted the club's original terms.

SARASOTA, Fla.—(AP.)—Another large batch of Boston Red Sox players has arrived in camp and when Manager Bucky Harris counted noses he discovered that only four of his troupe were missing. Julius Solters, Dusty Cook, Carl Reynolds and Max Bishop. This quartet will probably check in before today's deadline.

Pitt and Dukes Ranked At Top of Floor List

By JESS CARVER

The basketball palms for 1933 and '34 are hereby made into a figurative trio of wreaths and tilted on the equally figurative brows of Pitt, Duquesne and Westminster. All claims for floor honors for the campaign from other parts of the country will be duly scrutinized and considered, but it will take a mighty powerful one to win for any section or any team a ranking ahead of the three aforementioned varsities.

Jimmy Usilton, head basketball coach at Temple University, stopped off here last week between games with West Virginia and Bucknell. The Philadelphia tax expert is a smart basketball man. He turns out good teams and he gets around pretty well and sees the best in the East. Discussing the ranking of the leading college fives for this season, he very candidly staked 'em up as follows:

1—Pitt and Duquesne.
2—C. C. N. Y.
3—New York U.
4—Westminster.
5—Notre Dame.
6—Penn and Purdue.

RANKS LOCALS AT TOP

Now when an outsider, especially a man from the East, where, for some reason or other, they have the greatest difficulty in seeing college football and basketball teams from this unfortunate sector, rates the Panthers and the Dukes at the head of the list, it means something. Usilton does not need a spyglass to see beyond his own backyard, he's that fair and smart, but even so, his rating of the local boys means something.

Uilston's Temple team played Pitt, Notre Dame, Duquesne and New York U., and, therefore, Coach Jimmy is in a position to know whereof he speaks. He says Pitt and the Dukes were the best drilled, the smartest and the best conditioned of 'em all. He admits that his Owls were simply outrun by both the Panthers and Bluffites, doesn't pretend to know how Coaches Carlson and Davies do it, but admits that they do.

Usilton also ranks Cribbs, of Pitt, and Birch, of the Dukes, as the outstanding individual performers of the year.

Usilton's rating and the record of the three district leaders, the two Pittsburgh fives and Westminster, remind one of the letter written home by the rookie baseball player, at his first big league training camp, when outfits from other sections are compared with the home boys. The letter went like this:

Dear Ma:
They are pitching curves in this league. Tell Pa I'll be home to help with the spring plowing.
Your Loving Son,
HORACE.

PITT, DUKES FIRST

The Pitts and Dukes and Titans have been pitching curves this year, too. Their record against intersectional opponents is a pip. Their battles with each other were classics, and the way in which they went through all domestic, as it were, opposition, left no doubt whatsoever as to their belonging at the head of the parade.

The season is all but over. It will be after this week, as Pitt meets Western Reserve in Cleveland the Dukes finish up with Wash-Jeff here. Pitt has the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference title again, Westminster rules the tri-state circuit, and as far as this correspondent is concerned, Pitt and the Dukes share equally the championship of the entire section and have a good claim on the eastern crown as any team that may be mentioned.

Wes Bennett, of the Titans, holds the individual scoring honors and his team has the best point-getting record. The Titans have tallied 1,117 points against 660 in 26 games, an average of 42.9 per ball game. Bennett tossed 127 field goals and 105 fouls in 25 contests for a final mark of 359 points.

Birch, scoring leader in the city, flipped 82 field goals and 46 fouls in 18 games for a mark of 210. He'll very likely add plenty to this against the weak Wash-Jeffers here Wednesday night.

Loughran's Father Dies in Philly

The senior Loughran, who died yesterday, had given Tommy his first boxing lessons when the former light heavyweight champion was a boy. A trolley motorman, the father took one of his few leaves from work last month to watch Tommy's attempt to wrest the world heavyweight title from Primon Carnera in Miami, Fla.

BOXING 'WAR' NEAR CLIMAX

An early showdown was seen as certain today in the "war" between the State Athletic Commission and the Amateur Athletic Union over control of amateur boxing throughout the state.

A statement issued by the boxing committee of the Allegheny Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., attacked the position of the commission in the matter, involving its suspension of A. A. U. sanctions for amateur tournaments and shows, and intimated that all boxers competing in such unsanctioned shows are regarded as having lost their amateur status, despite the commission's promise to protect them in this respect.

The statement further said that two dates proposed by the A. A. U. for a meeting with the commission have been turned down as unsatisfactory.

In reply, Dr. W. D. McClelland, state commissioner, who precipitated the break on the part of the commission, said arrangements were being made for a meeting in Philadelphia. He added that daily the commission is coming into possession of more information which will figure in the hearing of the A. A. U.

Washington Woman Claims Pin Marks

HARTFORD, Conn., March 12.—(AP.)—Three world bowling records for women were claimed for Lorraine Gulli, of Washington, D. C., today as the result of her performance in the second annual Yankee sweepstakes.

Rolling 652 for five games, Miss Gulli bettered her own previous world mark of 644. The second record she accounted for was that of 799 for six games and the third was 1311 for 10 games. The previous 10-game record of 1139 was made by Miss Helen Randlett at Richmond, Va.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The man who pricked the King Levinsky bubble shows his wares before a home town crowd in the 10-round main bout in Motor Square Garden tonight.

The man who parlayed a 3-cent postage stamp into a fistic career that has made him a challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world shows the fans just how he did it as Charley Massera, of Monongahela, takes on Donald (Reds) Barry, of Washington, D. C.

AMBITIOUS YOUNGSTER

A little more than two years ago, young Massera trekked to Pittsburgh to see the fighters fight in Motor Square Garden. He was not deeply impressed. He thought he could do better. He proceeded to work out ways and means. He read the sports pages and bought the sporting magazines. One day he hit upon the idea of writing the editor of Ring, a boxing publication, for advice. He wrote:

"I am a young man of 20. I have seen many bouts in Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh, and I think I can fight better than the men I see there. How would you advise me to go about making a career for myself in the ring?"

BOXES HEADLINERS

The editor of Ring, a former newspaperman, read the letter and wrote his youthful correspondent to come to New York for a talk. Massera went. He was turned over to a manager and sent into a gymnasium. There he was drilled for several months before he was permitted to take part in a bout. Since then he has boxed Steve Hamas, Maxie Rosenbloom, the world light-heavyweight champion, and others. He got a draw with Hamas, a decision over Rosenbloom, lost an unpopular decision to Levinsky, who was being primed for a bout with Champion Primo Carnera, whom he already had boxed twice. Since then Levinsky has lost to Walter Neusel, of Germany. Today, Massera, the stumbling block of the great and near-great, is numbered among the first half-dozen heavyweight contenders of the world. He is a meek-looking, soft-spoken young man who believes in himself.

It will be Massera's third appearance in these parts. He knocked out Jack Kearns in the Meyers Bowl a year ago last summer and the following winter lost a questionable decision to K. O. Christner in Motor Square Garden. His opponent, Barry, has boxed here once, stopping Sunny Jim McVey in the Moose Temple at the start of the present indoor season.

GREEN IN SEMI-FINAL

A good bout is in prospect. Both men are good boxers. The amply proportioned Barry moves rapidly and prefers to fight on the outside. Massera moves in close and attacks the body.

In another 10-rounder, Anson Green, Homestead Negro middleweight hope, meets Tommy Rios, of Wilmington, Del., a seasoned campaigner who has met many of the stars.

Three six-round preliminaries open the bill. They show Al Quaill, Brookline middleweight, making his second professional start, against Andy Maskey, of Canton, O.; Jack Dalcherone, Springdale middleweight, against General Burrows, Aliquippa Negro, and Johnny Durso, Oakland lightweight, against Jackie McFarland, of Canton. The first bout is set for 8:30.

SPEIGAL MEETS GLICK

Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, boxes Joe Glick, New York veteran, in a 10-round bout in Cleveland tonight, with Joey LaGrey, formerly of McKeesport and Johnstown, now of New York, meeting the Alabama Kid in another 10-rounder, and Ross Fields boxes Frankie Wolfram in a windup in Wheeling.

Harry (K.O.) Ferry, former lightweight boxer of McKeesport, now is handling both amateur and professional boxers and has them ready for engagements. He may be reached at 524 Atlantic avenue, McKeesport. His amateur performers include Eddie Sago, heavyweight; Al Lang, bantamweight; Anthony Barr, featherweight, and Herman Copeburner, lightweight.

Lloyd Clements and Carl Gross have been matched for the six-round semi-final to the Buddy McArthur-K. O. Christner bout at Clarksburg, W. Va., Friday night.

PIN MATCH TONIGHT

The Mothers' Club team, of the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, will try to duplicate their victory scored against the Lawrenceville Business Men when they clash in a duckpin match on the Boys' Club alleys tonight. Mrs. Theresa Gallagher is the captain of the Mothers' Club team.

DEFENSE BAFFLES FOE

New Kensington's defense had the Fayette countians bewildered, the Section XI champions getting few chances to work their way under the noof, half the battle in offensive basketball. The splendid comeback made by the Glockmen after their unimpressive exhibition against Ford City amazed the local fans. Two boys who are going to command plenty of attention in the Scott battle tomorrow night are Eddie Waugh, Negro forward and scoring star of the team, and Trzeciak, whose work at guard, earns him the right to be rated with the best in the tournament. Joe Ross likewise has been figuring prominently in the New Kensington successes.

The defeat of New Castle, champion of Section III, by Ambridge, champion of Section IV, in the Beaver Falls High School gym also gives the W. P. I. A. L. experts food for thought. New Castle was rated one of the top-heavy favorites to reach the final round, but the Lawrence County entry was played off its feet by the smooth-working Bridge Workers, who scored a 31-16 victory.

Ray Henry, coach at Duquesne High School, whose team is defending champion in the W. P. I. A. L., witnessed the Ambridge-New Castle struggle to get a few pointers on Moe Rubenstein's Beaver valley quintet. He should have plenty to tell his boys in practice today. Ambridge's victory was far the biggest upset of the tournament. Its semi-final battle with Duquesne Wednesday should prove a thriller, with the outcome in doubt from start to finish.

WINNE STANDS OUT

Whitey Winne, who was chosen by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph as all-W. P. I. A. L. guard after the close of last year's eliminations, appears to have lost little of his cunning as a floor star. Winne, along with Vosnik, provided the spark that out-distanced New Castle.

District basketball championships in all divisions will be up for settlement this week. South High School, of Pittsburgh, District VIII representative in the state playoffs for the second time in two years, will polish up for its first inter-district games tomorrow when it meets the Carnegie Tech Plebes in the South Side Market House.

Wednesday evening, at Charleroi High School, the Junior W. P. I. A. L. championship will be decided when North Braddock Junior High School, champion of Section II, engages Charleroi Junior High School, champion of Section I.

The grade school championship of Pittsburgh, with McNaugher School, of the North Side, the defending champion, still in the running, will be finished this week.

Saturday night in the Pitt Stadium pavilion, the W. P. I. A. L. champs will be crowned when the two winners in the semi-finals tomorrow and Wednesday come together. Prior to the game, the officials and coaches of the W. P. I. A. L. will hold their annual banquet in Webster Hall.

Local Dog Victor In Cleveland Show

CLEVELAND, March 12.—(AP.)—Out-of-staters invaded Cleveland's dog show, put on by the Western Reserve Kennel Club, and made off with every major ribbon except three.

Fox Chapel Trio Wins Second Tilt

The Fox Chapel polo team made it two straight over the Four Horsemen at Agricultural Hall, South Park, yesterday afternoon, winning 20 to 19 in a high scoring match.

The Fox Chapel team won Saturday night's game, 23 to 14. Yesterday's lineup:

Fox Chapel.		Four Horsemen.
Collins	No. 1	Edmundson
Geary	No. 2	Englehart
Cain	No. 3	Danahay

LION BOXERS DRILL

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 12.—Strengthened by the return to action by Captain Tommy Slusser, veteran 185-pounder, Penn State's boxing team will begin training tonight for the annual Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association championships to be held at Syracuse on Friday and Saturday. Slusser missed the last three dual meets because of injuries and it was thought for a time that he would be unable to compete in the championship tourney.

CITY SQUASH TITLE PLAY ON TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The classic Jack Summers-Ben Pope three-day professional series at the Keystone A. C., being out of the way, Summers, thrice National premier, flashing a magnificent spurt to run out the four last games yesterday for 13-12 decision, crack amateur squash racqueters of the district square off late today in initial round of the annual city Class A title tournament on the K. A. C. boards.

The entry list, limited to a chosen 16 by ruling of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association, includes virtually every top-flight player of the territory currently engaging in active competition. The play will continue throughout the week with wind-up slated for next Sunday.

REED FAVORITE

McCook Reed, Keystone ace and defending champion, heads the seeded list of four and reigns as odds-on favorite to retain the crown. Few of the headliners encounter stern opposition in the inaugural. Early indications, however, point to several torrid jousts. The pairings:

First round—Upper half: W. McCook Reed vs. Lawrence S. Semans; James K. Ebbert vs. Frank S. McClintock; Joseph W. Oliver vs. John D. Evans; C. J. Caspar, Jr., vs. Charles A. Fagan, Jr.

Lower half—Henry V. Blaxter, Jr., vs. Theos E. Manos; William D. Bickel vs. David M. Gilmore; Edward E. Seifert vs. Paul G. Sullivan; G. C. Kennedy vs. Dr. David L. O'Loughlin.

More than a fortnight ago, when the Pope-Summers meeting was originally announced, the writer sat at the K. A. C. with Charley Fagan and Ben, and in the course of a fanfest asked just what went to make Summers the champion that he is. Pope enumerated various strong features of the Bostonian's style, then declared as follows:

"If there is one thing that Jack has that accounts for his wonderful success as a match player, it's the way he sticks in there fighting to the last point, no matter how far behind he may be. He's never licked, he never gives up, he's always dangerous."

If a man ever lived up to an advance notice, Summers lived up to that one yesterday. Going into the 2:30 session with the tally in games 9-7 against him, he proceeded to lose the first two stanzas of the day, 15-12, 15-9. He braced to pull out the third after a stiff tussle, 15-14, and he annexed the fourth at 15-12 as Pope appeared to tire a bit.

POPE FALTERS

Pope whizzed through the ...e of the dinner-hou... 5-5. Needing but one ... of the remaining fou... ...eiving the easterner in t... ...es of a slump, the Pittsburgh star permitted a bit of the edge to slip from his work. Summers got No. 3 at 15-9 and No. 4 by the phenomenal disparity of 15-4.

It was the fourth frame, though, that really told the tale. Ben was tiring, knew it and tried to pound the pellet flat to terminate the tilt on sheer power. This didn't work, which, of course, rendered it a mistake. Summers gathered in enough of the home aspirant's thrusts to turn the percentage against them and, though Ben pulled even at 7-7, 11-11 and 13-13 and actually led at 2-0 and 3-2 in the deuce bracket of five, errors cost him three straight markers to slip Summers the decision at 18-16.

MANOS VICTOR

Between sessions of the Summers-Pope imbroglio, Theos Manos, clever Keystone performer, took time to trim the writer, representing the P. A. A., in the final fracas for the city Class B championship. The count read 18-15, 15-13, 15-10.

The annual Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., junior handball championships grace the sport bill of the Y. M. H. A. here throughout the current week, singles getting under way at 5 p. m. today and doubles on either Wednesday or Thursday. Tournament Chairman Art Scher has announced that making of the man-to-man draw will be held up until immediately prior to the start of hostilities and that an attempt will be registered to clean up all first-round matches tonight. Entries will be accepted until starting time.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

TAXATION CUT URGED BY ECONOMIST

(High taxes which have the American taxpayer almost to the breaking point will go higher unless the waste and inefficiency in governmental operation is reduced, a nationally known educator declares in the following article. This is one of a series being published by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in a campaign to lower taxes by eliminating waste and overlapping in governmental services.)

The multiplicity of our taxing bodies and the overlapping of their functions is one of the principal causes for our tax burden, Ray E. Untereiner, assistant professor of economics at California Institute of Technology, declares in a current magazine article. In writing on "Why Taxes Are So High," for the April Cosmopolitan, Prof. Untereiner declares that taxes will go even higher unless the waste and inefficiency in operating the governmental machine is reduced.

Prof. Untereiner points out that back in 1927, there was considerable agitation over the fact that "every 14 persons, 16 years of age or older, gainfully employed, carried a public official on their backs." Today, every six, whether infants or adults, carry somebody who lives on the public money.

CITES TAX AGENCIES

Prof. Untereiner points out that taxes are levied by a national government, 48 states, 2,074 counties, 16,598 incorporated municipalities and nearly 200,000 special districts.

Governmental "retrenchment," he admits, has pared to the bone appropriations for education, reduced the number of policemen and firemen to the point where we have inadequate protection, and cut off a clerk or an office boy here and there, but has left intact our 200,000 taxing districts with their 177,000 full time and countless part-time officials, and scarcely touched the enormous waste caused by duplication.

RELIEF IN REACH

Prof. Untereiner declares:

"We must subject our antique political system to a thoroughgoing reform and the taxpayers must take the initiative. We can have lower taxes any time we make up our minds and use our united efforts in securing them. But we can't have lower taxes—until we rid ourselves of our outworn political subdivisions, districts, departments, bureaus, agencies and what not, with our army of public officials to keep them in operation. Retrenchment has already gone as far as it will go, unless we, the taxpayers, take a hand. We cannot expect our superfluous public officials to cut off their own livelihood."

Valve Manufacturer Names Distributor

The Beckwith Machinery Company, has been appointed as Pittsburgh distributor for Hypressure Jenny manufactured by the Homestead Valve Manufacturing Company, Coraopolis. The Beckwith Company, distributors for Caterpillar Tractors, Armco products, bulldozers, graders and other tractor equipment, will handle the sale of Model "D" Hypressure Jenny in 16 counties in the tri-state area around Pittsburgh. Their first sale is reported as having been made to the Wheeling Steel Company for use in its strip mill for cleaning windows, greasy floors and machinery, to promote safety.

Surplus Freight Cars Show Decline

NEW YORK.—On February 14 class I railroads had 412,679 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association announces. This was a reduction of 21,749 cars compared with January 31, at which time there were 434,428 surplus freight cars.

Living Cost Less In Canada Under Sales Tax Plan

Advocates of the manufacturers' sales tax to replace the income tax today pointed to the indicated success of the sales tax in Canada, now in its fourteenth year.

The yield for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1934, is expected to reach the unexpectedly high total of $62,000,000, a gain of nearly 30 per cent over the previous year.

Since the enactment of the Canadian sales tax in 1920 a total of $807,000,000 has poured into the Dominion treasury.

On a pro rata population basis, a similar tax in the United States would have meant a return in the same period of roughly $9,000,000,000, or about the amount President Roosevelt proposes spending on his recovery program.

The Canadian tax is by no means a tax on luxuries only. It is broad-based—and is not a tax on the masses nor a tax on labor.

The workingman's dinner pail is exempted together with the breakfast table of his family—his food, fuel and shelter. Under it the cost of living in Canada is lower today than it has been in 20 years.

Sponsors of sales tax legislation in the United States propose a tax similar in many respects to the Canadian plan.

DUNN HITS NRA POLICIES

CHICAGO, March 12.—Whether the improvement in business now so well under way will continue until prosperity is fully restored seems to depend principally upon the economic policies that will be followed by the government, Samuel O. Dunn, chairman of the Simmons-Boardman Publishing Company and editor of the Railway Age, declared in an address today at the annual meeting of the Signal Section of the American Railway Association.

The advocacy of further reductions of working hours and advances in wages in industry under present conditions is, however, a serious menace to continued recovery, according to Mr. Dunn. The reasons for this could not be better illustrated, in his opinion, than by the effects that would be produced upon the railroads and the industries from which they make purchases by the passage of Congress of the bill new before it to establish a 30-hour week for railway employes without reduction of their weekly compensation.

Local Company Gets Share in Contract

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(INS.)—The Hadley Contracting and Construction Company, Philadelphia, and the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Company, Pittsburgh, shared in the contracts for reconstruction of kitchens, mess halls and a water supply system at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Adjt. Gen. David J. Davis announced. The Hadley concern bid $45,699 for erection of 12 kitchens and mess halls while the steel company bid $107,100 for the water supply contract.

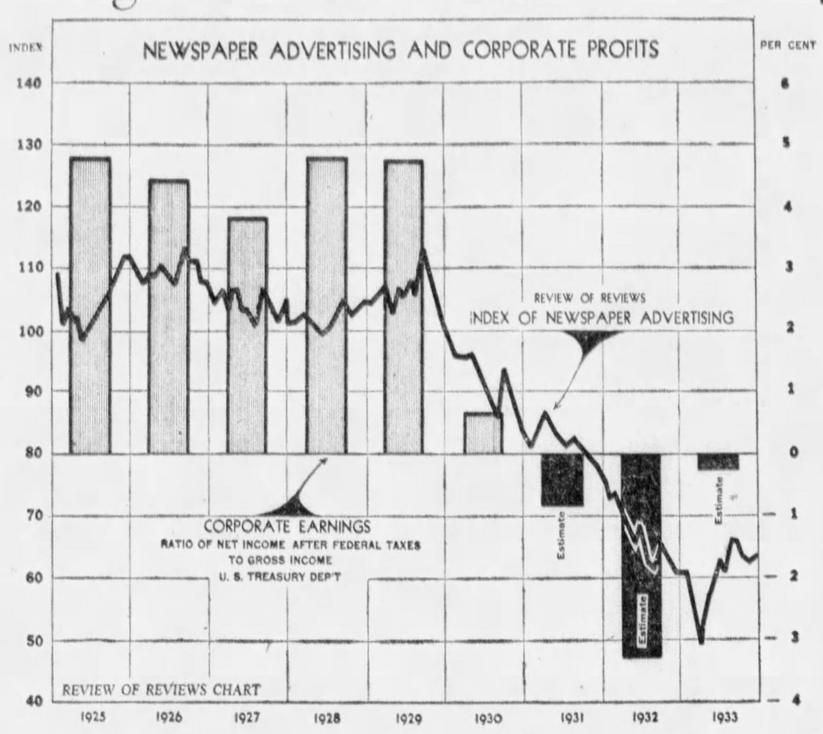
Newspaper Advertising Volume Significant of Trade Recovery



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Review of Reviews.

This chart shows the relationship between advertising and corporate profits. The average American company regards newspaper advertising as an investment to produce results in the future. It is a part of the necessary promotional effort to secure the greatest possible sale of merchandise.

As long as the trend of consumption is definitely downward it is very difficult to secure the return of funds spent for advertising. A great many companies have felt it more or less futile to attempt to buck this trend even though advertising research had proved very definitely that the consistent advertiser lost less ground during a depression and regained it much more rapidly on the recovery side than the company which failed to advertise.

The advertising line is significant in that it represents in part the state of mind of the advertiser, and particularly his opinion regarding the future. If advertising may be regarded then as an accurate barometer of business sentiment, it would seem that the business executives of the country are definitely convinced that better times are in the offing.

Due to the increasing importance of the government in business and the fact that the nature of government regulation is dependent largely upon public sentiment, our great corporations will find it increasingly necessary in the future to advertise for the purpose of influencing that public sentiment. Advertising in the past has been regarded principally as a means of increasing the sale of shoes, typewriters or automobiles. In the future much advertising will have to be policy advertising, designed to secure the sympathy and support of the public.

Science of Statistics In Infancy

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

IF AN AVENGING angel had flown over the world last night and had destroyed every statistician and his records, the loss would have been trivial.

Perhaps this is an exaggeration, but I speak as one who has devoted 13 years to the study of statistics and to writing about them along with more entertaining aspects of business and finance.

I am willing to admit that the gathering of statistics is necessary, that it provides an important measure of past accomplishment and lack of accomplishment, that a world without records of the past would be at a loss in regard to its present position, that it would be like a ship without compass, sextant or chronometer.

The real quarrel is with the interpretation of statistics. It is dangerous to draw conclusions from facts and statistics unless we are quite sure that we are not employing false logic and are quite sure that we have taken all circumstances bearing on a problem into consideration. Careless interpretation of facts and statistics has been responsible for a great majority of business mistakes.

Many Statistical Studies Mislead

FOR MANY YEARS statisticians have been making charts of past conditions and have been drawing conclusions about the future. In a lamentably great number of cases these conclusions have been wrong.

Most of us will recall the charts drawn as sales arguments for fixed investment trusts a few years ago. These took the market values of the 20 or 30 stocks included in the trusts over a period of 20 years. They showed a jagged line indicating the general upward trend of these prices. They drew the conclusion that this upward trend was to continue indefinitely. The falacy of this kind of statistical reasoning has been made obvious by recent events.

Similar charts were drawn showing the trend of general business in this country over long periods of years. Between the wiggling lines rising from panic to boom and falling again to panic the statisticians drew straight lines indicating a general upward trend. In 1929 they projected these lines into 1930, 1931, 1932 and 1933 to show just how perfectly swell business was going to be in the future. Statisticians became hypnotised by these lines and jabbered about a new era. Some admitted that we might have another depression, but none of their pretty charts took into account the coming of a bigger and more lasting depression than ever before.

True Statistical Science In Infancy

FURTHER EXAMPLES can be compiled without difficulty. Most of us are familiar with chart systems for predicting stock market movements. How many chartists have become rich?

Of course, we must keep on compiling statistics. They tell us what has happened. They give us a picture of our present condition if we use them intelligently. But we must be extremely careful about our use of statistics to predict the future. The true science of statistics is in its infancy.

LIVERPOOL, March 12.—The market was due 1⅛@1¼c higher. Opened unchanged to ⅛c up, and at 12:15 p. m. was ⅛@¼c lower.

AGENCY SHOWS INCREASE

New business during February, as reported by the Union Central Life Insurance Company, of Cincinnati, O., continued to surpass the marks made in 1933, an increase of 9 per cent being recorded, both for the month and the first two months of the year.

The Lyne & Sons Pittsburgh agency shared in this increase with the month's business being 12 per cent greater than February of a year ago. Sales in this agency for the year are also 44 per cent greater than for the same period in 1933.

Steel Prices.

Steel prices per 100 pounds f.o.b. Pittsburgh:
Blue annealed sheets, hot rolled, 10.
Galvanized sheets, 285.
Black sheets, hot rolled, 225.
Steel bars, 175.

SAVINGS PLAY NEEDED ROLE, SAYS BANK

NEW YORK, March 12.—Estimating total individual savings, including those represented by assets of life insurance companies and building and loan associations, at more than 50,000 million dollars, the current issue of The Index, monthly publication of The New York Trust Company, calls attention to the vital role this accumulation of capital plays in our national economy. Invested in mortgages, railroad bonds, public utility bonds, and other approved stocks and bonds of industrial corporations, The Index states, this huge sum constitutes "a most important financial backlog."

It is pointed out that during the depression years total savings have decreased by some 6,000 million dollars but that in view of the difficult times through which the country has been passing this reduction can hardly be viewed as excessive. The total still represents a sum exceeding the value of all capital goods produced in 1929 and that of all consumer goods of the same year. It is more than three times the total value of our foreign investments at the end of 1932, amounts to more than double the public debt as of January 1, 1934, and approximates 17 per cent of the national wealth. In terms of national income, savings represent the earnings of one year. The Index concludes:

"Perhaps more important than the reduction since the peak attained in 1930 are the ways in which these savings have enabled the American people to stand the economic strain of the past few years, and the strong position which the savings institutions have succeeded in maintaining."

Zenith Radio Sells Stock to Employes

NEW YORK, March 12.—The New York Stock Exchange has been notified that Zenith Radio Corporation has granted options on 4,400 shares of common stock to officers and employes at a $1 a share, expiring July 1, 1935, and 5,000 shares at $2 a share, expiring the same date.

Brown Shoe Company has given its president an option to buy a maximum of 8,000 common shares at $35 a share during the 10 years, expiring December 31, 1941.

Tin, Rubber Rise Augurs World Recovery

NEW YORK, March 12.—Strength of two international commodities, rubber and tin, is regarded in Wall Street as an interesting commentary of world recovery. Tin in London is at its highest price since 1928, while at New York two of the distant rubber futures have topped 12 cents a pound, bettering last year's highs.

STEEL REDUCES NET DEFICIT

United States Steel Corporation reports for the year ended December 31, 1933, net deficit of $36,501,122 after deducting all charges, including interest, taxes and depreciation. This compared with a net deficit of $71,175,704 in 1932.

This improvement resulted largely from a substantial increase in the volume of business. Steel manufacturing plant facilities were operated during 1933 to extent of approximately 29 per cent of capacity, compared with an average of 18 per cent in 1932. In 1933 the production of finished iron and steel products was 5,536,000 tons compared with 3,591,000 tons in the previous year. Plant operations reached the low point in the first quarter, averaging but 16 per cent of capacity, rising to 27.5 per cent in the second quarter, 41 per cent in the third and 31 per cent in the final quarter. The improvement in business was progressive during each of the seven months. Beginning with August there was a gradual recession until December, which showed a considerable increase over the preceding month.

BUS, STREETCAR NET LARGER

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—Net operating revenue of urban electric bus and rail lines throughout the United States increased nearly 3½ per cent in 1933 over the previous year, the American Transit Association announced today.

The total net operating income amounted to $115,094,174, compared with $111,364,502, the association stated, although traffic for the year declined around 6 per cent. Economies effected in operating costs accounted for the increase in revenue.

An upturn in traffic which began early last summer gathered momentum in the late fall and by the end of the year was in marked contrast to conditions a year ago, the association said, adding that transit officials attributed the gains chiefly to NRA activities and generally increased business.

Secret Agent X-9 Clue Contest

The Case of the Three Letters

Clue No. 1—The Harassed Financier

Secret Agent X-9 looked around the magnificent library into which the butler had showed him, but he had very little chance to feast his eyes on Angus McKay's rare antiques and priceless books, before the famous financier himself hurried into the room.

His face was a mask of fear, and barely pausing to greet the secret agent, he unlocked a drawer in the massive desk and handed X-9 a short letter, badly typed on cheap paper.

"Here it is," said Mr. McKay, "and I will spend my last million rather than let them lay a finger on little Malcolm."

X-9 read the letter, which ran, "Mr. McKay, this is to warn you that I have found a way to separate your precious son from all the gardians and tutors and detectives you have watching him, and unless you agree to my terms, you will wish you had handed over every penny you ever possessed because I will stop at nothing and you will never see your only child again. You will receive another letter in a few days giving you further directions, providing you place an ad in the [illegible] personal dressed to Ruthless, and agreeing to do what I say."

X-9 looked up. "Mr. McKay," he said grimly, "we must work this out with the help of the post office authorities. They will trace the letter for us. That is the first necessary step. Tell no one you received this letter, but put the ad to Ruthless in the paper."

The next morning, X-9 made another visit to the financier. "I have traced the letter as far as I can. It appears to have come from a house in the suburbs where there are four bachelor apartments," he said.

"Apartment A is occupied by Joel Hardy, an elderly man, retired from the Navy with a blameless record. Living in Apartment B is William Mead, the repair man of the local radio shop, whom neighbors have known for 12 years. Archibald Hallett, an instructor in English at the Junior High School, lives in C and Louis Steinfeld, a song-plugger and piano player, who has worked for years in the large music store on Main street, is Apartment D's tenant.

"One of these sent the letter. Our job is to eliminate the three innocent parties."

STOCKS DRAG IN CAUTIOUS TRADING

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—Financial markets moved at a snail-like pace today as most traders and investors showed no disposition to relax their recent attitude of caution.

Dullness in stocks was pronounced during the early hours. With few exceptions, leading equities held to a slim groove. Some of the utilities, which have been lagging noticeably, firmed moderately.

Silver and rubber futures again moved up, but grains were sluggish. Cotton was fairly steady. International dollar rates registered only slight changes. Bonds just about held their own, although the activity here was restricted to scattered specialties.

Work on the stock exchange control bill at Washington held the attention of trading circles. There was little comment on the proposal that the Federal Reserve System be given authority to fix margin requirements with the actual regulation of the market placed under the Federal Trade Commission. Most members, partly resigned to some sort of governmental supervision, still feel that business will be greatly retarded if there is any interference with the free movement of securities.

While the "Street" was cheered by settlement of the labor difficulties in the aluminum industry at Pittsburgh, with the workers winning a 11 per cent wage increase, it was realized that clarification of the strike situation, as a whole, might depend upon the hearings which get under way at the capital this week.

The case of the automobile workers, involving employes of large Michigan plants, will start on Wednesday. Discussions between the rail managements and union officials of an agreement on wages will begin Thursday. The existing carrier arrangement, which expires at the end of June, provided for a 10 per cent deduction from the 1929 basic rates of pay.

GRAIN VALUES TAKE SETBACK

CHICAGO, March 12.—Setbacks in grain prices formed the rule early today. Favorable weather for wheat crops prevailed, and there was but little apparent stimulus from firmness of stocks and of silver.

Opening at ¼ decline to ⅛ advance, May 87¼@⅞, wheat later showd downturns all around. Corn started ⅛-⅜ lower, and subsequently altered little.

R. F. C. Repayments Up Since Year-End

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(INS.)—Repayment of loans to the RFC in the January 1-March 10 period totaled $196,000,000, Chairman Jesse H. Jones announced today.

This was a substantial increase over last year. The largest single repayment was $12,000,000 by a mortgage company.

The corporation has authorized the purchase of $1,029,000,000 in preferred stock in 6,261 banks. A total of $497,000,000 has actually been dispersed in 2,075 banks. Liquidation loans to closed banks amounted to $686,000,000.

Tire Price 'War' Resumed in East

AKRON, March 12.—The tire price "war" involving discounts to customers through allowances for trade-in of old tires, has broken out again. This time the focal point seems to be the eastern part of the country centering around Newark and New York. It is said discounts of as high as 40 per cent have been made to customers trading in old tires.

Corporate Earnings

Rund Manufacturing Company report for 1933 shows net loss of $61,156 after depreciation and charges comparing with net loss of $209,084 in 1932. The balance sheet as of December 31, last, shows current assets, including cash and marketable securities at cost of $1,752,977, amounted to $2,511,765, and current liabilities were $74,865. SPRING ADVANCE IN BUSINESS FORESEEN

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 12.—In spite of the ebb and flow of sentiment in the financial district, business and employment continue to hold up well, and the statistical indicators appear to be laying the basis for at least a seasonal spring rise.

Mr. Rukeyser

Business is just beginning to feel the full benefits of widespread public spending, and will continue to be thus stimulated through the coming quarter.

The extremity of the weather during the winter has been more favorable to the coal industry than to the building trades. The price trend continues slowly upward, despite the technical correction in speculative stock prices.

Apart from purely financial worries, business management is mainly concerned with the threat of a new outbreak of strikes.

Executives think that the President would be warranted in asking for a labor truce until the re-employment campaign has succeeded.

RETAIL TRADE ACTIVE

Retail sales continue to hold up well, especially in the farm areas. The early Easter this year may push near-term comparisons out of focus, especially if the weather is favorable.

With eager buying by automobile makers and canners, the steel industry continues to move forward. Rail tonnage in better volume is being placed on the order books.

It begins to look as though the government will be unable to unbalance the budget quite as much as anticipated because of a delayed start on certain relief expenditures.

Of course, the estimated cash deficit is not a true deficit, because it includes numerous governmental investments in plant and equipment and in RFC loans and purchases, which presumably are being made with an idea of returning the government's money when and if prosperity returns.

With a return of the national income to something like pre-depression levels, the position of the Treasury could conceivably improve remarkably in a short time. That would, of course, depend on whether the effort to prime the pump proves successful. If the relief program does what is expected of it, it can readily be paid for out of the increment in national income.

A curious political shift in regard to banking is taking place in this country. Sentiment is developing in the South and West for a central bank. This is curious, for in those sections there has been traditional opposition to a central bank ever since Andrew Jackson cracked down on the second bank of the United States.

As a matter of fact, the federal reserve act, passed by a Democratic Congress in 1913, was a compromise, effected in deference to Southern and Western opposition to a strong central bank.

Symptomatic of a shift in viewpoint is a statement made to this column by Louis M. Jiggitts, Democratic national committeeman from Mississippi, who says:

"With a definite monetary policy adopted, credit control is the most important problem facing the government at present. The only logical solution is the establishment of a central government bank and a national banking system. It is to be hoped that the administration will not permit itself to be lulled into a sense of false security by the temporary attitude of the large banks."

WESTINGHOUSE CUTS LOSS

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company reports for the year ended December 31, 1933, net loss of $8,636,841 after all charges. This compared with a net loss of $8,903,540 in 1932.

Sales billed for 1933 amounted to $68,188,353, compared with $77,073,586 in 1932, a decrease of 11.5 per cent.

Orders received totaled $72,473,117, compared with $69,082,468 in 1932. The report said:

"While the total for the full year was 5 per cent over that obtained in 1932, there was a decided contrast between the two years. In 1932 the trend was downward during the year, whereas in 1933 the trend turned upward starting from the low point in January. The volume of business received in the last six months of 1933 was 48 per cent greater than the volume received in the same period of the previous year.

Current assets amounted to $75,379,755 and current liabilities to $4,554,537, a net working capital of $70,825,218, and a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of 16.6 to 1. The figures are net amounts after deducting appropriate reserves.

World Bank Pays Regular Dividend

BASEL, Switzerland, March 12.—(AP.)—Despite the heavy drop in its business, the Bank for International Settlements today announced the 6 per cent dividend customary in boom days.

Leon Fraser, of New York, president of the bank, reduced employes' wages and pared other expenditures sharply in order to make the bank pay.

Its fiscal year ends March 31.

CHAPTER XV.

"It's the third time I've seen Wilma Trask pass out in a month."

"Yes, and now that she's going with that dissipated Charlie Banks anything can happen."

Pippin and Kathleen had been to a party. Shocking things happened. Several of the girls drank too much. There was a lot of wild dashing to the machines and wilder racing through skiddy streets, plenty of petting in all the dark corners, with the hostess running about asking everyone what she should do to get the couples to the supper table, and finally a rather terrible scene when one of the mothers found two quite young boys treating everyone from flasks.

Now behind closed doors Pippin and Kathleen talked about it. Both girls were a little scared. Both hoped their mothers wouldn't hear.

"I don't blame Mrs. Tyler," said Kathleen. "She spent a lot of money getting in musicians and a grand supper that was hardly touched, and it's pretty embarrassing when you can't walk up a flight of stairs without stumbling over half a dozen stupid people who haven't sense enough to do their loving in private. All I hope is that mother doesn't find out about it, or I can see where my style gets cramped good and plenty."

"As far as I'm concerned," said Pippin. "I don't care. There's no real fun in that kind of party."

"Yes, but the trouble is they'll cut out all parties. They'll think wild things happen everywhere. Parents have no moderation."

Edward Intrudes

Kathleen walked over to her bureau, opened a box and took out a very exotic corsage. The orchids were white with lovely rose-colored centers. She laid them against her dark face with a sigh.

"I've accomplished something, Pippin. I've educated Bob to orchids."

Kathleen had her hair parted in the middle and drawn to a coil at her neck. Her eyes were clear, her forehead beautiful. She looked like a sweet young beauty until she began to talk. Then her wide rippling mouth, painted very red, went up at the corners; her nose showed its upward tilt. She had the impish, rollicking air of a street gamin.

"I wish I was the kind of a girl men naturally wanted to do princely things for. Dozens of orchids, tons of candy, diamond tiaras!"

Kathleen smiled and lightly touched the flowers to her lips. Edward entered . . . with an air of great secrecy closed the door softly behind him. Kathleen dropped her corsage into the box and turned very red.

"Enter without knocking, Eddie dear, and some day you'll catch me in my birthday suit."

"Don't worry about that," said Edward tartly. "You wear little enough on the outside."

"Did I tell you or did you find out for yourself? You must have done plenty of research to reach such a sweeping conclusion. Maybe your technique was wrong."

Brotherly Advice

Edward went over and sat next to Pippin on the bed. "Wise kids, aren't you? Know just about everything—Nice orchids, Kathie. Just one of the little things I've got to talk about."

"Toodlee-oo! Nobody in this house needs to go to church with little Eddie around to make us sermons."

"That won't stop me, Kathie. You like those orchids and you ought to be ashamed to wear them. Bob can't afford $5 for flowers and $4 more to take you dancing in a hotel. You're a shabby little gold digger to angle for it as, of course, you did."

Kathleen turned crimson . . . "The idea . . . I've never spoken of orchids. I told Bob buttercups would do."

"Yeah—. I know how a girl passes out that line. You'll get the flowers for a month or two and lose your man for life. Fellows get wise to you janes—just a bunch of chiselers. No boy going to college can afford you! None with any spirit would want you."

"Don't make us laugh, Edward!" countered Pippin, indignant as she saw Kathleen's joy gone. "You think they won't want us—oh, no! The pure young man yells for a modest violet. But he picks the red lily. They do it every time. Don't we know!"

"Get that smart idea out of your head pretty darn quick, Pippin! And that's just the core of the whole stupidity. Girls do these silly things like angling for flowers and acting dizzy because they think it's the way to popularity. I'm telling you a man has no respect for a girl like that. No one wants what he knows he can have!"

Makes Comparison

"Edward," said Pippin with more heat than wisdom, "you gripe me terribly. Why hasn't a girl a right to try things? Fellows have been doing it since the beginning of the world."

"It's not a question of right, but of self-preservation. Girls can't get away with it. They never have and they never will."

"That's a cheap reason, Edward. You mean we don't dare things because they're not safe. I'd rather be brave and take a chance."

"If you were really brave," said Edward incisively, "you wouldn't be apeing the messy things men do. You'd figure out a destiny for yourself and work toward it."

"Oh, darling, what a wonderful remark!" Pippin cooed, linking her arm in Edward's. "Can I use it for a college theme?—Free girls blaze new trails to loveless Edens!"

"And I still maintain," Edward snapped through shut teeth, "that you kids start these things, not because you're driven to it by any feelings you have but because you think the fellows expect it. So you're not free but much more servile than the women of the past. Your poor saps of grandmothers catered to men because they had no choice—they were poor girls trying to get along. The only way was to annex a man. But they got a wedding ring with bed and board for life before they allowed the man and his wishes to overwhelm them."

Knows About Party

Both girls colored hotly. They looked at each other, then at Edward.

"Who told you?" they whispered in awed, frightened voices.

"I heard all about it. Did you think it was a good party? Did you enjoy it?"

"Oh, Edward, it was awful. We nearly died."

"Why was it so awful—it's just the freedom you're yelling for."

"Oh no, it isn't. It was messy and stupid and terribly unnecessary. It made a person ashamed to belong to the same race."

Edward said, bitingly: "I see. You think you can start a little and stop while it's pleasant and dignified. But emotion is like water tumbling down hill. Once it leaps over, there's no stop till it hits bottom—usually in the mud."

"Edward," said Pippin, drawing a loud, harsh breath, "don't you tell Mary and Helena about that party! Because you have sense enough to see they'd only worry themselves sick. Kathie and I are down at college. We can do as we please. If we're so dumb that we go in for this hot stuff, do you think anything you'd say could stop us? Do you think we'd be worth saving?"

"I'm afraid I do, Pippin. And I'm burnt up about that party and your fresh line of chatter and these orchids of Kathie's."

"Don't worry about the orchids," Kathie flamed. "You've taken the joy out of them, all right."

"Darn glad I have! If you think I'll stand by and see you messing up your life without saying a word, you're mistaken."

A Kiss From Pippin

"What are you going to do when you get to Heaven, grandpa, and can't tell other people where to head in?"

"And Edward, darling," Pippin leaned over quickly and kissed the stern young man's cheek: "Kathie and I are mad about these little things. You are, too. Can we have one, once in a while?"

Edward went scarlet. He got up, strolled to the door, stood there with his back turned. Finally he said in a harsh quiet:

"You kids know very well I'm not advising against an occasional kiss, and you know what I do mean. There's only one way to play that game—stop before you begin!"

The door closed. The two girls confronted each other. Pippin shrugged:

"Well—I guess that will keep the old haloes on straight for a day or two more."

Kathleen gave the lovely flowers a vicious shove. Tears rushed to her eyes.

"I never want to see an orchid again."

Both were shaken and nervous.

Pippin walked home in a tumult. At the presidio wall she paused and looked down through wistful trees to the evening waters. They were quiet with a deep rhythmic peace. Life should be serene like that—beautiful. Suddenly she remembered the night she stood on this hill and Bill kissed her goodby; held her close in his arms while he kissed her. She loved it! She wanted it. Her heart flamed. That couldn't be wrong—a man's arm about you—a man's lips on yours. Surely not!

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, and Kathie McPike laughingly appeal to Kathie's foster-brother, Kevin Malone, to take them to their first dance. Kevin promises. Then, teased by the two girls because he is eight years older than they, he seizes Pippin and kisses her. Pippin goes home to her mother to secure permission to go to the dance, astonished and thrilled at the first real kiss she had ever known. Given permission, Pippin attends the dance with Kevin and has a glorious time. Chickie thinks her daughter has gone into the strange land of adolescence too soon. Kevin sails to Europe and his first letter thrills Pippin. Pippin meets a handsome young ensign, Bill Lodge, at a ship dance. He says he loves her before sailing away. Chickie visits some friends and meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. David appears and Chickie is greatly relieved.

THE GOLDEN AGE OF GREECE—SOME FAMOUS SCULPTURES OF THIS PERIOD

After the expulsion of the Persians (479 B. C.) Greek civilization reached a high level. Cultivated by the greatest intellects of the ancient world, philosophy, science, literature, art flourished. Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, in science, philosophy; Eschylus, Sophocles, Euripides in drama; Herodotus, Thucydides, Xenophon in history; Phidias, Scopas, Praxiteles, Leochares, Polykleitos and their followers in sculpture, architecture created works which still enlighten and inspire the world. COLONIZATION OF THE CAROLINAS—ARCHDALE, THE GOOD GOVERNOR

After the unsuccessful attempts of Sir Walter Raleigh (1584, 1586), Robert Heath received "Carolina" from Charles I (1629) but did not colonize. Charles II granted (1663) the lands between Atlantic and Pacific (29°—36° N. L.) to eight lords (Clarendon, Monck, Ashley, Carteret, Berkeleys (2), Craven, Colleton) as reward for their aid in restoration of the Stuart dynasty. The lords sent their first expedition in 1670, settling near Charleston, S. C. The North was already inhabited by Quakers, the forests by lawless elements. Religious toleration soon brought Dutch, Puritan, Huguenot, Scotch, Swiss, Irish and German settlers. Slaves were imported from Africa.

The "Constitution," framed by Philosopher Locke on feudal order, failed. Governors, sent by the lords, disagreed soon with popular assemblies. A period of misrule followed which changed for the better with the governorship of John Archdale (1695-1696), an honest, tactful, just Quaker, who purchased an interest from the lords and restored confidence of colonists and Indians. Above: Gov. Archdale is shown negotiating with Indians.

After his departure financial and administrative difficulties started again, prompting the proprietors to sell to the British Crown. Carolina (North and South) became a royal colony in 1729. (United States History)

RAPID-SAND FILTRATION—DRIFTING SAND FILTER

The rapid-sand or American system of water filtration differs from the slow-sand or English system. The American has an artificial surface filtering layer formed by coagulation. The filter is cleaned from time to time by reversed flow of water and agitation of sand.

The coagulant (aluminum sulphate) is added to the raw water, the soluble carbonates of which form with it aluminum hydroxide in colloidal dispersion:

Al2 (SO4)3 + 3Na2CO3 = Al2 (CO3)3 + 3Na2SO4 and Al2 (CO3)3 + 6H2O = 2 Al (OH)3 + 3H2O + 3CO2.

Al (OH)3 slowly coagulates carrying down other suspended particles (bacteria, coloring matter, etc.) retained by the sand. Sometimes lime is added to the aluminum sulphate to produce aluminum hydroxide.

Rapid-sand filters furnish per acre surface, about 125,000,000 gallons of filtered water a day—60 times that of the slow filters.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY ADMINISTRATION OF PUBLIC WORKS (PWA)

The PWA, created by Public Act 67, 73rd Congress, fosters employment by advancing $3,300,000,000 for public works (roads, naval vessels, bridges, schools, housing projects). It contributes 30 per cent of costs to state and local public projects, repayable at 4 per cent interest during projects' life.

The Civil Works Administration (CWA), created by Executive Order No. 6420-B, aims to give work temporarily to 4,000,000 people at real wages (minimum $1-$1.20 for skilled—and $0.40 to $0.50 for unskilled labor an hour, 30 hours a week).

It is financed by PWA funds. These funds to be exhausted by end of March, 1934, labor is figured to be absorbed by rallying industries in greater part, the rest to be taken care of by federal and state agencies. Above: Crew of CWA-paid workers building a road.

EXPLOSION MOTOR IGNITION BY HIGH TENSION MAGNETO

In the high tension magneto ignition system (above left) low tension current is generated in the primary winding of the armature rotating in the field of permanent magnets. The primary current interrupted, high tension current is induced in secondary winding and connected by distributor to each spark plug in succession. Magnetos and armature shown above, right. Magneto eliminates the battery by generating current. Installation of magneto and battery ignitions gives double safety.

Many have been weighed and found wanting. We have a few distinguished ones who prefer to drop their own pennies in the scale and let the government do the wanting.

How does it feel to scramm loose from your native grid-iron and play all your games on foreign fields? Even though you exited with millions, there is no place like home.

Suppose you are safe in Abyssynia, a proud nation which leads the world alphabetically? It is much nicer to be in America in the spring, where only man is vile.

No man is happy in his guarded tent with 12 high-priced lawyers doing sentry duty. A controlling interest in the African jungle won't get you anything but a lot of bites.

Amid the Tibetan plateaus or low in the Siamese marshes a man's conscience must be clicking on all six. He still remembers that latch key on the end of his watch chain.

Now, you land in Goolrockia with a million dollars of the money you grabbed from your fearless home town investors. That money ain't any good to spend, unless you first change it into native coin. Know what they're using for currency in Goolrockia this year? Bone buttons and chicken toes.

And they judge prominent men quite differently over there. A high hat, spats and cane mean nothing. The big feature is clam shells in your ears, and pointy teeth. You can't vote unless you have killed one enemy and two lions. Starting out on the warpath with nothing but a spear and knife is the world's toughest method of bilking widows and orphans.

No wonder the self-made expatriate longs to come back to America and take his spring sulphur and molasses from the D. A. Scramming seemed a good idea at the time. But you can't keep dodging forever. Uncle Sam has a long arm, and the fingers start at the elbows.

A neat job of bail hurdling may get you away for a while. But a few years of retreating get monotonous. It is a terrific shock when you finally realize the government can wait as long as you can.

Many would steal a million if they got the chance. You can figure out your chances of getting it with paper and pencil.

But when the G men start after you, that's when paper and pencil won't help you. And this seems to be a year in which the G men are earning their letters.

Protection for American Merchant Marine

It is to be hoped that in dealing with the ocean mail contracts the administration will not repeat the precipitancy which marked the cancellation of the air mail contracts.

It committed a grievous error of judgment in its sweeping and abrupt course with reference to the aviation industry.

The error, plain from the moment of its commission, is now seen by all, including the administration.

It is not unlikely, as urged by some, that the President was misinformed and ill-directed by his subordinates in dealing with the air mail situation.

We regret to say that there is indication that with the ocean mail contracts, the same ignorance and misdirection may again beset him and lead him once more into disastrous courses, damaging to his prestige and that of his administration.

In the first place, the Senators who have taken the lead in casting discredit upon the mail contracts, persist in ignoring their real purpose and their true character.

They were awarded as protection for the American merchant marine.

They were intended to place American ships, so far as building and operating costs are concerned, on a parity with foreign tonnage. In both the construction and operation of ships we have been for years at a hopeless disadvantage, by reason of our higher wage scales, material costs, and standard of living.

These disadvantages, it has been recognized, could only be overcome with government aid, and this the government undertook to give in the form of the so-called mail contracts.

It is rather cheap to hold up to public contemplation a payment intended to encourage American ship building and the maintenance of our flag on various important trade routes, as a payment for the carriage of mail matter, and to test its propriety and reasonableness solely with reference to the amount of mail carried, which may be at the moment inconsiderable.

The sums paid, if viewed from such a standpoint, naturally present a striking disparity to those who are unknowing and uninitiated. It becomes easy to infer that something scandalous has been revealed, when as a matter of fact there is nothing except what is proper and patriotic.

This becomes a species of governmental self-deception, and of public deception, if adopted by the administration as a pretext for striking down the ocean mail contracts.

It is in fact chicanery and nothing else.

If abuses have crept into the relations between the government and the ocean carriers, let the ABUSES be corrected.

If the government's enlightened policy as expressed in the Jones-White Shipping Act, to provide "for the national defense and for the proper growth of the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States," is being used as a cover for practices that are wrong and indefensible, let that fact become known by investigation.

But it should not be forgotten that Congress has declared in a formal enactment that it is the purpose of the United States to have "a merchant marine of the best equipped and most suitable types of vessels, sufficient to carry the greater portion of its commerce and serve as a naval or military auxiliary in time of war or national emergency, ultimately to be owned and operated privately by citizens of the United States.

Congress has gone even further and has declared it to be the policy of the United States "to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage the maintenance of such a merchant marine."

And it has given express directions that in the administration of the shipping laws, THIS PURPOSE and object must be kept always in view "AS THE PRIMARY END TO BE OBTAINED."

As Vincent Astor says, writing in a recent issue of the magazine Today:

"Our shipping companies as a whole are sound, our new ships are on a par with the best in the world, our sea-faring personnel are efficient and resourceful. We must go forward."

And the American public have hoped that American shipping would go forward.

But we shall never go forward if the government, in dealing with matters of such vast importance as the flourishing industry of aviation and the development and maintenance of an adequate merchant marine, refuses to give heed to the practical results of its own measures—CONTENT TO DESTROY, when it is ONLY NECESSARY TO CORRECT.

Call the mail contracts what you may—they constitute the same kind of protection which is accorded to American industry to protect it against foreign competition based on foreign cheap labor and low standards of living.

If we are to have an American merchant marine, the government must give SUPPORT AND PROTECTION to it. And any government should desire to do this which is an American government.

A Record Vote Desirable

The People Should Know How the Councilmen Stand on the Proposed Salary Cut.

City Council has cut the pay of the municipal employes 16⅔ per cent, but has refused to cut its own pay.

The fact that the salaries of councilmen are fixed by the Legislature is no excuse. A reduction could be taken by reducing the appropriation for salaries, thus making it necessary for any councilman who insisted on receiving the statutory amount to go into court and sue.

Councilman W. A. Magee has proposed that councilmen should voluntarily accept the same sacrifice of pay that they are requiring other city employes to take. But although this is obviously no more than fair he has been unable thus far to persuade a majority of the Council to agree.

Parliamentary procedure has interfered with putting the councilmen individually on record on this matter. The proposal should be pressed until an aye and nay vote has been taken.

The people should know how each councilman stands, so that he may be held to account.

Gone, Pots and Kettles

Now It's Air Conditioners and Thermostats.

Woman's place may still be in the home, but if the scientists and educators are to be believed, the home will soon be so completely changed that women will have to re-learn their jobs.

Dr. Freda J. Winning, of the department of home economics and home-making, at New York University's School of Education, declares that the housewife of today needs to be an engineer as well as an economist, chemist, mechanic, psychologist and interior decorator.

At any rate, that's the kind of home-making Dr. Winning and her assistants are teaching to young women, each of whom is required to plan a complete kitchen with all its equipment. Gone is the old pot-and-kettle school. Now the housewife has to go to college to study the intricacies of such newfangled devices as air conditioners and thermostatic control gadgets.

What About the Others?

(Copyright, 1934.)

By providing for a "treaty-strength" Navy with an adequate aviation force Congress has acted wisely and patriotically to redress the ruinous neglect of years.

The Navy was allowed to deteriorate to third rank among the important Powers, while England, Japan, France and Italy were building new ships.

Our new construction program, if carried through, will assure once more the nation's first line of defense.

Next must come the Army and its Air Corps. Our land forces must be modernized and mechanized, properly housed and augmented in numbers to established peace-time standards.

And the Army Air Corps must be made what the Navy's now is—THE WORLD'S BEST.

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE OF NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign affairs," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 12.—Diary: Lay late, reading a long communique from an American in Paris, as doleful a swan song for civilization as ever I read and the most beautifully written. Yet I do not share his despair. So to breakfast with Basil Woon and chatted with Bert and Grace Lytell.

Herding the daily tramp of syllables and away with my wife and into a gallery and came upon Theodore and Helen Dreiser. Then on a bus top, high through town, to Grant's Tomb and sat on a bench in the gathering dusk and had a contentful talk and to the Waldorf to sit with Ted Woodyard awhile.

Dinner with the Eddie Peabodys, May Robson and the Paul Whitemans and heard the girl Ramona sing and play. And a personable lady she is, tall, dark and engagingly shy. Thence to the theater talking to Mrs. Rex Cole and driving with Robert Garland and Queenie Smith to lonely Horatio street.

Lucille Watson, out of the Clyde Fitch era, has returned to the stage as most modern of the grandmothers, beautiful and proud, downing her full quota of cocktails, burning endless cigarets and interjecting epithets that would tingle a bargeman. She moves with rugged grace among a group of weekend idlers, chirping with the small talk one likes to hear in other peoples' homes. A gushing grass widow exclaims of her sleeve dog, "Isn't Skookums frightfully, frightfully pretty?" And she cooes: "Too utterly!" Which gives an idea.

Most everybody connected with writing is touched off with an inward glow by the go-ahead of Ring Lardner's son John. A handsome chap, he essayed to follow his father's calling, became a leg man on a New York newspaper, and because he showed such aptitude soon won a by-line. Recently he was signed by a national syndicate to do a daily feature. His humor shows the same restraint of his father, also a fine originality and freshness.

The noon-day jostle in the narrow down-town channel of Ann street is something for a Hogarth or other valiant etcher of sidewalk scenes. The office worker hordes descend at noon and overflow into the street. Seedy curb fiddlers play jigs, cafeterias offer concertina strains for the mid-day dancers, toy vendors hawk gimcracks and the whole street bubbles a merry jumble. But I think the gayest touch is a fly-blown stool and counter place with a window card imploring: "Become one of our steak-holders!"

Other spots below Forty-second I always pass several times a year are Kline's on Union Square, the old Broadway Central Hotel and the Gem lodging house in the Bowery. I have watched Kline's self-sale dress place balloon from a hole in the wall to an entire building along with one next door. My grandad used to tell me about the Fisk-Stokes murder on the "grand stairway"—I can make it in three jumps—at the Broadway Central, and the Gem is where I dug up the best feature story of my career. And which was never printed.

For the first time since repeal I dined at one of those chintzy southern tea rooms, always so sedate. Poising before darting to the kitchen with my order, the waitress archly inquired: "Cocktails or wine?" And I haven't felt so hellish since dusting myself off in Rue Royale with a Maxim waiter, shoving a coat and hat at me, and yelling: "And don't come back!"

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Adventurers

Of steadfast heart, they strode along
With knife and gun, with prayer and song;
Some bore the cross, some brought the sword
Into the wilderness unknown,
Some served their king and some their Lord
In ways untrodden, treacherous, lone.

A smiling land about them lay,
The fighters' heartts were bold and gay;
The barefoot priests came, fierce and brave,
And filled with conquest's fiery zeal
For savage tribes they sought to save;
The cross alone could make them kneel.

Adventurers at heart, they went
Across the wild, new continent;
So stout of will, so sure, so young,
Whether for cross or crown they fought,
Of braver souls no poet sung,
With nobler blood no land was bought!

Heroic Service Is Rendered By the United States Coast Guard in Saving Ships Menaced By Storm

By Edwin C. Hill

NORTH ATLANTIC winter weather is a wicked enemy of seafaring men. Its most savage fury is vented on the service which long ago earned the right to be called "the Good Samaritan of the Sea," the United States Coast Guard. When bitter gales come whistling down from the North, lashing the ocean to 40-foot waves; when snow and sleet flies, and ice chokes dangerous channels; when few vessels move except the great liners, then comes the time of the Coast Guard's greatest activity.

Straight out into the snapping jaws of the blizzard move the stout little vessels, bound on their errands of mercy, to rescue lives in desperate peril. Their records are crowded with hundreds of such true tales, to a few of which this reporter has been a witness. But not in years have the men of the Coast Guard been so tried as they have this winter and particularly in these days.

Ships in Distress Almost Daily

ALL up and down the Atlantic coast, from Baltimore to Maine, Coast Guard cutters have been keeping the channels open in every important harbor—the Cape Cod Canal, Boston Harbor, the Maine coast, Buzzard's Bay, Long Island Sound, the Hudson River—all big problems trying the nerve and skill of officers and men, who must drive their ships through thickening ice. And almost every day one or more of the ice-breakers is suddenly summoned to the rescue of a ship in distress. Such was the call that came to the Coast Guard Cutter Mendota, just the other day.

The steamship Malden Cross was snorting northward through a gale, when she sighted the windjammer Purnell T. White, a big lumber schooner from Down East. Terrifically hammered by the storm, the schooner had gone on her beam ends, snapped off her masts like matches and lost her sails. She was in a bad way. All this was radioed by the Malden Cross to the Cutter Mendota, and when he got the tale, the Mendota's skipper, Commander William Keester, stood out through the lashing gale for the Chesapeake Lightship.

From the northwest the wind came with a battering drive, screaming through the rigging of the cutter, dropping the temperature under zero, sheathing the Mendota with ice. But even so, she found the derelict windjammer wallowing to her death in the mountainous seas, helpless and waterlogged, found her, got a line aboard her and took her in tow. Then through the wicked night came a crimson flash from the schooner's deck, and that meant just one thing, the schooner was sinking and there was no time to lose. Yet no boat could possibly live in those great, gray-green swells. Keester would have sent his men to certain death and knew it.

Three Saved, Four Are Lost

YET something had to be done, and through the howling of the storm came the shrilling of the bosun's whistle calling all hands to quarters. Coast Guardsmen in high boots, heavy jackets and sweaters, and wool caps, thronged the forecastle, ready for action with heaving lines, life lines, life buoys, life rafts and a gun for firing life lines. To within thirty feet of the slowly rolling schooner, the Mendota worked through the storm and seas. Over the schooner she shot a life line, followed by a three-inch hawser and a life raft.

A seaman from the schooner slid down the hawser to the raft, clung desperately and was hauled safely aboard the cutter. Two more tried it, a seaman, and the Negro cook. But the gods were against them. The savage sea tore them from the raft and the faint echo of their feeble cries for help came back to the men of the Mendota. Two more were saved, but the mate, with frozen hands lost his grip on a line, and was gone in a breath, and Nichols, the captain, missed his footing and was smashed to death under the keel of his own schooner. That was all, three saved, four dead, after a terrible forty-eight hours.

'Heed Lincoln's Example' Still Best Rule

By James T. Williams, Jr.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN made mistakes, but he tried not to make the same mistake twice. His love of liberty was only equaled by his passion for justice, "the breath of liberty's being."

Most of the mistakes made by new Congresses and new administrations during their first year of power can be traced to the strong temptation they are under to act first and investigate afterward.

The present Congress and the present administration are not exceptions to this rule. There was a banking crisis in this country last spring that called for action. There was no time for further investigation in advance of action. Every now and then there arises in the lives of families and of nations a grave crisis where action must precede investigation. These instances are rare.

Pride Themselves On Radicalism

SOME Senators and some Representatives in Congress and some members of the administration seem still to labor under the hallucination that the best rule for all legislation and for all administration is to act first and investigate afterwards. They pride themselves upon being "radical." This is their idea of progress.

These men forget that, as Theodore Roosevelt once said:

"Lincoln was a great radical. He was, of course, a wise and cautious radical. Otherwise he could have done nothing for the forward movement. But he was the efficient leader of the forward movement.

"In Lincoln's day, as in our day, there were wise men and foolish men, good men and evil men, both among those who called themselves conservatives and among those who called themselves radicals; and sometimes emphasis had to be placed on the need of daring, and sometimes on the need of caution.

"It was the radicals who were most interested in the destruction of slavery; and in this the radicals were right; and although Lincoln held them back, and steadied them, yet in the end he led them to victory. But on the whole the radicals put the destruction of slavery above the preservation of the Union, and herein they were wrong; and the conservatives took the reverse view, and herein they were right, and Lincoln sided with them; and in the end they followed him when he saw it was best to make one cause both of freeing the slaves and of saving the nation.

"From all his record it is safe to say that if Lincoln had lived to deal with our complicated social and industrial problems he would have furnished a wisely conservative leadership; but he would have led in the radical direction."

No clean minded, clear headed and honest hearted American can imagine Lincoln as a senator condemning men presumed to be innocent before they had been proved guilty, or before they had been given a chance to be heard in their own defense.

No such American can imagine Lincoln as a representative in Congress resorting to gag rule to prevent the respectful petition of any citizen, however high or low his walk in life, being given a place in the public record of Congress.

No such American can imagine Lincoln sniping the memory of those heroic defenders with the colors, who went so gallantly to an unnecessary death by speeches on the floor of Congress, or elsewhere, which belittled their sacrifices and sought to soil the bright page of history which immortalizes their memory, or by insinuating that they did not know how to fly the colors or that they did not obey orders.

Would Deny No Man His Day in Court

COWARDICE and slime of this sort was wholly repugnant to the spirit of Lincoln. The mire of such politics never soiled his boots. He preferred always, unless the gravity of the emergency prevented, to investigate before he acted, to presume a man innocent until he had been proved guilty by due process of law, to deny to no man, however rich or poor, high or low, his day in court, his chance to a hearing before he was condemned.

If the present Congress and the present administration profit by their mistakes of their first year of power, they will face them with candor, acknowledge them with humility and strive with a new earnestness not to repeat in their second year of power the mistakes they made in the year just ended.

If this comes to pass, those gallant officers of the Army Air Corps, who were trained to fly the colors and were sent to an unnecessary death before they were given a chance to train and be equipped to fly the mails, may not have died in vain.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

You have gone through your life in a roughshod, heartless manner.

You have pushed through your undertakings irrespective of the sorrow you have caused others.

Can you console yourself with the thought that those who are too weak to combat you, should expect to be crushed by you and others?

You believe in the survival of the fittest and that weaklings will be trampled upon.

Not only in your dealings with your equals have you manifested this cruel unsympathetic spirit.

In a fight for supremacy with those fitted by experience and power to adopt tactics similar to those you so often follow, it might be expected that you would be unfeeling in your actions.

They would not spare you if opportunity offered to give them an advantage.

Such a struggle is entirely different from one which is so one-sided that your opponents have no chance against you.

A time will come in your life when all that you have gained at the expense of brushing others will bring you only hours of regret.

Then your worldly possessions won't compensate you for the accusations of your conscience.

KROGER COOKING SCHOOL PROMISES NEW THRILLS

CLASSES HERE DIFFERENT; NEW TALKING FILMS AT EACH SESSION

"This, ladies," as Walter Winchell might tell the story on little old Broadway, "is a Cooking School that is different."

"Yes, ladies, it is different!"

The Kroger Food Foundation different, you say? Different from other schools?

Yes, you can safely bet Johnnie's last clean pair of rompers that this school is as different from the ordinary run-of-the-mine cooking school as a fine piece of hand-made glassware is different from the old tin cup that used to hang on the pump handle.

The Kroger Foundation has purposely made it that way, so that you would be sure to attend; so that you would get a lot of interesting entertainment along with valuable cooking instructions.

No doubt you will find more, but seven points are outstanding.

NEW TALKING PICTURES

Each of the three cooking school sessions will include new talking pictures just produced by the Foundation to supplement the popular "Thought for Food," which made its debut during the last year's school. "The Battle of the Bills," "Buying a Living," "Partners in Purchasing" and "The Wife Wins" are the names of the new productions. One of the stars in the films is President Albert H. Morrill, of the Kroger Company, whose picture is shown on the screen and whose voice is heard welcoming the audience of women and introducing Mrs. Helen Watts Schreiber, the cooking school lecturer.

Second among the unusual features of the school is likewise a picture on the theater's "silver screen." But this is no talkie—no movie. This is a "still" slide—rather a series of still slides injected in the lecturer's discussions detailed views of the products and at just the right moments to show recipes she is demonstrating on the stage.

Next, to make the school as profitable as possible to all women who attend, there's a special loud speaker system arranged in Memorial Hall to carry every word of the lecturer's talks to the furthermost parts of the auditorium.

ONLY FOOD PRODUCTS HERE

You might not think there is anything unusual about a cooking school where only food products are featured. But there is. This is a cooking school in every sense of the word. And only foods, plus one other item closely associated with good kitchen keeping, are made a part of the demonstrations.

Here's point No. 5—and how interesting to women—an assortment of gifts and presents which adds still another attraction to Kroger Food Foundation Cooking Schools.

The sixth feature of the foundation cooking schools—interesting as any, but perhaps not so apparent to the casual observer—is the size and completeness of the school's staff. Lecturers, economists, advance agents, electricians, movie operators, property men, stage hands and others take part. The school, in fact, is as complete a road show as any professional theatrical production, with its sets of "props," the elaborate stage settings, kitchen equipment and talking picture facilities.

Finally—very heart of the school itself—the women are going to find real pleasure and valuable assistance in the subjects selected by Mrs. Schreiber in each day's cooking school lecture. On Tuesday she will speak on "Breakfasts and Luncheons," on Wednesday on "Dinners and Desserts," on Thursday on "Serving Leftovers Attractively."

Each topic brings valuable assistance to women on some seldom discussed but nevertheless important phase of kitchen management.

SEAL IS BADGE OF HONOR

It is a badge of honor on all merchandise on which it appears.

The Foundation's personal guarantee to the housewife that here is a product in which she may have absolute faith, a product tested in the laboratory of the Kroger Food Foundation, where the scientists, home economists and dieticians are constantly at work setting standards for food merchandise sold in Kroger stores.

They seek not the minimum standards which the law permits, but the maximum standards which Kroger can offer its customers.

This seal—whenever it appears on a product in Kroger Stores—tells the housewife that here is an item worthy of this food badge of honor.

SIX NEW BOOKS ON FOOD

Order blanks will be given at the Cooking School for use in obtaining from the Kroger Food Foundation any one or more of this new series of six booklets:

1—"A Calendar of Dinners."
2—"Leftovers Made Over."
3—"The Feeding of Children."
4—"Book of Troubles."
5—"Soup and Chowders."
6—"When the Doctor Says 'Diet.'"

Foundation Gives Aid to Teachers

Hundreds of home economics teachers in high schools and colleges write annually to the Kroger Foundation in Cincinnati for information on meal planning and for recipes of all types.

Children Admitted Only When With Their Parents

Children will be admitted to the Kroger Cooking schools only if accompanied by their parents. In order that all women attending the schools may have an opportunity to give full attention to the demonstrator's lectures on the stage, the management requests that youngsters not be permitted to distract others in the audience.

In order to accommodate the greatest possible number of women interested in learning more about food preparation, it is urged that children under 5 years be held on the lap.

Tickets Obtained At Any Store Of Kroger's

You do not need a ticket to obtain admission to the sessions of the Kroger Foundation Cooking School at Memorial Hall Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Admission is absolutely free.

BUT . . . if you want to be eligible for one or more of the valuable daily gifts and for the grand presents you must deposit a ticket in the container at the entrance before 2:30 p. m. Only one ticket will be accepted from each guest.

The assortment of gifts headed by a Westinghouse Refrigerator valued at $216.00, includes just any number of articles attractive to women.

To obtain a ticket, go to your nearest Kroger Store and ask for a Cooking School Ticket, or if you fail to do this, you may obtain one in the lobby of Memorial Hall Tuesday. Be sure to fill in your name and address before dropping it in the container.

CODE OF ETHICS RULES STORES

Shoppers gain definite and very worth while advantages in making their purchases at Kroger stores, for there they are assured of efficient and courteous service, of fresh and wholesome foods, of honest and upright dealings and of quality merchandise at low costs.

These are the facts underlying the growth of the Kroger organization from one small store to more than 4,500 scattered throughout 17 states.

The Kroger organization has a definite code of ethics. This requires that employes give every customer full 16 ounces to the pound; that each purchase shall be exactly computed and the correct amount of change returned. This is a law with Kroger. Any employe who violates the law of honesty is summarily dismissed.

Kroger salespeople are required to be patient and courteous and to represent truthfully the quality and value of merchandise.

Staying for All Of Lecture Urged

Women who attend the cooking school should plan to remain for the entire session. H. B. McNamara manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, urged. Mr. McNamara pointed out that women who get up to leave when the school is in session distract not only the women in the audience, but the lecturer as well.

Stores Placed in Convenient Sites

There are very few neighborhoods in metropolitan Pittsburgh where one must go more than two or three blocks to find a Kroger store. In some of the larger suburban business districts two and often more of the stores are to be found.

SPECIAL CLASS FOR EMPLOYES ON TONIGHT

At a prevue meeting tonight at Memorial Hall, more than 1,000 members of the local Kroger organization will hear Mrs. Helen Watts Schreiber, lecturer of the Kroger Food Foundation Cooking School, describe the sessions that begin here tomorrow.

The purpose of the meeting is to explain to the personnel here the work of the Kroger Food Foundation Cooking School, and to outline some of the unusual features that have made it the most effective advertising of its kind in every city where it is presented.

MEETING IMPORTANT

The meeting is considered an important one . . . members of the local branch attend daily because of the important part played by Kroger stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity in supplying cooking school tickets to women and making available to them the merchandise recommended by the cooking school lecturer for use in the many new dishes and recipes she discusses on the stage.

Perhaps the highlight of the evening's entertainment will be a talking picture of Kroger's president, Albert H. Morrill, who will speak about the work of the Cooking School and call attention to some of the features of this year's presentation.

EXECUTIVES ON PROGRAM

Several of the local branch executives will be on the program.

Another entertainment of interest to all members of the local Kroger organization will be a prevue of four new talking pictures of the Food Foundation Cooking Schools which will be shown for the first time during the sessions of the School of Pittsburgh:

"The Battle of the Bills."
"Buying a Living."
"Partners in Purchasing."
"The Wife Wins."

SPECIAL 'TALKIE'

Special Staging For Food School

The stage setting used by the Kroger Cooking School was especially designed and built for the organization under the direction of Claude Cobbs. It was designed to meet the widely varying requirements of the many stages on which the school plays and in every detail resembles those used by leading theatrical productions.

Expert on Recipes

MRS. HELEN WATTS SCHREIBER . . . . . COOKING EXPERT

32 Cities Visited By School in Past Year

Just imagine a Cooking School in the "show" business. Yet that's just what we have in the Kroger Foundation School which opens in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Listed with the Theatrical Union as a "traveling road-show," the school carries a complete set-up, with scenery, properties, kitchen equipment, and lighting and movie facilities equivalent to many large theatrical productions. In addition, in the troupe are lecturer, assistant, business agent, advance agent, property man, sound technician and movie operator. Last year the school visited 32 cities playing to capacity audiences in every community.

The majority of troupe members are the same ones who traveled 6,000 miles with last year's cooking schools, and they have spent the entire summer in perfecting the elaborate presentation you will see.

The late "Flo" Ziegfeld glorified the American girl, but it takes the Kroger Food Foundation to glorify the American housewife.

SCHOOL COVERS GREAT AREA

Last year the Kroger Food Foundation Cooking school, the first ever sponsored by that organization, traveled more than 6,000 miles throughout the Mid-West, playing to audiences of women from Madison, Wis., on the north, to Memphis, on the south, and from Pittsburgh on the east to St. Louis on the west.

This year's schools are not only larger and finer than their forerunners in their many unusual entertainment and educational features, but they will likewise exceed the record of previous schools in miles traveled.

Have Fun Cooking, Women Are Urged

"Get all the fun you can out of preparing your food," is the advice of Mrs. Helen Watts Schrieber, cooking school lecturer.

"We pass more of our waking hours in the kitchen than in any other place in the home. Learn to do your work so you will take pleasure in it. Make your kitchen the most attractive spot in your home; let it glow with color. You will find those long, distasteful hours will have become short, happy ones."

3-DAY FREE EVENT OPENS TOMORROW AFTERNOON IN MEMORIAL HALL

The City of Pittsburgh this week plays host to the brand-new, up-to-the-minute 1934 edition of the Kroger Foundation Cooking School, which last year attracted almost a quarter million housewives to its sessions.

Promptly at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the doors of Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall will open to the public, and at 2 o'clock will begin the first of the three classes that will make cooking school history here.

No stone has been left unturned, no expense has been spared to make the school the most outstanding ever attempted.

Opening each day's program will be another successful talking picture by the Kroger Food Foundation. Last year's picture, "Thought for Food," called forth so much favorable comment from cooking school audiences that the result was not ONE, but four new pictures for the present school. "The Battle of the Bills," "Buying a Living," "Partners in Purchasing" and "The Wife Wins" are the titles of these "talkies," and each is just as interesting, amusing and instructive as its predecessor, "Thought for Food." And each, judging by the opinions of women who have already viewed them, is destined to be a hit.

COOKING SCHOOL PROGRAM

When Mrs. Helen Watts Schreiber—the practical homemaker, brilliant home economist and sparkling humorist, who is the lecturer of the Kroger Food Foundation Cooking School—takes the platform tomorrow afternoon, she will present to her hearers a school which is as unique in its many unusual features as it is complete and broad in the scope of its work.

The program which Mrs. Schreiber has selected for each of the three-day sessions are so well rounded and complete as to include all of the many phases of food preparation. Tomorrow she will speak on "Breakfast and Luncheons," on Wednesday on "Dinners and Desserts." Thursday her subject is "Serving Left-Overs Attractively."

But the programs themselves are only one of the many entertaining features of the school. Another point of interest and importance is the elaborate preparation that has been made to guarantee that every woman who attends—no matter where in the audience she may sit—will HEAR each word that is spoken during the lectures, and SEE every detail of the work done by the lecturer on the platform.

MANY ATTRACTIVE FEATURES

But there are other features—many others.

At each session a number of valuable gifts and presents are to be given to women who attend. Included among the daily gifts to be made at the three sessions are Westinghouse electric irons, coffee makers and toasters, kitchen-fresh aprons and some 40 certificates entitling their holders to meat, fruit and grocery merchandise presented by the local branch of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company and by the national manufacturers who are participating in this school with the Food Foundation.

As grand gifts, awarded at the end of the final cooking school session, there will be a large Westinghouse electric refrigerator, val-

LOCAL WOMEN ON FOOD BODY

Pittsburgh women who are represented on the Homemakers' Reference Committee of the Kroger Food Foundation have been enjoying hugely their work in assisting this institution as members of this most interesting committee.

The Homemakers' Reference Committee, a selected group of 750 representative women chosen from throughout the Tri-State district, include several of Pittsburgh's leading women. The duties performed by committee members constitute one of the most interesting and important functions of the Food Foundation. The committee members give the really final seal of approval, that of actual home use, after Kroger laboratory scientists have completed their extensive analytical tests.

The tremendous good being accomplished by this group is appreciated when it is considered that each and every member of the committee is a homemaker in every sense of the word, who was selected because of the alertness, intelligence and aptitude with which she approached her work.

The Food Foundation has been particularly interested in the pleasure which women have been receiving from the work. In fact, they have received numerous inquiries as to how women may participate in this enjoyable work. In order that the work of the committee be effective, however, its membership must not become too large, so the limit of 750 members has been strictly observed. Each city in which Kroger operates is allotted a certain number of committee members based on its size. These members were carefully selected from recommendations made by local citizens in positions acquainting them with housewives especially interested in homemaking duties.

Kroger Cooking Tour Closes With Party

It's all business on the Kroger Cooking School for the 35 weeks the organization is on tour. Then, at the close of the session, the members of the cooking school staff gather in Cincinnati, at Foundation headquarters, for a farewell dinner and "ribbing" party before they depart for their respective homes.

There is a very strict unwritten law that no business can be discussed.

Typical Crowd at the Foundation Cooking School

A TYPICAL CROWD—A PACKED HOUSE—AT A SESSION OF THE FOUNDATION SCHOOL . . . THIS WAS A LECTURE ON FOODS

Scholar on Program Of Cooking School

A man who has written, edited or contributed to a whole library of books on sociology, politics, economics and history will appear before the audience of women who attend the sessions of the Kroger Food Foundation Cooking School.

He is Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes, world-renowned scholar and a forceful writer on problems of current interest.

But Dr. Barnes will not appear in the flesh. Kroger Food Foundation brings him to the guests of the Cooking School through the medium of the talking picture. In one of the four new pictures that the Food Foundation has prepared for this year's school, as successors to last year's successful "Thought for Food," Dr. Barnes speaks from the studio of his home in Auburn, N. Y., on a subject intimately related to the work and daily home-keeping problems of women.

Two of Dr. Barnes' books, "Living in the Twentieth Century" and "Can Man Be Civilized?" have attained such popularity as to make an introduction for him hardly necessary. But, as if this were not enough, he brings to his hearers a record of brilliant accomplishment in many fields.

Dr. Barnes graduated from Syracuse University in 1913 and later attended Harvard and Columbia universities, holding a Ph.D. degree from Columbia University. Since that time he has been associated with a number of the well-known universities and colleges throughout the East and West as an outstanding professor and lecturer on history, science, sociology, economics. Besides this, he has held positions as vice president of various economic, sociological, historical and political societies and was associate editor of several professional journals.

Daily Gifts Feature At Food School

As housewives who have been reading with interest the news of the Kroger Food Fundation Cooking Schools well know, the management of the Food Foundation has gone to every source to provide features which make these schools different from the ordinary cooking school. Talking pictures, still slides on the screen at Memorial Hall, unusual recipes and food dishes, a loud speaker system so that all may hear, movies of marionettes, and an attractive repertoire of actual subjects for discussion, are included among the innovations of the school which opens tomorrow. Another interesting feature of the school is the large number of daily and grand gifts available to women attending the sessions.

On each of the three days of the school, the list of daily presents will be headed by a home electrical appliance supplied by the Westinghouse Company . . . on one day an iron, on the next day a coffee maker, and on the third day a toaster.

Other gifts made on each of the three days include:

One Kitchen-fresh apron, awarded by Kraft; three certificates each for one dozen bananas, one certificate for five pounds rib roast Kroger quality beef, one certificate for one pound Country Club package bacon, three certificates for one 24-pound sack Country Club flour, three certificates for Her Grace angel food cake, two certificates for one quart each Hollywood stuffed olives, 12 to 24 certificates for each of the following list of foods:

One quart can Mazola, one-half pound can Rumford baking powder, one package Foulds or Country Club macaroni or spaghetti, one box Quaker or Mother's oats, one box puffed wheat, one box puffed rice, one package Kraft Velveeta, one jar Kraft mayonnaise, one pound French coffee, one pound Country Club bread, one can Wesco meat loaf.

A Westinghouse electric refrigerator, valued at $216.00, tops the list of grand gifts to be made at the end of the third day's session. The complete list follows:

Westinghouse refrigerator, 6½ cubic feet, value $216.00. Westinghouse food mixer, retail value, $32.70; gift basket, complete assortment of Kraft cheese and mayonnaise, Kroger cash coupon book, $5.00 value; two certificates each for 1 10-lb. smoked ham, certificate for 1 dozen bottles Latonia ginger ale.

Women are again reminded that in order to be eligible for daily gifts and grand presents, it is necessary that they obtain a cooking school ticket and drop it, properly filled out in the container in the lobby of Memorial Hall.

DURUM WHEAT IS PROMOTED BY FOULDS

In the Great Northwest spring breezes ripple acres of special golden wheat. Durum is its name—because this flavorful grain has a particular hardness all its own.

It was not ever thus, this plentiful domestic supply of real Durum. For not so many years ago Durum grew in Southern Russia. And today it might very well not be raised so successfully in the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota, if it had not been for the Foulds Milling Company.

PROMOTE CULTIVATION

Foulds had been making macaroni products since 1890, when—some years ago—Durum wheat was introduced from Russia. Immediately recognizing its superior qualities of firmness and nut-like flavor, Foulds was first to adopt Durum for their macaroni, spaghetti and egg noodles. It was no half-hearted adoption either. When, after careful study, Durum proved to be the perfect macaroni wheat, Foulds began making their products 100 per cent of pure Durum Semolina. (Semolina is the name of the processed grain. It is the Italian word for cream of wheat.)

Because Durum was then mainly an imported commodity, Foulds' immediate problem was to encourage adequate domestic growth of the grain. And "adequate" meant not only sufficient quantity but proper quality.

Where there's a will, there's a way. For several years, the Foulds Milling Company offered a beautiful loving cup to the farmer who raised the best crop of Durum wheat. Available also to farmers was a fund of information, compiled by Foulds, on the proper and profitable raising of Durum. As a result, more and more of the golden grain began to grow on domestic farms.

IMPROVE MILLING PROCESS

Next, Foulds turned their attention to the mills which processed the grain into Durum Semolina. Constant experimentation and research has gone on in Foulds' laboratories in developing, from the manufacturer's standpoint, the particular qualities which go to make an ideal Semolina for high quality macaroni. As a result, some of the country's largest mills are making their Semolina output conform to a grade that was determined in this research and originally specified by Foulds.

It can be positively stated that better macaroni is being made in the United States today, by mills which place quality first, than has ever been made before. Unquestionably, a large share of this betterment is due to the loving cups and encouragement and co-operation through which Foulds pioneered in the raising, and improved the processing of real Durum wheat.

Compare Tiny, Giant Lights

Smallest Electric Light Burns Year for Dime

About 50 years ago when incandescent lamps were in their infancy, the variety of shapes and sizes could be numbered on the fingers of one hand. Today, there are some 3,000 different kinds, which include many oddities that might well fit into the category of Ripley's "Believe It or Not" cartoons.

Probably one of the most fascinating designs of the Westinghouse Lamp Company is the "Grain of Wheat" lamp, so called because in size and shape it actually resembles a grain of wheat. The smallest lamp in commercial use today, consuming only one-fifth of one watt, it could burn all day long for a year at a cost of 10 cents, based on the rate of 6 cents per kilowatt hour. These tiny "specks" of light are used in doctors' instruments for exploring sinus regions and such.

At the other extremity of the lamp family is the 10,000-watt lamp, which has a glass bulb larger than a man's head. The cost of operating this lamp continuously for a year at the kilowatt hour rate of 6 cents would be $5,232.

The 10,000-watt lamp is used principally in motion picture studios, but also has applications in airport lighting and frequently is used for special occasions where the spectacular is desired.

It is an interesting sight to see the many different shapes and learn of the many characteristics of lamps that are not used in the every-day life of the average person. One, for instance, is used in deep sea diving to explore the bottom of the ocean when salvaging the treasures on sunken vessels, or in the case of Dr. William Beebe, who works off the coast of Bermuda, to observe the habits of deep sea fish between 1,000 and 2,500 feet below the surface. Another is the tubular lamp—about an inch in diameter and a yard long. It is used for pillow light sources in architectural illumination.

The ordinary incandescent lamp is designed to give an average life of 1,000 hours at the most efficient operating brilliancy, while the Westinghouse Mazda Photoflash Lamp burns only one-two-hundredth of a second.

School to Show Serving of Meat

The program of the Kroger Cooking School includes all the various phases of food preparation. Each recipe and discussion will deal with both simple and more elaborate dishes. An important part will be the preparation of different meats in the manner best suited to those cuts, because every cut of meat can be made tasty if properly prepared.

BANANA COLOR SIGNAL FOR BEST USE

Do you know WHEN to eat a banana?

Any time at all—that's the answer, as any small boy will tell you.

There are three times and three ways to eat a banana. And there's a color signal for every one.

The first color signal is green. You cook a green-tipped banana—broil it or bake it or fry it in butter. It's a luscious, satisfying vegetable.

At the next color stage the green is gone—your banana is yellow-gold. You can eat it now—it has a good flavor. Yet the pulp is still firm enough for cooking. Pick your bananas yellow-ripe for pies and cakes and puddings.

And now look for bananas yellow-brown. The peel is turning darker, flecked with brown. And the pulp of the banana is fully ripe—all its starch transformed by nature into digestible sugar.

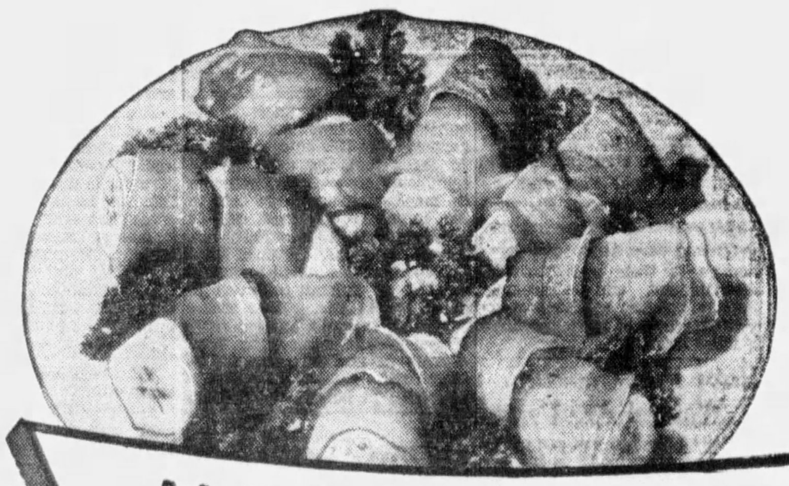
Eat a ripe banana between meals—it's a quick source of ready energy.

SALAD FORGES TO FRONT

Now that fashion has moved the salad from its place as an incidental on the menu to the commanding position of first course, served either in place of or with the appetizer, there comes an increasing interest in various types of salad dressing, as well as in the salad itself.

In salad dressing types, there is first of all the French dressing—spicy, piquant, tart—the pert afternoon frock of the salad dressings—particularly adaptable to cheese salads. Next in line comes the more formal mayonnaise with its myriad of uses. For this use, only a perfectly blended and strictly fresh mayonnaise is suited. It was to provide such a mayonnaise that Kraft-Phenix produced its "Kitchen-Fresh," blended in a patented machine and delivered to grocers by a national system of fast delivery trucks so that it always reaches the customer's table literally kitchen-fresh.

The newest addition to the salad dressing line, and perhaps its most versatile member, since it is equally appetizing with almost anything from potato to fruit salad, is Kraft's Miracle Whip Salad Dressing. This is a salad dressing produced to combine the best features of true mayonnaise and old-fashioned boiled salad dressing—not top bland, not too sharp, not too oily, but enticingly "just right."



NEW WAYS TO SERVE BANANAS

THEY'RE GRAND
cooked with meats and used as a vegetable

YELLOW with GREEN TIP

THEY'RE GREAT
when yellow ripe, especially for salads and desserts

When the green tip has entirely disappeared, the raw banana is readily digestible for eating as a fruit. The pulp is still firm enough for cooking as a vegetable and is in the right stage for pies, cakes, puddings and salads.

MELLOW when they're YELLOW

THEY'RE MARVELOUS
to peel and eat when they're speckled ripe and sugar sweet

—and when served with milk or cream or sliced over ready-to-eat cereal, they make practically a balanced meal. When fully ripe, bananas are one of the easiest of all foods to digest.

BANANAS WITH BACON
6 bananas ½ pound bacon

Roll half lengths of peeled bananas in strips of bacon. Secure with toothpick if necessary. Broil or bake in oven-proof dish in a hot oven, 450° F., about fifteen minutes, or until bananas are tender and bacon is crisp. Baste at least once during the baking . . . Whole bananas may be wrapped in bacon and cooked in the same way.

"Both Fruit and Vegetable, Bananas are Nature's Masterpiece"

The Kroger Foundation Cooking School tells how to use this valuable food in all three stages of ripeness

COOKING with bananas is new to many women, although experts, dietitians and chefs, have known their value for years.

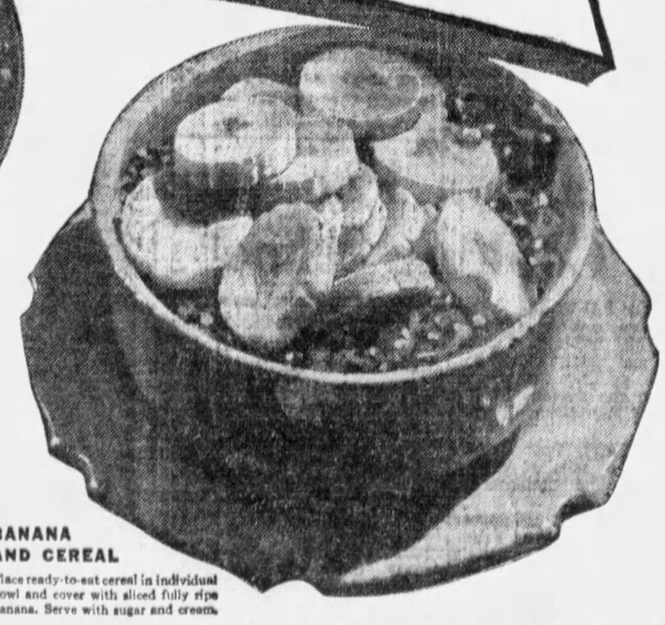
BANANA CREAM PIE
6 bananas, 1 cup heavy cream, 1 tablespoon powdered sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 pie shell or 6 tart shells.
Slice bananas. Mix thoroughly with stiffly beaten cream to which have been added powdered sugar and vanilla. Fill baked pie or tart shells with this mixture. Sprinkle with grated bitter chocolate if desired. Make one 9-inch pie.



BANANA AND CEREAL
Place ready-to-eat cereal in individual bowl and cover with sliced fully ripe banana. Serve with sugar and cream.

PATENT SPOUT PLEASES WIVES

Methods in preparing the world's fare have changed. The modern homemaker turns a spout, a switch or a gadget of some kind, and presto, her work is done.

One of the most favorably accepted conveniences is the new patented spout on all Mazola tins. This pouring spout eliminates all waste and prevents oil from dripping on the top and sides of the tin. When not in use, the protective cap keeps Mazola free from dust and dirt. Despite this costly improvement, the price provides genuing economy in the preparation of delicious foods.

Notice the attractive and colorful Mazona can—it bespeaks the modernity of Mazola oil.

The germ or heart of each corn kernel is the source of a rich, nutritious oil, commonly known as Mazola.

Cracked corn is passed through germ separators. Because of the oil in contains, the germ rises to the surface and is removed, washed free from adhering starch and hulls, and pressed in squeezers to remove the water content. The germ is then dried in large steam dryers.

The dry germ contains over 50 per cent oil. This oil is then further refined and purified and sterilized, and the result is the light, golden-yellow oil we know as Mazola, a delicious oil for cooking.

HAIL CEREALS AS ANY MEAL FIRST AID

Cereals are first aid at any meal—for breakfast, lunch or dinner. Please don't frown at us for making such a broad statement. You surely don't think that cereals are good only for breakfast food? Oh, don't be behind the times! There are all sorts of good ways to use Mother's Oats—and they're good for you.

For breakfast—Quick Gems.

Overnight soak one pint of uncooked oatmeal in one pint sweet, cold milk. In the morning add two unseperated and lightly beaten eggs, three-fourths teaspoon salt and three teaspoons baking powder. Bake in oiled gem pans for about 20 minutes.

For luncheon—Peach Soup.

Soak three-fourths cup of rolled oats overnight in one quart of cold water and one pint of juice drained from canned peaches. Stir, strain and bring to boil. Season with sugar and a pinch of salt. Serve with grated cheese, melted in the oven.

For dinner—Oatmeal Indian Pudding.

Three cups scalding hot milk.
One-half cup molasses.
One-half cup raisins.
One teaspoon salt.
One-third teaspoon ginger.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
Three eggs, beaten.

Scald oatmeal with hot milk, stirring constantly. Add all other ingredients, except eggs. Cook 5 minutes, let cool slightly, add beaten eggs, pour into buttered baking dish, cover and bake gently for 45 minutes.

Serve warm with cherry sauce.

Heat one and one-half cups cherry juice, add one tablespoon cornstarch which has been mixed thoroughly with one-half cup sugar. Let boil five minutes and add two tablespoons lemon juice. If cherry juice is very sweet, use less sugar.

When making oatmeal for the undernourished child, use half milk instead of all water in the mixture. It will make the dish much more nutritious.

A COMPLETE SCHOOL

Into the planning and development of this most unusual of cooking schools has gone all of the years of experience and all of the vast resources of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company and the Kroger Food Foundation.

Tomorrow, all of this time and money, all of the effort and talent that has been put forth in Mrs. Consumer's behalf, come to a climax as far as Pittsburgh women are concerned. The event is free to all, and it is one that no woman in this city or surrounding territory will want to miss. All are cordially invited and urged to attend at Memorial Hall tomorrow afternoon.

Baking Powder Improves Oysters

How many of us have groaningly regretted the fried oyster spree which so tickled our palate at the time of indulgence. The writer is one whose enjoyment of that particular delicacy was always tempered with the knowledge of what was to follow.

No longer is this necessary, however. Not long ago there was published a booklet entitled "Sixty-four New Uses," in which Rumford Baking Powder Company included a recipe for fried oysters with the indigestion factor well removed.

Not only does the baking powder give improved results so far as taste and appearance are concerned; but also in the case of acid fruits it makes possible a considerable reduction in the use of sugar.

Take a tip from one who knows and secure one of these fascinating little booklets explaining the 64 new uses for Rumford Baking Powder. At the Kroger Cooking School you will be supplied with an order blank which will make it easy for you to secure it.

MODEL KITCHEN SAVES STEPS

One of the outstanding features of the Kroger Cooking School is the beautiful all-electric kitchen that is installed on the platform. Two electric ranges, a refrigerator, food mixer and numerous small appliances are the tools with which Mrs. Helen Watts Schreiber prepares her tempting dishes.

How electricity has been thoroughly domesticated is apparent in the modern kitchen on the stage.

The Westinghouse refrigerator, a product of years of research, incorporates the ideas of hundreds of housewives, who, better than anyone should know what they want in the ideal unit. Before engineers designed the cabinet and unit they learned that no less than 21 essential requirements had been established as necessary to a modern refrigerator. All of these are found in the Westinghouse refrigerator.

Next is the electric range, a completely automatic unit. It does, automatically, what the housewife has had to do manually when roasting meat. It first sears the meat at a high browning temperature; next automatically lowers the temperature to complete the cooking.

CHEESE MENU VARIANT

Cheese is a good mixer. For the homemaker seeking escape from menu monotony, there is probably no one food which offers such possibilities. Its versatility in adding novelty and flavor to every-day dishes from soups to desserts is limited only by imagination.

This is particularly true of the cheeses which best lend themselves to cooking such as the new Kraft American, with full, natural flavor, and Velveeta, the cheese food, digestible as milk itself. More and more, the busy housewife is turning to cheese dishes and the list of such dishes is almost limitless.

MORE REASONS WHY EVERY HOUSE NEEDS

Westinghouse

Come to the Kroger Food Foundation Cooking School; you will find many reasons why Every House Needs Westinghouse. And you may win some of the appliances free. In Cooking...as well as in Baking ...Rumford Baking Powder is of real importance

NRA WE DO OUR PART

Baking with Rumford is easy and convenient

You can mix the batter or dough quickly and put it right into the oven...or you can put it in the refrigerator for a later baking time. You don't need to worry about opening and shutting the oven door... nor need you "walk softly" while the bake is in the oven. Rumford's perfect two-to-one leavening takes care of this.

Two-thirds of Rumford's leavening action always takes place in the mixing. The final one-third does not start till the batter or dough is in the oven heat. This correct two-to-one leavening action is scientifically developed and controlled by 52 tests in the process of manufacture. These tests assure you that Rumford Baking Powder leavens at the right time, in the right place and in the right amount to produce perfect results . . . light, fine textured hot breads, cakes, pastries.

FULL WEIGHT ALWAYS

In General Cooking... Many meat, egg and vegetable dishes are more tasty and delicate when Rumford is used. It improves flavor and texture, shortens time of preparation, saves sugar-money. Be sure to get the New Use Cook Book. It contains unusual recipes and information which you will be glad to know and use.

The highest authorities on nutrition state that the diet of the American people is "more often deficient in Calcium than in any other element."

Rumford is a pure all-phosphate baking powder. It contains the valuable calcium phosphates so vitally necessary to maintain good health in young and old.

That's why Rumford is a real asset in planning meals, particularly for children. They need calcium to aid in developing sturdy bones, strong teeth and to upbuild their general health.

Rumford adds real dietary value wherever it is used.

UNUSUAL ROLL RECIPE WINS $5 PLACE

We all like surprises . . . pleasant ones, anyway . . . Prudence Penny knows, so today for a $5 prize recipe she gives us what upon baking appears to be an ordinary Parker House roll, but in reality contains hidden and unexpected deliciousness. Orange biscuit is this desirable first prize winner which you'll want to immediately clip for your most favored recipe file.

Why not incorporate a surprise quality in all your meals? Not that your foods should wear a continual disguise of preparation or decoration. Rather, serve new dishes occasionally, vary your menu items.

Don't have the family reconciled to eating beef on Monday, veal on Tuesday, pork on Wednesday. To serve the same meals on the same days, week after week, is a sign of laziness on your part that is inexcusable considering how simple it is to obtain new recipes daily through the prize recipe column in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Just as you can get new recipes from the column, you can help other women enlarge their cooking vocabulary by sending in your tried and true recipes to Prodence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. For the recipes she finds most satisfactory, she will pay you either $5, in the form of first prize, or one of ten $1 prizes. No recipes submitted are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

JEAN SMITH,
7340 Idlewild street.
ORANGE ROLLS

I make these the same as a Parker House roll only before folding the roll over I place a pice of orange on it which has been prepared in this manner. Grate all the rind off in a bowl, and separate the orange, dip in powdered sugar, place on the dough that has been cut out with a biscuit cutter and brushed with butter. Lap over and crease and brush top with butter and place in warm place to rise. When light, bake in hot oven. When done let cool until warm.

Have ready one cup of powdered sugar, one tablespoon of butter, a little of the orange juice, and the grated orange rind. Mix well to a butter frosting consistency and spread over the rolls which are in the pan and still warm. By the time you are ready to use them, say five minutes, the frosting will be dry and delicious.

PARKER HOUSE ROLL RECIPE

Three tablespoons of lard and butter mixed, two tablespoons of sugar, two cups of milk and one cake yeast, dissolved in one-fourth cup luke-warm water with half teaspoon of sugar. Put milk, sugar, lard and butter in a sauce pan. Let it get hot enough to melt the lard. Set off to cool. When luke warm, use about a quart of flour with a teaspoon of salt and mix into a stiff dough, knead well, grease, and set in warm place to rise. When nice and light make into above rolls as directed.

TOMATO AND CRACKER PATTIES

One cup salty cracker crumbs.
One egg.
Salt and pepper.
Combine tomatoes and crumbs rolled not too fine; add slightly beaten egg. Season to taste. Form into patties and brown on both sides in hot fat. Serve with meat or as a meat substitute. This makes about 15 medium-sized patties.

MISS MAGDALENE F. GREIS,
444 Freeport road, Blawnox.
WHOLE WHEAT DOUGHNUTS

Two eggs, well beaten.
One cup sugar.
Two-thirds cup sour milk.
Two tablespoons melted butter.
Two cups whole wheat flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon nutmeg.
Two cups sifted bread flour.

Beat eggs with rotary beater in mixing bowl. Add the sugar, milk and melted butter. Measure whole wheat flour and add baking powder, soda, salt and nutmeg. Add flour mixture to egg mixture. Add remaining flour and knead gently. Toss dough on a lightly floured board. Roll to one-fourth inch thickness. Cut with doughnut cutter. Fry in fat at 375 degrees Fahrenheit or when a cube of bread or small piece of dough will brown in 60 seconds. Turn the doughnuts when they rise to the surface. Turn again when doughnuts are sufficiently brown on one side. Avoid turning too often. When cool roll in one-half cup sugar and two teaspoons of cinnamon blended together.

Foodographic Sketches -:- A CABBAGE FOR EVERY COUNTRY -:- By Mazes

When next you're tempted to use the term "common cabbage," remember this vegetable was adored by the Egyptians, who made it the first dish of their repast, believing it preserved them from drunkenness. The red cabbage was considered more effective than the white.

Almost every nation has special cabbage recipes. Romans boiled it, added wine, oil, cummin and coriander seeds, pepper, mint and dressed it with gravy. Kraut—finely shredded cabbage preserved in brine—is the national dish of Germany, served in many ways.

In Normandy cabbage is stuffed with meat or fish, crumbs or boiled rice, minced bacon and onion, egg and herbs, braised in stock or water for an hour. Belgians use whole red cabbages with whole pared apples, butter, cloves, salt and pepper, cooking them slowly three hours.

Americans swear by the New England boiled dinner in which cabbage is the chief ingredient. But today's preparation is far from that of a half century ago, since some enterprising person discovered boiled dinners could be put up, ready to serve, in glass jars.

SEES EARMARK FOR CRIMINALS

Universal Service.

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 12.—The term "earmarked" will in the near future have a far different meaning than its present financial significance, if the studies of Prof. H. F. Perkins, director of the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont, bear fruit.

The criminal of the future may also be earmarked, for Prof. Perkins has discovered more than 144 ear characteristics that he says indelibly fix the identity of a person.

The new system which the professor is teaching to a class of students has an advantage over fingerprints in that a record of ear characteristics were more easily obtainable by mere observation.

The professor explains, however, that from 15 to 25 per cent of all ears are typical in the characteristics and require more minute study to differentiate them.

Kill Old Turtle, Owner's Dying Wish

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—Philly, a turtle believed to be 100 years old, is to be chloroformed to comply with the last wishes of his owner.

Philly became the pet of Miss Carmany's mother about the time gold was discovered in California.

It was Miss Carmany's first pet and was allowed to crawl through the Carmany Philadelphia home.

Pest Bounties Cost State $1,000 Daily

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(INS.)—It costs the commonwealth about $1,000 daily to pay bounties for hides of wildcats, foxes, weasels and goshawks, according to Game Commissioner Ernest E. Harwood.

January's total bounties reached $30,488 for 30 wildcats, 1,878 gray foxes, 22,471 weasels and three goshawks.

ADAMS COUNTY DEED FOUND

International News Service.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., March 12.—A dust-covered deed, executed January 24, 1799, has been uncovered in the basement of the Adams County Courthouse by CWA workers.

The deed, believed to be the first filed after Adams County was separated from York County, was issued to the Rev. Alexander Dobbin, founder of the first public school west of the Susquehanna river, and David Moore, Sr., by James Gettys and his wife, Mary.

Drunk Driver War Started by Judge

BELLEFONTE, Pa., March 12.—(INS.)—Judge M. Ward Fleming, of the Center County Court, is determined to reduce the number of drunken drivers. A penalty of 10 days in jail,, $25 fine and costs of prosecution will be imposed upon all offenders convicted in his court, Judge Fleming warned.

College Girl, Sea Lover, Signed as Ship Officer

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 12.—(INS.)—The fourth mate stood on the chill fo'c'sle head as the freighter Wichita came up the Hudson to dock.

Said the fourth mate, sort of tremulously:

"I'm going to be lonesome, not feeling a ship under me."

And began feeling for a handkerchief—or a powderpuff—or something.

For SHE was a fourth mate "without portfolio," according to the captain, who signed her on when, as a passenger, she demonstrated her fitness to stand watch at the wheel, her knowledge of astronomy, her love for the sea.

Florence La Bau, alumna of Goucher College and Columbia University, and member of the smart young set in Ridgefield, N. J., came back from China as working member of the crew of the Wichita, which carried a cargo of human hair from China, tea from Formosa, silk from Japan, sugar from the Philippines and two bear cubs from Tibet.

Florence, who is 22, shipped as a passenger on the ship last October, just for fun. Her brother, Milton, a Princeton graduate, is a member of the crew. After she got going, she got interested in the business. Now she wants always to be a sailor.

SCARF APPEARS AS NEW MODE IN PARIS

Chenille cravats are one of the smartest neck novelties. They are made of loops of the soft silken cord knotted high about the throat like a man's cravat. They come in such bright hues as emerald green, sapphire blue, sky blue and rose and add a bright touch to a dark frock.

Ribbon and lace make other chic accessories. "Ribbon rope" scarfs, made of blue and white plaid ribbon woven like a soft collapsible rope, are worn with turbans of the same fabric.

Scarfs appear in the evening mode, too. Some of them are about a foot wide and long enough to sweep about the shoulders and trail to the hem of the gown.

Always Good!

● "PHILADELPHIA" PIN WHEELS

Spread thin, length-of-the-loaf slices of bread with snowy-white "Philadelphia" Brand Cream Cheese and jelly or anchovy paste. Roll up like a jelly roll, skew with toothpicks and wrap in a damp cloth. Before serving, cut in one-half inch slices.

Pure, delicately-flavored "Philadelphia" is the largest selling packaged cheese in the world! It's made with pure cream—wholesome, nutritious—and very good for the children.

✱ CHEESE AND CRAB DELIGHT

Cook 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper in 2 tablespoons butter. Blend in 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon mustard, salt and pepper, 1 cup stewed tomatoes, 1 package Kraft American Cheese, grated, and 1 slightly beaten egg. Add ¾ cup hot milk, 1 cup crab meat. Serve on hot toast or in patty shells.

Kraft American Cheese is the packaged, pasteurized American with full, natural flavor! And it melts and toasts perfectly.

♦ GREEN BEANS IN VELVEETA SAUCE

Try this sauce on beans, asparagus, cauliflower! In the double boiler melt 1 package of Kraft Velveeta in ½ cup of milk. Stir until Velveeta is melted.

Velveeta is the delicious cheese food that's especially recommended for children. It's digestible as milk itself—and has a nutritional rating of plus, plus, plus!

JUNIOR PATROL

We all pursue happiness, fellows!

But we sometimes find it in different ways. What makes one fellow happy may be poison for another. Thomas Jefferson, who wrote our Declaration of Independence, said that every man is entitled to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Notice that he said "pursuit." No one can find happiness or sell happiness to another person. Happiness is within ourselves. Every fellow has to find it for himself.

Some people are happy when they look at beautiful things. A perfect rose, a starry sky, a lovely tree. And that is as it should be. Others are perfectly happy when they are safe and quiet at home, in an easy chair, reading a good book. Some active fellows and girls aren't happy unless they are on the go—speeding along in a fast car or playing an energetic game. And there are many men and women who are happy doing their work.

We hope that all our Junior Patrol members are finding happiness. It is more precious than money. It is something rare and hard to hold. But it is a prize worth fighting for as hard as you can. Please write and tell us what makes you happy. Sometimes we think that the greatest happiness comes when you are helping others.

We have a short note from Eleanor Johnston, of 1220 Wade street, Aliquippa, Pa. She likes the comic strip and she is going to start a patrol club soon.

This little note is from Betty Jean Hunter, of Crawford avenue, Spangler, Pa.:

"Please tell Snuggins that I like chocolate cake, too."

Sure we will, Betty. You write very well.

James Cotter, of 515 Glasgow road, Wilkinsburg, Pa., is a new captain today. With his letter he has sent 10 pledges, one of them for his sister, Joyce. Joyce is ill, he says, and that makes us sorry, and we hope that she will get well soon. James' club is going to meet Mondays and Thursdays at 4 p. m. at the homes of members.

Gambling in Candy Banned at Schools

LEBANON, Pa., March 12.—(INS.)—Sale of candy involving any element of gambling has been banned in the Lebanon public schools on complaint of parents of school children.

The pupils, parents complained, were continually seeking money for "picks," in which the children were awarded additional candy if they selected the lucky color from a box of wrapped confections.

DAWN PATTERN 647

Simple Block in Four Materials

Dawn is one of those rare quilts that has the effect of two patterns laid onto each other. The blocks, easy to do, form a lovely pattern when joined. The design is one that lends itself to four materials as shown or could be done in scraps if preferred.

Pattern 647 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Farm in One Family 154 Years Is Sold

DANVILLE, March 12.—(AP.)—A rose bush which Mrs. William Yorks planted on the Yorks farm in Cooper Township when she was a bride 89 years ago, is expected to bloom this year for the first time for an owner other than a member of the Yorks family.

After 154 years in the family, the farm has been sold by Miss Ida Yorks to Henry Voelcker, of Danville.

Valley Forge Relics Sought by Cadets

VALLEY FORGE, March 12.—(AP.)—Relics of 1776 are the object of an intensive search to be made on the historic grounds at Valley Forge and Wayne.

Col Milton G Baker, superintendent of Valley Forge Military Academy, is organizing cadets for the search over grounds traversed by Gen. Washington and his troops in Revolutionary War days. Permission has been obtained from owners of several large estates near Wayne to make surface explorations.

5 DRIVING RULES FOR AUTOISTS MEAN SAFETY

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(INS.)—Five simple driving rules, violation of which caused 43 per cent of all traffic accidents in Pennsylvania last year, have been suggested by the Governor's committee on street and highway safety. The rules are: Let safety and good judgment govern your speed, keep on the right side of the road, don't take chances in cutting in ahead of the other fellow, obey the stop signs at through streets, signal your intentions to the drivers behind you.

A survey by the committee showed that in 1933 a total of 10,533 drivers involved in accidents were driving too fast, 4,178 were on the wrong side of the road, 1,735 were cutting in and out of traffic, 1,514 failed to signal and 1,604 did not stop at through streets.

To Make South Sea Scientific Study

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—(AP.)—The romance of the South Seas and the realism of scientific study lie before an expedition which is to be led by two Pennsylvanians.

A 29-ton cruising yacht with two 100-horsepower engines is being overhauled at Essington and on completion of the work it will sail down through the Panama Canal and westward across the tropical Pacific.

In charge will be a 28-year-old captain, Irwin A. Williamson, of Rosemont, and Frederick Hoeffel, formerly of Pottsville, well known in Pennsylvania tennis circles.

Their objective on the nine-month voyage will be to collect fish, corals, algae and other forms of marine life from little-studied parts of the South Seas.

Will Provides Christmas Gifts

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(INS.)—Each of the three children of the late Mrs. Emma I. Hatton will receive a $25 Christmas present as long as their father lives, the woman's will directed.

The will, disposing of an $8,650 estate, stipulates that after the death of the husband, the residue be distributed among the children.

Boy Loses Leg After Wearing Dad's Shoe

DANVILLE, March 12.—(AP.)—Luther Foust, 13, wore a pair of his father's oxfords in spite of the fact that they were much too large, but he'll never wear the right one again.

BEAUTY SHOPS FACING NEW STATE LAW

By JOHN W. SCOTZIN
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(INS.)—Milady's coiffure, arranged to flawless perfection by the skillful fingers of her favorite beautician, will henceforth receive its finishing touches, figuratively speaking, from the stern hand of the State Department of Public Instruction.

The department is preparing to send a large corps of investigators into the field to acquaint the 16,000 Pennsylvania followers of the art of making women more beautiful with the regulations of an act passed by the Legislature, May 3, 1933, which went into effect the first of this year.

Inspections will be made following this "educational" campaign and drastic action taken against those who persist in violating the law, Robert W. Semenow, law enforcement director, promised.

BASED ON SANITATION

Semenow said:

"Our main concern now is to make these operators comply with sanitary regulations. An advisory committee, comprised of five representatives of the profession, will determine the sanitary rules which beauty culturists must observe."

The law was passed with a view of promoting public health and safety by providing for examination and registration of those in the profession; defining beauty culture and regulating its shops, etc., conferring powers and duties upon the department; providing for appeals to certain courts by applicants and licensees; and providing penalties.

STUDENT FEES HALTED

Semenow added:

"A radical departure in connection with operation of beauty schools is that it is unlawful to charge a fee for work performed by students. Ordinarily, it is necessary for a person to serve a two-years' apprenticeship before becoming eligible to take the examination.

"The beauticians have been elevated to a profession by this act. All operators of beauty cultural schools, manicurists and technicians must be licensed.

Examinations for licenses are based on theoretical and practical phases of beauty culture, according to Semenow. Those practicing before January 1 are not required to submit to an examination.

Goose, Family's Pet For 20 Years, Dies

BERWICK, March 12.—(AP.)—Gussie, a goose, for 20 years a pet of the J. R. McElrath family at Hetlerville, is dead. For years Gussie followed J. R. McElrath, Jr., in his tasks about the farm, and slept outside, regardless of the weather. Until a short time ago, the goose continued to lay.

Make This at Home

This charming frock will appeal to many women—for it actually makes the figure appear more slender and graceful than it really is. So if you've a few extra pounds to conceal, the unbelted waistline and pointed seamings will do wonders for you. The neckline, too, is youthful with its crushed scarf casually tied on the shoulder. The choice for fabric is wide—heavy or sheer crepe would be good, or silk, either in print or monotone. The scarf, of a contrasting or harmonizing shade, might be fashioned of taffeta, or satin ribbon. The cuffs may be omitted for a shorter length sleeve.

Pattern 1801 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3⅞ yards 39-inch fabric and ⅞ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Color of Food Cited As Aid in Dining

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Vegetables served to your family can be made as attractive as flowers. Let me remind the housewife how easily this can be accomplished. Vegetables of differen colors combine so well that they appeal strongly to the eye.

Some vegetables have natural beauty of shape and color. Others can be cut in various interesting shapes. If you spend a few extra minutes to plan the appearance of your vegetable dish, you will be well rewarded by the enthusiasm your family is sure to show.

One vegetable I have in mind is Brussels sprouts. It is one of the many special varieties of cabbage. Brussels sprouts are really tiny cabbages. When properly cooked they have a delicious and tempting flavor.

Every variety of cabbage should be cooked in a large kettle with plenty of water. The vegetable should be placed in boiling water and the boiling continued just long enough for the cabbage to become tender.

Bear in mind that cabbage contains a sulphur compound, and overcooking leads to a marked liberation of hydrogen sulphide. This gives to the cabbage which has been cooked too long a dark color, strong flavor and an odor which is indeed unpleasant.

Brussels sprouts must not be overlooked as an excellent source of vitamin A. This vitamin increases the resistance of the body against colds and infectious diseases. It prevents disorders of the eyes and helps maintain proper nutrition of the body. It is found abundantly in eggs, fat, butter, cod liver oil and green vegetables, but few realize that brussels sprouts contain a liberal supply of this valuable element.

NOTED FIGHTER LAUDS HEARST WAR PHOTOS

NEW YORK, March 12.—A warning that the United States must be prepared!

This is the manner in which prominent New Yorkers have characterized the uncensored World War pictures which are being published in the Hearst newspapers.

Among those who have praised the picture series as constituting a timely argument in behalf of national preparedness is Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan, wartime commander of the 69th New York Regiment and possessor of three medals won for bravery in action.

'CANNOT CLOSE EYES'

Col. Donovan said:

"Despite its intensive desire for peace, the United States cannot close its eyes to the possibility of a war not of its own making. And unless America wishes to participate in a repetition of the cruel and wasteful days of 1917 and 1918, it must be ready at all times properly and speedily to defend itself.

WARNS OF RUMBLINGS

"The publication of the pictures comes at a most opportune time, it seems to me, now that there are war rumblings in many parts of the old world. These pictures teach a striking lesson in behalf of preparedness. They are interesting in that they give the present generation a rather clear conception of the horrors through which the boys of the AEF lived month after month.

"And they are instructive because they will bring home the fact that there will always be a possibility that such scenes may be re-enacted on American soil should our nation be content with a weakened fighting force. Every American wants peace, yet the only permanent peace for which we can hope will be one founded upon our unquestioned ability to repel possible aggression."

Trout Farm Output Greatly Increased

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(INS.)—Installation of a new aeration system for water from one of the giant springs at the fish commission's Huntsdale trout farm in Cumberland County has just been completed, according to Commissioner Oliver M. Deibler.

Each of the trout-raising ponds in the new unit is 100 feet long and eight feet wide, having gravel and timbered sides.

The new aeration plant will greatly increase the capacity, according to Deibler.

What else is half so good?

They are more than breakfast foods. They are luncheons and suppers, too.

Not mere confections, but hearty meals. For wheat and rice are the two greatest foods in the world.

We cannot describe these puffed foods, and there is nothing with which to compare them.

But serve them once—with cream, with fruit, or in a bowl of milk—and you'll discover a new delight.

Puffed Wheat, Puffed Rice

This is how we prepare them:

The whole wheat or rice kernels are put into sealed guns. Then the guns are revolved, for forty minutes, in a heat of 550 degrees.

That heat turns the moisture in the grain to steam, and the pressure becomes tremendous.

Then the guns are unsealed; the steam explodes. Instantly every starch granule is blasted into myriads of particles.

The kernels of grain are expanded eight times. Yet the coats are unbroken, the shapes are unaltered. We have simply the magnified kernels of grain, made porous and crisp and digestible.

Discovered by Accident

In cooking, baking or toasting some of these granules remain entirely unbroken, so digestion is difficult.

He thought of exploding these granules by steam, and he invented these guns to do it.

The Same Purity, Quality and Economy in FRYING as in Salads

THE KROGER TESTED AND APPROVED FOOD FOUNDATION

TRUE, most women use Mazola exclusively for fresh, delicious salad dressings — but many women have discovered that the same parity and quality which makes Mazola-made salad dressings so smooth and rich, also produce the most delicious and digestable fried foods.

The high temperature to which Mazola may be heated without smoking, sears and seals the surfaces of foods, thus retaining the natural juices and flavors; at the same time excessive absorbtion of the oil is prevented, avoiding sogginess and improving digestability.

Another thing, Mazola never carries odors or flavors from one food to another. For instance, after frying fish or onions, merely strain the Mazola and use it again and again.

If you have not tried Mazola for frying, learn for yourself the cleanliness, convenience and economy of using this pure oil for all frying.

Notice:

The Sanitary dripless pouring spout, found only on Mazola cans prevents the oil from dripping on the sides or top of the can — this minimizes waste and adds even more to the convenience of using Mazola for salads and cooking.

You lose that delightful flavor when you fail to get Mother's Oats*

SOME people think oatmeals are alike. But please remember this. It's flavor that counts in oatmeals. And it's flavor that has won the world to Mother's Oats.

Why the Mother's Oats flavor is richer.

Mother's Oats are flaked from just the finest grains. Sifted 32 times to get only the perfect ones. It takes a bushel of choice oats, to make 10 pounds of Mother's Oats.

How our process differs

These choice oats we roast whole. To a very perfection of flavor. Then they are further enriched with ultra violet rays. This gives an added food value no other oatmeal boasts.

Remember this. Don't merely ask for oats. Ask for Mother's Oats. Then you get all that wealth of flavor. You get a vim food with which nothing else can compare.

Cooks faster than toast

To save time we make Quick Mother's Oats. They take but 2½ minutes of cooking. And give you the same delightful Mother's Oats flavor.

2—Better flavor due to 10 different roastings.
